HOW 'FORGOTTEN BUSINESS MAN' GETS WALLOPED

U. S. Driving Him to Wall, Says Shannon.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

The troubles of a new "forgotten man," the small business man who is being driven to the wall by government competition, were set forth last night by Congressman Joseph B. Shannon of Kansas City, Mo., chairman of the congressional committee which is uncovering Uncle Sam's encroachments upon private business. The grocer, laundryman, shoe dealer, hardware man, printer, haberdasher, druggist, jeweler, dry goods man, and restaurant proprietor—a segment of Main street—form a group which Mr. Shannon described as being bled white by "bureaucratic parasites" in communities where the government is spreading into the realms of trade and industry.

"The only way to reach a bureau," concluded Mr. Shannon, "is to crack it on the head by taking away its money. If bureaucracy is not destroyed, then this government will be destroyed eventually."

Tells Committee Findings.

The Shannon address, which was delivered in the Midland club before members of the club and of the American Taxpayers' league, reviewed some of the disclosures gathered by the committee during its hearings in the middle west. The revelations concerning the governmental aim at a food monopoly through federal farm board agencies and the competition of federal bureaucracy with big business enterprises were left for later discussion by the speaker, who devoted his talk to what is happening to the small business man.

More than 160 industries are affected by governmental competition, it has been developed during the hearings.

Uncle Sam's rôle of operator of department stores, cafeterias, tearooms, beauty parlors, shoe shine stands, manicure shops, laundries, and tire shops—all in the name of "welfare and efficiency," two words always invoked by the bureaucrats—was described by Mr. Shannon as striking at the taproots of community life.

U. S. Stores Hurt Merchants.

As typical instances of what is going on, as developed before the committee, he cited the operations of army and navy stores, which, in cities like Leavenworth, Kas., and Lawton, Okla., are making Main street a scene of trade desolation at the expense of taxpaying merchants whose business has been taken away by government stores operated in government buildings with government clerks.

He spoke of sending his son out in Washington to see what he could buy at government stores. The son came back togged out from shoes to hat and had got a shoe shine, a manicure, a shave, and a haircut, all in government shops.

The celebrated women's silk pyjamas, green with yellow polka dots, which the congressman's secretary bought at an army store, and which were waved by Mr. Shannon in congress when he was getting action on the formation of his investigating committee, were cited as a typical item in a mountainous accumulation of evidence.

Wanted $750,000 for Cafés.

"Bureaucracy, putting the government in the restaurant business," Mr. Shannon said, "managed to have $750,000 put in the deficiency appropriation bill for cafés in 15 postoffices. We knocked it out. They tried to slip it in again in the senate. Knocked out again. They were getting ready to increase the price of postage and to cut wages, but they were trying to chisel three quarters of a million dollars for government cafés, when eating places across the street are closing for lack of customers."

Since the hearings at Kansas City, Mr. Shannon reported, the activities of the government department store at Fort Leavenworth have been curtailed. Civilians are not allowed to purchase goods there and the government bakery, which used to supply bread to private customers, has been ordered closed.

"The navy is a greater offender than the army," said Mr. Shannon. "Activities of the navy in the way of competitive business are like those of the 'serpent on the rock,' if I may quote a bit of scripture in an unholy connection.

He read a document, a private circular from the navy commissary at Newport, R. I., dated July 1, 1932, tell-

O'CONNOR FINDS BANKERS GUILTY OF CONSPIRACY

Judge John M. O'Connor yesterday found John Bain, his sons, Robert A. and John H., and his son-in-law, W. Merle Fisher, all guilty of conspiracy to defraud creditors of their twelve banks and indicated that he would sentence the elder Bain to eighteen months in the penitentiary. Judge O'Connor heard the case without a jury.

The sentences were deferred until 10 o'clock this morning because of the absence of John Bain, who is confined to his home at 3344 Pleasant avenue with bronchial trouble. His physician, Dr. J. T. Meyer, said he would appear today.

The judge announced he would not imprison the young Bains and Fisher, but would fine them $1,000 each.

Marks 51st Court Session.

The court's decision came at the close of the fifty-first session of the "$13,000,000 conspiracy case" and the courtroom was packed with interested depositors and investors in the financial institutions headed by Bain, who is also a south park commissioner and one time prominent politician. The verdict came at the conclusion of a twenty minute speech, during which the crowd had sat silently but with rapt faces.

"It is the finding of the court that the defendants are all guilty of the general conspiracy charge," said Judge O'Connor.

Every one in the courtroom except Special Prosecutor Edwin J. Raber stood up and the spectators lurched forward, pushing bailiffs aside. The judge had been speaking in low tones and they wished to hear what was coming. Judge O'Connor cleared his throat.

"Well, everybody here wants to hear this and I want them to hear it," he said. "Let the windows be closed and let every one remain quiet." The windows were closed and quiet obtained, but the crowd still pushed forward and hands were placed to ears.

Obeyed Their Father.

"These men," said the court, referring to the young Bains and to Fisher, "did just what I should expect them to do. They did what their father and father-in-law told them to do. I'm not going to send them to jail, but I'm going to fine them $1,000 each. As to the defendant John Bain, I'm going to send him to Joliet penitentiary for eighteen months."

There was no demonstration, but a whisper went through the courtroom. The whisper was: "It's a shame." The proposed sentence had not appeased the spectators, many of whom had waited ten weeks for this occasion.

"If your honor please," said Prosecutor Raber, "the sentence must be indeterminate. It must be from one to five years."

"I hadn't understood it that way," said the court. "But we'll settle that later. When can John Bain be here?"

Defense Attorney Francis X. Busch called for Dr. Meyer, who was sitting near the jury box with the Bain brothers and Fisher. Dr. Meyer said the elder Bain, who is 74, could be there this morning, and the matter of formal sentences was continued until then.

Granddaughter Present; Weeps.

A granddaughter of Bain was one of the few members of his family to witness this scene. The girl, who is about 19 years of age, and the daughter of another son of Bain not implicated in the charges, pushed her way through the courtroom throng and stood beside the bench while the judge made his statement. When he finished she broke into tears and went bitterly until her uncles, John H. and Robert A. Bain, took her away. The brothers had appeared unconcerned throughout the session. Even the decision of the court apparently failed to move them. They refused to make any comment or to reveal the name of their niece as they left the courtroom.

Attorney Busch Satisfied.

"That's not such a bad verdict," said Attorney Busch, with a broad grin on his face, as he followed his clients.

Prosecutor Raber had this to say: "A week after this trial started Busch came to me and made an offer that all four of them plead guilty and each accept a jail sentence. That speaks for itself."

THE THREE LEGGED RACE

FRANCE TO SLASH SALARIES OF ALL STATE EMPLOYES

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Aug. 24.—The French ministry of finance will tomorrow publish an official notice that effective Oct. 1 all salaries and wages in the department will be cut 5 per cent. The saving effected will be $14,000,000 a year.

Notification of similar cuts, effective Oct. 1 will be given to all other employes, both civil and military, on the government pay rolls. This action will save, it is estimated, over $25,000,000 a year.

According to official taxation figures for July published today the revenue for the first four months of the financial year is now 1,077,000,000 francs [about $45,000,000] below the estimated figures. In July alone the deficit was nearly 400 million francs [$16,000,000]. Compared with the first four months of 1931 revenue was off 2,356,000,000 francs [$95,000,000].

SEIZES SPEEDER, THEN HELPS HIM PAY HIS FINE

Policeman Henry Witt of Evanston proved himself to be an obliging as well as a dutiful policeman last night.

He arrested Allen F. Eddy, 20 years old, 324 South 16th street, Maywood, for speeding. Eddy was accompanied by Grinnell Morris, 102 East Chestnut street, and two young women. Unable to furnish bond, Eddy inquired if he might not accept a fine.

Policeman Witt communicated by phone with Magistrate Harry H. Porter. The magistrate ordered a $5 fine plus $2 costs. But Eddy could raise only $6, $1 short of the $7 total. His friend Morris offered a check for $1. Policeman Witt cashed it. The total fine was paid and Eddy and his friends departed.

FATHER AND SON ROBBERS; YOUTH TAKES THE BLAME

New York, Aug. 24.—[Special.]—A father and his son were in the police lineup today, charged with a holdup, and both did their best to saddle all the blame upon the son, a 16 year old high school boy.

Victor Vernon, 35, said he followed his son into the store of Frank Minin on Amsterdam avenue just before midnight to prevent his son from doing wrong, but he could not explain to the satisfaction of the police his possession of a pistol and his attempt to escape after Minin raised an alarm. They were caught within two blocks of the stationery store, with $17 loot.

Vernon and his son, both neatly dressed, are both small, hollow cheeked and pale.

Physician Ends Life to Escape Alimony Cell

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

"This is a just and fair verdict. I want the public to know that this man had been unjustly persecuted."

Such was the comment of Deputy Coroner Matt Tyschen, after hearing a jury return a verdict of "suicide while temporarily insane," at the inquest yesterday into the death of Dr. A. J. Karalius, 42 years old. Rather than go to jail for failure to pay $1,000 in back alimony to his first wife, Marcella, the physician drank poison Tuesday night at his home, 3147 South Halsted street.

At the Karalius home his widow Bessie revealed that her husband had brooded for weeks over his first wife's demands for alimony. She said he told her many times: "I will die before I will go to jail. I have committed no crime."

Tells of Threats.

"Marcella, the first wife, and her attorney, Thomas S. Dougherty, kept calling about the money and threatening to send my husband to jail," Mrs. Karalius declared. "My husband offered them a little, but they said they wanted it all or none. All this upset my husband terribly. He was in court Tuesday and was told that he must pay or go to jail.

"He came home late that day accompanied by his attorney, William C. Mitchell, and a friend, Joseph Cheponis. After dinner he went into the kitchen and drank poison, dying shortly after at Auburn Park hospital.

A letter written Aug. 5 by Dr. Karalius to Dr. Andrew L. Graicunas, 3310 South Halsted street, with directions that it be opened after his death, caused some commotion at the inquest. When Dr. Graicunas refused to appear with the letter, Deputy Coroner Tychen threatened to arrest him. The letter, written in Lithuanian was delivered late in the day. Translated by Attorney Mitchell it read:

"I am committing suicide. The circumstances that make me do so, you well know. I am going I know not where. I have found out, much to my sorrow, that the almighty dollar can make and break a man."

Graduate of Loyola.

Dr. Karalius bequeathed all his medical instruments, books and possessions pertaining to his profession to the Lithuanian university in Lithuania. His other property he left to his present wife.

Dr. Karalius was a graduate of Loyola university school of medicine. He was the author of more than sixty books and pamphlets on scientific subjects and had translated many American books into the Lithuanian language. He also had written articles on philosophical subjects.

Dr. Karalius was divorced by his first wife 12 years ago on charges of desertion. He made a $1,500 settlement and agreed to pay $10 a week alimony for the support of a daughter, Anastasia. He had been married to his present wife ten years. They had one son, Kenneth, 9 years old.

"Dr. Karalius was able to meet the alimony payments until the depression," said Attorney Mitchell. "Since then most of his patients have been charity cases. He never turned any one down. When he was unable to meet his alimony payments I advised him to appear before Judge Joseph B. David and explain the situation. But he was afraid of being sent to jail, a disgrace which he said he could never face."

Special Session to Vote Relief Set for Sept. 6

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 24.—(AP)—A committee of house and senate leaders tonight tentatively decided on a special session of the state legislature Tuesday, Sept. 6, to consider additional unemployment relief legislation.

While no definite plan for raising funds was outlined and the call was expected to deal only with relief, leaders indicated it may be broad enough to include also aid for teachers, an employment plan proposed by the Chicago sanitary district and a measure giving the state authority to benefit from the federal home loan law.

(The aid to the school teachers is expected to take the form of annulling the N. S. F. law passed at last session. This would make tax anticipation warrants marketable and materially add to the ability of government bodies to meet the pay rolls, etc.)

Ask Emmerson to Call It.

The lawmakers recommended convocation of the extraordinary session to Gov. Emmerson after a closed conference in the governor's chambers with Lieut. Gov. Fred E. Sterling and De Witt Billman, legal representative. House and senate leaders and William Sexton, corporation counsel of Chicago, were present.

The conferees announced a committee of nine legislators would be named tomorrow to begin drafting bills. It was hoped that a set program could be outlined before members of the assembly came to Springfield for the session.

Various plans have been suggested as a means of raising sufficient funds with which to care for the state's idle, including a general sales tax, an increase in the gasoline tax or an amendment to the present gasoline tax law, permitting the use of this revenue for unemployment.

Relief Law by Oct. 1.

Announcement was made that relief bills, if passed, will be in effect by Oct. 1, when relief funds now on hand will be exhausted.

Sexton told the conference of the stand of the federal Reconstruction Finance corporation at Washington. That body recently made loans of $9,000,000 to the state, but warned that additional funds would be withheld until the state has exhausted all of its relief resources.

The conferees expressed belief that a special session was absolutely necessary, and a committee composed of Lieut. Gov. Sterling, Speaker David E. Shanahan of the house of representatives, Michael L. Igoe, minority leader, and Senators Richard J. Barr, Joliet, and Martin Carlson, Moline, so advised the governor.

A two-thirds vote of each house will be necessary for the passage of any sort of relief legislation, and many of those in the conference were of the opinion this might prove impossible. Others doubted that all members would respond to the governor's call, especially many of those who were defeated in the primary. An additional tax, some declared, would be opposed by many members.

THEATER THIEF STEALS WOMAN'S FALSE MOLARS

Mrs. Prudence Brown, wife of George W. Brown, San Francisco banker and manufacturer, reported to police last night that her purse was stolen from her in the Chicago theater. She and her husband had placed their hats and her purse on an unoccupied seat behind them.

Some one lifted the hats and removed the purse. Mrs. Brown said it contained $20 in cash and some special dental work valued at $300, just completed. The Browns are spending the summer here and are staying at the Stevens hotel. To complicate matters Mrs. Brown's dentist has gone on a vacation.

3 SWISS PLUNGE 5,000 FEET FROM MT. MATTERHORN

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

Three Swiss ascended the Dent Blanche, 14,318 feet high, and, when passing a snowbridge to climb the Matterhorn, fell 5,000 feet, rebounding from rock to rock.

A rescue party of guides and relatives today left Zermatt to bring the badly crushed bodies to the valley. The ascent is considered extremely dangerous, even under the best conditions.

Sailor Killed in Unusual Accident on Lake Boat

Harry Evans, 44 years old, of 7727 Luella avenue, engineer of the Nassau, a lake boat, was fataly injured last evening in an unusual accident aboard the ship. As the vessel docked at 104th street and the Calumet river, Evans lowered the anchor by means of a one man capstan. The handle bar slipped and struck him on the head. His skull was fractured, and he died in the South Chicago hospital.

SHERIFF'S ARMY CLEARS COUNTY OF MARCHERS

Attempt to Prevent Work Failure.

BULLETIN.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 25 (Thursday).—(AP)—Six striking miners, wounded in the mine melee yesterday, who returned to Springfield early today, reported that one miner had been killed.

BY PERCY WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Benton, Ill., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—Fifteen thousand mine strikers who attempted to invade Franklin county to halt work in the mines by picketing are in retreat tonight.

The vanguard of the marchers were met at the county line tonight and driven back by the sheriff and 300 deputized citizens.

At least three of the strikers, one a woman, were shot and several others received treatments for cuts and bruises in Duquoin.

No names were obtained but the woman had been shot through the lobe of her left ear. One of the men had been shot through the jaw and the other in the throat. They left a physician's office after being treated. It is believed they joined the retreating caravan.

100 Injured by Clubs.

At least 100 of the invading miners were injured by clubs.

Franklin county officials think the strikers may return and are keeping their forces mobilized. They insist the outside strikers cannot come into the county—the largest coal producing county in the state—and hinder work by the men who have accepted the $5 basic wage agreed upon by the union leaders and operators.

The two Bell and Zollar mines at Zeigler, where 1,200 men are employed, were the objective of those who engaged in the march.

Story of the Battle.

When the main body of marchers reached Duquoin today they had planned to go southward to Dowell, camping there tonight and advancing into Franklin county tomorrow.

But deputy sheriffs of Perry county turned them eastward and they tried to pass into Franklin county tonight.

As the first contingent of strikers crossed the Perry-Franklin line on the Muddy river they were met by Sheriff Browning Robinson and his deputized citizens. He permitted them to advance to Mulkeytown, the first place where there was space to turn the automobiles. There they were commanded to turn.

Barricades across the roads prevented further advance.

Bullets Pierce Tires.

Gunfire from rifles, machine guns, and revolvers pierced the tires of the strikers' cars. The deputized citizens charged into the miners with clubs and billiard cues.

The county officers made their chief attack at the western outskirts of Mulkeytown, although a line of deputy sheriffs deployed along the highway to the west also joined in the offensive, pelting the tires of the strikers' automobiles with bullets and wielding clubs as the cars moved slowly along the traffic jammed road in the retreat.

As their automobiles crashed into ditches the miners escaped into the fields and woods and struck back westward to join the main body of the strikers.

Trucks of Supplies Seized.

The strikers deserted many of their automobiles and trucks, the tires of which had been pierced by bullets and the windshields shattered by clubs. Six trucks loaded with provisions which the strikers had brought in preparation for a week's siege of the working coal mines were abandoned. They were seized by deputy sheriffs.

Highway policemen spurred the marchers on the backward march.

After the retreat the deputies searched the fields with flashlights looking for dead and wounded, but found none. Most of the deputies returned to Benton, but remained at the jail ready if the march was renewed.

Advised to Stay Away.

The march of the miners began early today at Springfield and gathered impetus by additions of numbers as it progressed toward this region.

Finally it was a moving mass of autos five miles long.

The marchers were in a bitter mood. They sent ahead this warning:

"We are coming on; you can't kill all of us."

Sheriff Robinson sent 100 men to Pinckneyville in Perry county today. They were to aid Sheriff A. C. Davis of Perry county in advising the marchers to turn about and return to their homes.

The striking miners were held up at the outskirts of Pinckneyville by Sheriff Davis. He placed his automobile across the road as a blockade.

The leaders of the miners defied him and the Franklin county men moved back to their territory. The march proceeded. Sheriff Robinson sent 200 additional deputies to meet the returning guards.

Earlier the marchers were advised by a patrol of highway police at Tilden that they should abandon their expedition.

"It's almost certain death if you come on," said the police.

Ranks Grow Rapidly.

When the marchers left Springfield it was estimated that they numbered 5,000. Delegations joined them at every mining village, some men bringing their wives. Food trucks lurched along at intervals in the line and the women rode in them, laughing and waving their hands at their less fortunate sisters left at home.

At Staunton the strikers were joined by delegations from Christian county and surrounding territory. The Taylorville group was estimated at 1,800 and from the other towns as follows: Benld, 800; Mount Olive, 400; Nokomis, 400; Pana, 500; Gillespie, 800, and Wilsonville, 100.

The Belleville crowd consisted of more than 900 men when it joined the caravan, the total line stretching more than five miles.

American flags fluttered from many of the machines and there was no disorder. About thirty "sergeants" were appointed to police the line and they did their utmost to keep the cars moving at an even pace. Some regret was expressed that state police were not along to clear traffic and expedite the movement.

A carnival spirit was maintained by the pickets. "Little Cigar," a Taylorville miner who entertained his fellows at mine No. 58 there during the picketing the first part of the week, brought his accordion along and its musical clamor rose above the sound of the motors from time to time.

Mines Working Full Force.

Both mines at Zeigler opened with almost 100 per cent labor this morning. The two unions voted late yesterday to return to work. Ray Edmondson, president of subdistrict 9, United Mine Workers of America, declared a state of emergency in the subdistrict last night and ordered that no union meetings, either regular or special, be held for the time being.

Nine of the 22 mines in Franklin county are now operating. Their combined pay rolls mean $1,000,000 to the county and the citizens who are backing the miners who chose to work under the $5 scale are more than determined to see that those who wish to work will be protected.

Turning Back, Says Black.

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Adjt. Gen. Carlos E. Black tonight announced he was informed by his military aid in Franklin county that the miners' army of occupation, demoralized by the clash with Franklin county sheriff's deputies at Mulkeytown, was beating a hasty and disorganized retreat back north.

Black said he was advised by Lieut. Col. Davis by telephone from Duquoin that there is no evidence of further trouble.

"None of the motorcade," he said, "was permitted to proceed south of the junction of No. 2 and No. 14. Then they were turned back toward Christopher.

"They were met by the Franklin county deputies at Mulkeytown, where they were turned back. There was some show of force. Several automobile tires were shot and punctured. Some glass was broken. Three persons are reported to have been injured, none seriously.

"The marchers deserted their cars, many of the cars being run into the fields before doing so. The highway police now are assisting the owners to obtain their own automobiles. All are headed back in the direction from which they came."

Guard in Other Places.

Christopher, Ill., Aug. 24.—(AP)—While the force of deputy sheriffs that turned back the invading strikers at Mulkeytown maintained their guard there tonight, seven miles north of Benton, on state route No. 37, another group of deputy sheriffs maintained machine gun guard to prevent the strikers from moving into Franklin county from the north.

They were stationed at Whittington curve, which gave them a commanding sweep of the highway to the north.

Several hundred of the straggling miners remained at Duquoin tonight. Walter Moody, chief of the Illinois highway police, said there that as soon as possible these strikers would be sent back to their homes in northern and central Illinois. Chief Moody also said that the remainder of the strikers' caravan was en route back north.

Huge Strip Mine Idle.

Kewanee, Ill., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—The largest strip mine in the world became idle for the first time since 1929 at Atkinson this afternoon when 100 workers of the Midland Electric Coal company quit in face of picketing threats from downstate miners. Having an annual output of 500,000 tons and monthly pay roll of $30,000, the mine supplies coal for the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad as well as many Davenport and Rock Island firms.

Plan Peoria March.

Peoria, Ill., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Successful in closing virtually all mines in Peoria, Fulton, Knox, and Tazewell counties, striking union coal miners of the Peoria district are contemplating marching upon mines in La Salle county. Leaders today said they expected to send pickets there next Saturday or early next week.

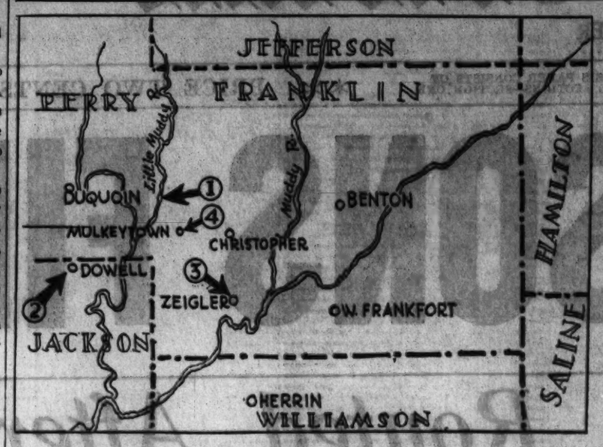
SHERIFF'S ARMY HALTS MARCH OF MINE STRIKERS



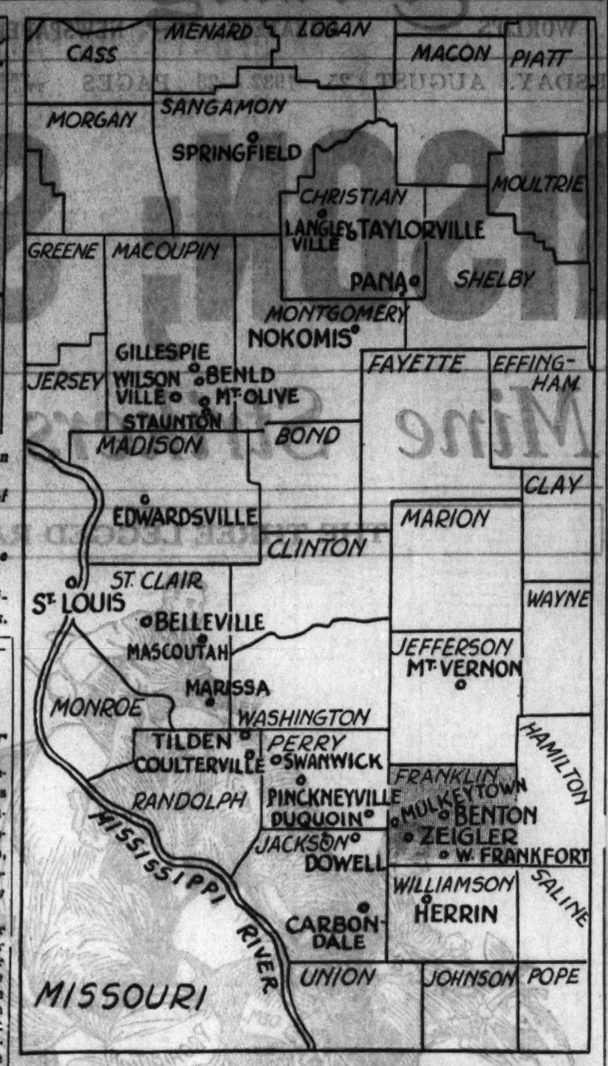
The map above shows the battlefield of Franklin county. The action last night centered in the western section.

1—Duquoin, where main army was turned eastward by officials of Perry county.

2—Dowell, where the miners planned to spend last night.

3—Zeigler, where the main mines the strikers sought to close are located.

4—Mulkeytown, where 300 deputy sheriffs, largely deputized citizens, barricaded the road and drove back the vanguard of the marchers.



The map above shows the wide territory from which the miners gathered by thousands to invade Franklin county in an endeavor to halt work by miners at Zeigler and other camps in that county. The cities and towns shown on the map are those from which the marchers started.

ARTISTIC POTTERY OF 1700 B. C. REVEALS ISRAELITES' SKILL

[Copyright: 1932: By the New York Times.]

JERUSALEM, Aug. 24.—Evidence of a highly skilled and artistic civilization that existed in Palestine in the middle bronze age, about 1700 B. C., has been dug from a huge mound at ancient Kiryath Sephr, now known as Tellbeit Mirsim, near Hebron.

Among the finds were smooth shapes of pottery, which, according to Prof. M. G. Kyle, president of the Xenia Theological seminary of St. Louis, might have been the models for later Greek and Roman craftsmen. Prof. W. F. Albright of Johns Hopkins is director of the excavations. The work has laid bare successive strata of a mound covering the years from 2000 B. C. to 600 B. C. Culture of all the ages is represented in the 3,000 objects taken out during four seasons of excavations.

The strata of the hill revealed a complete and continuous history from the period of Abraham to the excursion of the Israelites under Moses. The finds revealed a culture which far excelled the periods preceding or succeeding it.

FILM EXECUTIVE FAILS TO BLOCK MARRIAGE SUIT

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—A demurrer filed by Louis Weitzenkorn, motion picture executive, to a suit for separate maintenance of $1,000 monthly by his wife, Ira May Weitzenkorn, former publicity writer, was overruled today by Superior Judge Edmonds.

Mrs. Weitzenkorn charges in her suit that her husband took their French maid to Paris, France, for several days when they were living at Sevres in 1929. She declared she discharged the maid, whereupon Weitzenkorn established the servant in a luxurious apartment. She further states that her husband's income is $1,000 weekly.

Today Weitzenkorn attacked her complaint on the ground that she had claimed two marriages with him, one a legal wedding and the other a common law relationship. He maintained she should rely solely upon one marriage, but Judge Edmonds ruled she might rely upon either one she could prove.

Unidentified Woman Ends Life by Taking Poison

A gray haired woman about 57 years old walked up to John W. Henley, 415 East 91st street, at South Park way and 75th street this morning and announced, "I've taken poison." Then she collapsed. Henley notified police, who took the woman to the Jackson Park hospital where she died shortly after her arrival. Nothing in her possession gave a clew to her identity. She wore, among other attire, a printed flower dress.

In the last year Aurora has raised $360,000 for relief work. It will put on a community chest campaign this fall which is expected to raise $100,000. Another tax levy will be made in April.

THREE OFFICERS HURT IN GASSING FARM STRIKERS

Picketers Hurl Ties Into Deputies' Car.

Council Bluffs, Ia., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Three officers were cut by flying glass and several farmers, among them women and children, were gassed tonight in a clash between the authorities and farm strikers at an intersection on highway No. 34, one mile south of the city limits.

The casualties happened when Policeman Mosher, Wiggan and Watson, who had been deputized by Sheriff P. A. Lainson, together with Lieut. Col. Henry C. Hall, chemical warfare officer on the staff of Brig. Gen. Matthew Tinley of the Iowa National Guard, and Deputy Game Warden C. H. Pangborn, drove through the crowd of strikers with cans of tear gas spouting from the running board.

The crowd scattered hurriedly, eyes and noses watering, as the car went through the first time. As it turned to back through another section of the crowd, however, three railroad ties were hurled through the closed windows of the car.

Col. Hall was cut about the head, while Pangborn and Watson were cut in the face. Genevieve Mauck, Council Bluffs girl reporter, was severely gassed.

Hunger May Decide Fray.

At the same time Sheriff Lainson here and officials in other communities moved to curb what they termed some of the felonious developments of the nonsell campaign.

Lainson's squadrons were not long in clearing three major highways and one lesser road of picketers. Twelve farmers from Missouri Valley and Denison, Ia., were arrested and charged with unlawful assembly.

Several arrests marked law enforcement activities elsewhere as the two weeks old "strike" continued with reprisals, threats, and interference with trains.

Leaders Admit Doubt.

At Sioux City, where the movement had been gaining recruits steadily, farmers, faced with the necessity of selling their products in order to buy food for their families, began to lose some of their enthusiasm for the campaign.

Strike leaders frankly admitted they were confronted by a serious situation.

There were also many live stock raisers in northwest Iowa who soon would be forced to market their hogs and cattle or suffer severe losses.

A group of former strike adherents near Charter Oak, Ia., deserted the holiday cause, and banded together to ship their fattened stock. Under a guard of 200 sympathizers they hauled their stock to the railroad and loaded three cars, which they sent to the Sioux City market.

Two Nebraska Victories.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—Two victories were credited to the midwest farm strike for higher prices today at Omaha and Lincoln, Neb. Officials of the Iowa-Nebraska Cooperative Milk association here consented to pay $2 a hundredweight for milk over the previous top of $1.45. Lincoln milk dealers agree dto pay $1.80 instead of $1.40.

HOME LOAN BANK TO BE LOCATED IN CHICAGO AREA

Initial Capitalization to Be 15 Million.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—The newly created home loan bank board today definitely fixed boundaries for twelve home loan bank districts throughout the country and announced that the initial capitalization for the home loan system is to be 134 million dollars. Cities in which the twelve parent banks of the system are to be located have not yet been decided upon.

Illinois and Wisconsin, under the setup announced today, were combined to form the seventh home loan district with an initial capitalization of $15,000,000. The board stated that eligible home financing institutions in these two states hold about 825 million dollars' worth of mortgages of all types.

All Capitalized Above 5 Million.

The total value of mortgages now held by eligible home financing institutions throughout the country was estimated at 19 billion 810 million dollars by the board. Only about half the home financing institutions in the country can immediately subscribe to stock in the home loan banks because of restrictions in their state laws prohibiting them from buying stock of any kind.

In every district established today the initial capitalization provided by the board exceeded the $5,000,000 minimum fixed under the home loan act.

Boundaries of 12 Districts.

The twelve home loan districts established by the board with the initial capitalization of each are as follows:

First district—Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, and Connecticut; total capitalization $12,500,000.

Second District—New York, New Jersey, Porto Rico, and the Virgin Islands, $20,000,000.

Fouth district—Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, and District of Columbia, $10,000,000.

Fifth district—Ohio, Kentucky and Tennessee, $15,000,000.

Sixth district—Michigan and Indiana, $8,000,000.

Ninth district—Arkansas, Mississippi, Louisiana, Texas, and New Mexico, $10,000,000.

Tenth district—Nebraska, Kansas, Oklahoma, and Colorado, $7,500,000.

Mills Arranges Meeting of Business Chiefs.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—Industrial output and employment in July decreased from the June level, but the general level of wholesale prices showed a slight advance, according to the monthly statement of the federal reserve board issued today.

The industrial decline was about that to be expected because of seasonal factors, but factory employment and pay rolls decreased by more than the seasonal amount, the report stated.

Wholesale prices advanced about one per cent above the general level of June, and in the first half of August the prices of many leading commodities advanced considerably. Reserve bank credit declined somewhat during the four weeks ending Aug. 17, reflecting, the report explained, chiefly a substantial growth in the country's stock of monetary gold.

Arrange Economic Conference.

It was against this economic background that Secretary of the Treasury Mills conferred at length with President Hoover today, reporting to the President that arrangements had been completed for the meeting tomorrow of the twelve chairmen of the national business and industrial committees, who will act as an organizing committee for the general business conference here on Friday.

The executive committee will meet tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock in Secretary Mills' office, with Henry M. Robinson, Los Angeles banker and close friend of Mr. Hoover, presiding.

Together with government officials, the twelve chairmen of the committees formed in the various federal reserve districts will draw up the agenda for the next day's full meeting. The two chief purposes of the full conference, the White House has announced, will be to encourage the spreading of employment and the easing of credit.

Democrats Take Part.

Several prominent Democrats will participate in the conference, among them Owen D. Young of New York, Atlee Pomerene of Ohio, recently appointed chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, and Melvin Traylor, president of the First National bank of Chicago.

Despite this nonpartisan flavor, the conference was today made the target of an attack by Senator Joe T. Robinson [Ark.], Democratic senate leader, in a statement issued through the Democratic national committee.

SEA FLYERS FALL INTO OCEAN; MISS DEATH BY INCHES

Nearly Run Into Mountain in Newfoundland Fog.

Flying Family Safe

The "Flying Hutchinsons," George, his wife, their two small daughters, and a crew of four, landed their amphibion plane at Fort Menier, Anticosti island, in the St. Lawrence river, at 4:45 p. m. yesterday after a three hour flight from St. John, N. B. They thus completed the second leg of a projected flight from New York to London. They plan to take off for Labrador today.

Clyde Lee and John Bochkon, who are attempting a flight from Barre, Vt., to Oslo, Norway, were poised last night at Harbor Grace, N. F., for a takeoff across the Atlantic at dawn today. They reached Harbor Grace yesterday after battling fog and rain for hours over Newfoundland.

A third projected Atlantic flight by Carl Petersen and Thor Solberg ended when their plane nose dived into the sea off Darby's harbor, N. F., and was wrecked. The flyers were unhurt. Co-pilot Petersen's own story of their thrilling adventure follows:

BY CARL PETERSEN.

DARBY'S HARBOR, N. F., Aug. 24.—We are both feeling fine today after a good night's rest and are being well taken care of by friendly people.

We fought forty-five hours of wind from Prince Edward Island to Newfoundland. Coming down the coast toward this place we ran into a rain storm and heavy fog, which we tried to avoid by going around and about, but the fog and rain closed us in entirely. At 5,000 feet it was snowing.

Miss Mountain by Inches.

The engine started missing and we went lower. Then the engine finally stopped. Solberg found a hole in the fog and we saw the dim outlines of four lights. Going lower we saw the water in the dim light, which proved to come from the fishing vessels lying on both sides of Paradise bay.

Circling down for a landing in the water, Solberg suddenly saw the dark outline of a mountain. Like a flashing light, he banked the ship to the west, barely missing the mountain wall by a few inches.

In the sharp bank, the left wing tip struck the water first, went down in the water to the middle of the fuselage and settled with the tail straight up in the air, Solberg, luckily, had taken off his belt so he could move. His first thought was of getting through the open window on the left side. To the right of him everything was piled up.

Oil Can Saves Life.

One oil can broke loose and several packages barely missed him on his way over the top of the tank and out of the top over the pilot's seat. One oil can was secured to the fuselage on the left front side of the tank. This protected Solberg and probably saved his life.

He got out and swam under the wings and came up hollering for me. By that time I also got through the fuselage, after being thrown against the main gas tank and into the water with all the equipment on top of me.

Out on the wing tip we both shook hands, happy to see each other alive without serious injuries. We cannot yet understand how we escaped death. Had we struck the mountain nothing would have been left either of us or of the plane, which probably would have exploded.

Saved by Fishermen.

Our radio equipment was entirely out of order. We saw a light moving in the distance and we started shouting for help. I saw a flashlight in the fuselage and managed to work my way to it. With this we started signaling.

Two fishermen, Thomas and James Dunphy, directed by our flashlight, finally reached us after half an hour's rowing and we were brought here. We are being taken good care of by the Dunphy family, who treat us like their own. They said it was the darkest night they had seen.

After changing our clothes we went out and towed the plane into the harbor, where we now have it on the beach.

Hutchinsons at Anticosti.

FORT MENIER, Anticositi Island, Aug. 24.—(AP)—The "flying Hutchinsons" completed the second lap of their flight across the north Atlantic to London today when they landed here at 4:45 p. m., Chicago daylight saving time, from St. John, N. B.

George Hutchinson, his wife, two daughters and a crew of four, brought the huge amphibion "City of Richmond" down on the waters of the harbor 3 hours and 3 minutes after they left St. John, a distance of 325 miles across the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Hutchinson said, after stretching his legs, that the silver and black Sikorsky had been benefited by helpful winds for three-quarters of the distance and the weather was fine and clear.

If the weather is propitious the party may take off tomorrow for Labrador, whence their route will take them over Greenland, Iceland, and the Faroe islands on a tour of Europe.

Third Plane Poised for Hop.

HARBOR GRACE, N. F., Aug. 24.—(AP)—The airplane The Green Mountain Boy, which carried Clyde Lee and John Bochkon, American aviators, from Barre, Vt., to this point, is poised here tonight to hop off for Oslo, Norway, tomorrow morning.

The flyers, on their way from Vermont, battled a heavy fog for several hours last night as they searched for the Harbor Grace landing field. They brought their plane down safely on the beach at Burgeo after deciding not to risk all hopes of a trans-Atlantic venture on an effort to find Harbor Grace.

The airmen spent the night in their plane. At daybreak they let some of the air out of the tires, so the wheels might grip the loose sand, and finished their journey to Harbor Grace.

HUNT AND LENOX LEAD AIR DERBIES AS LAST LAPS START TODAY

Bartlesville, Okla., Aug. 24.—(AP)—East met west here tonight when Roy Hunt, Norman, Okla., and Chappy Lenox of New Haven, Conn., led their respective air caravans of the national air derbies into Bartlesville. Tomorrow the contingents will race together toward Cleveland, with stops at Jefferson City, Mo., and East St. Louis, Ill.

Following Lenox in the Washington to Cleveland race was J. D. Hayes, Ponca City, Okla., and third was J. D. Crane, New Haven, Conn. P. A. Sturdevant, Elmhurst, Ill., was seventh, and C. L. Clabaugh, Glenview, Ill., ninth.

Hunt, Los Angeles to Cleveland leader, added 525 points to his point total in the day and took the lead from young Eldon Cessna of Wichita, Kas., airplane designer.

Hunt's point total was announced here as 1,190 to 962.76 for Cessna. Art Carnahan of Bloomington, Ill., held third place with 633 points.

Thirteen planes in the western flight were thrown far off their starting schedule by a hitch in refueling operations at Oklahoma City this afternoon. As a result the day's last lap was disregarded and th estandings at Oklahoma City made final for the day.

DOOLITTLE OUT OF NONSTOP RACE AFTER CRACKUP

Wichita, Kas., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Maj. James J. Doolittle, whose speed plane was damaged in a landing here yesterday, announced today he would not compete in the nonstop race from Burbank, Cal., to the national air races at Cleveland. Doolittle, winner of the race last year when he established a new west-east transcontinental flight record of 11 hours and 11 minutes, said his ship could not be repaired in time to make the start from the Pacific coast Sunday.

He declined several offers to fly other racing planes, but expressed the hope that his plane could be reconditioned for entry in the speed races at Cleveland next week.

Doolittle was forced to land the ship on its fuselage when the retractable landing gear stuck while in the air.

EDITH M'CORMICK IS RESTING EASY; GAINS RETAINED

As the condition of Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick continued unchanged yesterday in the Drake hotel, where she has been gravely ill for several weeks, the possibility faded that her 93 year old father might attempt the trip to Chicago to visit her. The patient was reported by physicians to be maintaining the increased vitality she exhibited after a relapse on Saturday night, and was said to be resting more easily than at any time for weeks. Although her condition continues critical, it was considered unlikely that any decided change would occur within the next few days.

Suit Is Started

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Charlie Chaplin filed suit today in an attempt to bait film careers planned for his two small sons by his former wife, Lita Grey Chaplin.

His attorneys petitioned Superior Judge H. Parker Wood to hold a hearing Saturday morning on modification of an interlocutory divorce decree that gave Mrs. Chaplin complete custody of the children.

The property settlement in which the film comedian established a $200,000 trust fund for his sons prohibits Mrs. Chaplin, according to the comedian's attorney, Lloyd Wright, from "employing, apprenticing, or hiring out" the two boys, Charles Jr., 7, and Sydney Earl, 6, without the father's consent.

A series of scenarios featuring the mother and boys is being prepared.

"Seems that Charlie got excited because Lita wants to make a few stray dollars," said W. I. Gilbert, attorney for Mrs. Chaplin.

"I don't know enough about the law to worry," Mrs. Chaplin said. "I suppose this will just hold up the picture a little. I can't see why he should oppose the contract."

AMELIA EARHART HOPS FOR COAST TO COAST NONSTOP AIR RECORD

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 24.—(AP)—High over the deserts and mountains of the west, Amelia Earhart Putnam was flying tonight toward New Jersey, hopeful of setting the first woman's transcontinental nonstop flight record.

She took off from the municipal airport here at 12:26:54 p. m. (Pacific standard time) in the fast little monoplane that carried her across the Atlantic. Her course was straight for Albuquerque, N. M., thence for St. Louis and over the airways via Columbus, O., to Newark, N. J.

She hoped to reach the New Jersey goal in the forenoon tomorrow. She carried 40 gallons more of gas than on the attempt three weeks ago, when she was forced to set her ship down in Columbus, O., with a faulty gas line.

Reported Over Texas.

Amarillo, Tex., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Mrs. Amelia Earhart Putnam, flying from Los Angeles to Newark, N. J., was reported over Amarillo at 10:10 p. m. [C. S. T.] tonight.

Sprague, commissioner of public works, notified City Controller Szymczak yesterday that he will turn back into the city treasury his $10,000 salary, serving without compensation from July 1. The commissioner gave as his reason his appointment by the federal court as one of the receivers of the Chicago Rapid Transit lines, for which a compensation was fixed by the court.

SPAIN'S TRIBUNAL DEBATES ON FATE OF FALLEN HERO

BY JAY ALLEN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MADRID, Aug. 25 (Thursday, 4 a. m.)—Heavily guarded against the mounting ire of the masses, Gen. José Sanjurjo and his accomplices in the recent monarchist revolt were put back in prison last night after their trial. There they await the verdict over which six magistrates of the military section of the Supreme court were still puzzling at 3:30 o'clock this morning. The magistrates at that time announced that they would need at least three more hours to reach a decision.

The republican government is going through one of its darkest hours. It is faced with making a decision as to which will be worse for the republic—to shoot Gen. Sanjurjo or to send him into exile on an island for life. It would not be for life, however, because in the next election some monarchist constituency could send him to parliament.

Masses Demand Death.

Sentiment for Sanjurjo's death has grown throughout the country. Telegrams are pouring in to deputies and ministers alike demanding a firing squad. The liberal element, which a week ago wanted clemency, now asks execution, claiming that the republic's existence is in danger if the growing elements opposed to it can always find a general to lead a revolt without fear of punishment.

THE TRIBUNE correspondent is informed that thus far only two ministers want a firing squad. The majority, including Premier Manuel Azana and President Alcala Zamora may stand on their humanitarian principles and decide to refuse to create a martyr and a hero by shooting the dropsical playboy who is the ranking general in the Spanish army. Influential elements last night in parliament claimed that the only alternative to a firing squad was dissolution of the army, whose officers are still considered some 70 per cent anti-republican.

Fear Revolt in North.

What would make Sanjurjo's execution a certainty would be a revolt in the north, which the republican authorities in Valladolid, San Sebastian, Vittoria, and Bilbao last night took precautions to meet. Arms were issued to 300 loyal republicans at San Sebastian, and in other towns republican forces were mobilized. The only justification for these warlike preparations are rumors.

The republic tried the fallen general, who has come to be a symbol not only of the old régime but of a class that stubbornly refuses to accept the new, with the utmost solemnity.

There was not a uniform to be seen in the Supreme court's magnificent hall, where for the first time a Spanish general faced civilian judges in what was, however, essentially a summary court martial.

Trial Devoid of Oratory.

Today's proceedings were almost devoid of oratory. The frail, white bearded prosecutor for the republic, Martinos Aragon, wearing a black toga and bonnet, spoke ever so mildly.

"It is a sad moment for me when the necessities of the national life make me accuse men of valor whom I admire," he said. "I am moved by the sight of the decorations these men are entitled to wear. But I am obliged to say that Gen. Sanjurjo was disloyal. His gesture on Aug. 10 was a crime. Patriotism for the army is what the sovereign parliament dictates, and nothing else. It is hard for me, so near the end of my life, to ask the death penalty. But I ask it."

Gen. Sanjurjo sat hunched, pouch-eyed and sallow, while the old man invoked the republic's justice. Only his sleekly tailored brown suit and the oily gloss of his thinning black hair recalled the hero dandy, once such a figure in the night life of Madrid.

Only twice did he break a sleepy silence, once to correct his defense lawyer, the venerable Francisco Bergamin, and once to waive the right to make a personal plea to the six magistrates sitting above him.

Try to Burn U. S. Consulate.

SEVILLE, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Unidentified persons attempted to burn the American consulate here during the night. The flames were extinguished before serious damage had been done. Part of the building was drenched with gasoline and ignited.

BEE STINGS KILL HORSES; SWARM ATTACKS BABY

Bees on Phone Pole Baffle Linemen.

A swarm of bees stung a baby nearly to death yesterday. Another swarm killed a team of horses and stung a farm hand who tried to save them.

Clarence Knowles, 18 months old, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Knowles of Joliet, suffered 75 stings when he thrust his fist into a bee hive at Mullken, Mich. His cousin, Murrill Woolpert, picked him up and brushed the bees off in a rose bush. The child was brought back to his home for treatment. He will recover.

Horses Stung to Death.

The two horses were stung to death on the John Meyers farm, nine miles northwest of Joliet, on Tuesday night. Claude Fuller, the hired man, was driving the team past an inclosure which fenced in nine beehives. The horses were stung several times and plunged into the inclosure, smashing the hives. Fuller fled and was unhurt, but Meyers was seriously stung while trying to save the team from the swarm.

Bee Expert to Rescue.

In Chicago an all day battle was waged to drive a swarm of bees from a junction box on top of a telephone pole at the rear of 3301 West 66th street. The bees scattered a crew of telephone repairmen and withstood a siege until late in the afternoon when the telephone company obtained the services of Herbert Fink, 7210 South Troy street, a bee expert. Fink put on a hood and climbed the pole. He found 20 pounds of honey in the box, captured the swarm and took it home with him.

CERMAK PLEDGED GERMANY'S HELP FOR WORLD FAIR

Confers with Chancellor in Bismarck's Palace.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 24.—Mayor Cermak of Chicago today received a promise from Chancellor von Papen to do everything in his power to increase the German participation in the Century of Progress at Chicago next year. The mayor conferred with the head of the German cabinet in Bismarck's former palace, which is the temporary headquarters of President von Hindenburg when he is here. The mayor was accompanied by Lieutenant Commander E. D. Langworthy, who is in Europe in behalf of the World's Fair.

Von Papen asked Cermak to convey greetings and good wishes to Franklin D. Roosevelt, the Democratic presidential candidate, whom he knew in Washington, D. C., in the early days of the war.

Sees Police Stations.

This afternoon the chief of police showed Mayor Cermak Berlin's new stations for riot squads. The riot cars impressed the mayor, who thought he might copy them for Chicago since "they are light of construction and more practical than ours."

This evening the mayor visited THE TRIBUNE'S office to listen to his own speech over the radio about the Centennial Exposition. The speech was recorded on wax records and was broadcast tonight by all stations in Germany.

Gets 132 Year Old Stein.

The mayor dined in an old inn on Unter den Linden, where the host was so proud of the mayor's visit that he gave him an old stein which had been in his family since 1800.

Cermak's huge pile of mail today included a letter and a ten mark bill [$2.38] from a German mother. The letter asked the mayor to take the bill to her son, who is employed in Chicago.

The mayor and his party will leave for Lucerne tomorrow afternoon.

GOV. ROOSEVELT BARS "EVIDENCE" OF "G. O. P. PLOT"

Eight Walker Witnesses Are Excused.

BY TOM PETTEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Albany, N. Y., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—Gov. Franklin D. Roosevelt today scotched a move to turn the Walker removal hearing into a political holiday. The Democratic presidential candidate in carefully chosen words denied John J. Curtin, chief counsel for the New York mayor, the right to introduce evidence that the Hofstadter legislative committee and the entire case against Mayor Walker were born of a Republican plot to embarrass Democratic leaders and their candidate, for President.

"Testimony regarding the motives of members of the legislature," said the governor, "is wholly irrelevant to the purpose of this hearing."

Eight Republican state senators who had been summoned to Albany by Mayor Walker in the hope that he could direct the fire toward other quarters were excused and the hearing in the executive chamber resumed its beaten track.

Filibuster at Night Session.

A night session called by Gov. Roosevelt in an attempt to speed up the hearing developed into a filibuster by Mr. Curtin soon after it got under way at 8 o'clock. The Walker lawyer made another move to introduce the "Republican plot" evidence through the medium of Walter Hyam, owner of a press clipping bureau and received the same adverse ruling that he had earlier in the day.

Mr. Curtin then put John H. Delaney, chairman of the New York board of transportation on the stand and began a tedious examination of the witness, stopping for a half hour at a time to read from six thick transit board reports. Every one in the room began to nod.

Nine Witnesses Heard.

Nine witnesses were heard during the day session and three of them had never testified previously in the Walker case. They were Hector Fuller, one of the city hall's best greeters, and Louis London and William Wagner, a couple of pals of the late Senator Bernard Downing, who has been named as the man who handled the cash on the Walker tour of Europe in 1927.

A taximan took the stand at the opening of the session and was followed by Harry J. Rosenblum, secretary of the Reliance Bronze and Steel company, who told of winning a city lighting contract. Charles Schluter of the workmen's compensation bureau and Dr. E. S. Potter, a city surgeon, defended the mayor's brother, Dr. William Walker, who has been charged with fee splitting and waxing rich on city medical cases.

Curtin Sounds Warning.

During the morning a warning that if Mayor Walker were removed "financial and political chaos would follow in New York City" was issued by Mr. Curtin in a brief filed in the state Supreme court.

Offering the document before Justice Ellis J. Staley in substantiation that the removal proceedings are unconstitutional, Mr. Curtin avowed that the ousting of Mayor Walker would create such confusion that the city would be unable to borrow funds from the banks because of fear of the legal status of the obligations. The entire city government, Mr. Curtin pleaded, would be prevented from functioning because of the doubt about the legality of the removal.

The suit of the mayor is being contested in behalf of the governor by Henry Epstein, assistant attorney general. He has already filed a brief holding that the governor does not recognize the authority of any court to limit his powers.

"The story told by Mr. Fuller of "arrangements for the mayor's European tour" was the most illuminating testimony of the day. Mr. Fuller and the two witnesses who followed him were called in an attempt to prove that a man now dead, Senator Downing, had collected a pool of $10,000 to defray the personal expenses of the tour, the general expenses of which were being paid by Rodman Wanamaker. Seabury has charged the actual letter of credit was bought by J. Allen Smith of the Equitable Coach company.

Mr. Fuller spoke with a broad English accent and talked of pounds. His weatherbeaten face was lined in a smile during his direct testimony to Mr. Curtin, but he scowled when led back over his story by Samuel Seabury and Gov. Roosevelt.

Mayor Puts Up $3,000.

Mr. Fuller said the mayor put up $3,000 and that he put up $1,000. Under cross-examination he said he had no bank account at the time and carried all of his money in his pocket. The $1,000, Fuller said, was cash from a salary check. The witness told of his various press agent jobs and said his connections with the city hall had always been "semi-official."

Mr. London and Mr. Wagner told stories of having been with the late Senator Downing in an east side oyster bar "a couple of nights" before the ocean voyage began. They related seeing the senator with a "big roll of bills" and hearing him explain that he was "collecting from the members of the Walker party for a pool to defray personal expenses."

State Senator on Stand.

The high point in the day's proceedings came when Walter W. Westall, Republican state senator from Westchester county, was sworn in as a witness. The witness was shown a number of newspaper clippings. Gov. Roosevelt interrupted, knowing the attempt to show the ouster case as a Republican plot was about to begin.

"For what purpose is the witness being shown that paper?" asked the governor.

"To get to the source, the genesis of these charges," replied Mr. Curtin. "If the source comes from an enemy you ought to know it; whether it is a personal or political enemy.

Charges Partisan Motive.

"I say to you that these charges had a partisan, political motive behind them and operated from the beginning to the end on that—on their own statements, not on anybody else's. I want to show the genesis of this whole Hofstadter meeting, who inspired and who brought it about."

Gov. Roosevelt resorted to one of his characteristic gestures. He plucked at his left ear with his right hand, rubbing it until it reddened. Then, reading from a notebook, he said:

"Mr. Curtin, I am dealing here with charges filed against the mayor and with the mayor's defense of these charges. The motives actuating those who may or may not have exerted influence on members of the legislature to obtain the adoption of the resolution that brought the legislature committee into being are, in my judgment, wholly irrelevant to the purpose of the hearing.

"The same thing is true in my judgment as to the motives of members of the legislature themselves, members belonging to both parties who voted either for or against the resolution.

"Such motives might be of importance if the persons entertaining them had been witnesses before the committee. No testimony as to motives of the members of the legislature will be received by me. No, I cannot permit questions of any witnesses along the lines you propose."

The political leaders excused included Kingsland Macy, Republican state leader; John Knight, Samuel Koenig, Seabury Mastick, Fred Bradley and Samuel Hofstader, head of the investigating committee.

Cab Operator Testifies.

E. Edward Schindler, taxicab operator, was the first witness. The taxi man did not interest Gov. Roosevelt and was excused after a few sentences of praise for Mayor Walker's taxi control board.

Harry J. Rosenblum, secretary of the Reliance Bronze and Steel corporation, followed. Mr. Rosenblum, a flaming red haired chap, testified regarding city contracts. He said J. A. Sisto had never approached him on any matter. Rosenblum testified his company had made a profit of only $2,500 on a contract for 5th avenue traffic light towers. He said the contract had been obtained by competitive bidding.

Edward P. Mulrooney, New York police commissioner, who has been waiting in Albany for three days, testified regarding the purchase of the bronze standards for the Fifth avenue traffic lights. It took him only three minutes to dispose of the charge the mayor had been interested in the contract.

Routine Matter, He Says.

"The purchase of the light standards was only a routine police matter," said Mr. Mulrooney.

Hector Fuller, a gentleman of many duties at city hall, took the stand and told of his ability as a scroll reader and writer and of the many city keys he had presented to distinguished guests. Mr. Fuller went to Europe in 1927 with the mayor as his "guest."

Mr. Curtin asked Fuller about the pooling of funds for the European tour. Mr. Fuller told of the mayor's party raising a pool of $10,000 to defray "personal expenses." He said the mayor put in $3,000 and that he put up $1,000.

The late Senator Bernard Downing had charge of the fund while abroad and, Mr. Fuller said, asked him for additional funds. He never put up anything else.

Only 2 in Pool Living.

There was considerable interest in Mr. Fuller's testimony as he and Mayor Walker are the only persons alive who are known to have put money into the traveling fund. Others in the pool have since died.

Mr. Seabury led Mr. Fuller through a detailed account of how much of the pool he spent on the trip. It developed that Mr. Fuller had no bank account at the time of the European jaunt, but that he had one several years before and now has one.

Gov. Roosevelt questioned Fuller closely regarding his practice of keeping his money in his pocket. It developed that Fuller had a "desk" at home which also served as a bank. This desk held the funds for the family which was made up of three sons and six grandchildren.

The witness told of his various jobs as "director of publicity" and said his position at city hall was never more than "semi-official."

Mr. Fuller knew nothing of the letter of credit issued by the Equitable Trust company, he said, and insisted that "I have no idea" who made up the deficit upon the return from Europe.

A part of the examination of Mr. Fuller by Mr. Seabury follows:

Q.—So, when you embarked on your trip, you had your 100 pound note and in addition you had your thousand dollars? A.—No I had given it to Senator Downing.

Q.—And your hundred pound note, you say, was required in crossing? A.—It was spending money.

Q.—Spending money on board the ship? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—So that, when you got to the other side, the 100 pound note was gone? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Did you have any receptacle in your home in which you kept cash? A.—Only the usual receptacles.

Q.—What is the usual receptacle in your home in which you keep cash? A.—If I had cash in my home I would keep it in my desk.

Q.—Do you know Senator Hastings? A.—No, sir.

Q.—Never met him? A.—Never met him.

Q.—And how long have you known the mayor? A.—For about six months prior to his incumbency of office.

Quizzed About Checks.

Q.—Just one other question, if I may. For how long a period was it your custom to reduce your salary checks to cash? A.—I don't quite understand that.

Q.—You told us a moment ago that when you got your salary checks, you cashed the check, didn't you? A.—Yes.

Q.—Is that right? A.—Certainly.

Q.—Now, how long was it your custom to cash your checks in that way? A.—Why, is it not a custom? One always cashes one's checks, don't they?

Q.—Don't they sometimes deposit it? A.—O, if they have a bank account.

Q.—Didn't you have a bank account? A.—Well, I have one now. I didn't have one at that particular time.

Long Without Bank Account.

Q.—Prior to that time you hadn't had a bank account for how long? A.—For a long period.

Q.—Several years? A.—Yes, several years.

Q.—Where did you usually cash these salary checks? A.—As a matter of fact, I think I cashed them at the American Car and Foundry company when I was working for that company.

Q.—And then after that, where? A.—I don't remember.

Q.—That is all.

Examination by Gov. Roosevelt:

Q.—Mr. Fuller, in 1929 did you have any dependents? A.—I beg your pardon.

Q.—Did you have any dependents in 1929, any family dependents upon you for support? A.—Three sons, six grandchildren.

Q.—And what was your position with Mr. Woodin's company. A.—Public relations.

Q.—Publicity man? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—And when were you paid by them—first of each month? A.—I am not quite certain, sir, whether it was the first or twice a month.

Q.—You were always paid by check? A.—Yes, sir.

Q.—Was it your custom to cash those checks immediately on receiving them? A.—Not necessarily. I often drew $200 or $300 during the month in advance. Whenever I had occasion for money I would get it from the treasurer.

Q.—Did you help to make up the over-expenditure on your return from Europe? A.—I did not, sir.

Q.—You didn't contribute anything to that? A.—No, sir.

London Tells of Funds.

Louis London, who described himself as an intimate friend of Senator Downing, gave an account of the European trip funds.

He saw the senator at Billy the oyster man's restaurant prior to the time of the European trip. The senator had a large amount of money.

"I said, 'where did you get that roll of bills?'"

"The senator told me he had collected it from those going on the mayor's European jaunt as cashier, and that most of them had paid up."

"Did you ever sit at the table with Senator Downing?" asked Gov. Roosevelt.

"No, never," replied the witness.

Mr. Seabury then took over the questioning of the witness. It did not take Mr. Seabury long to get the witness in an angry mood. Seabury brought out that London had never communicated his information to the committee and now, at this late time, was appearing as a Walker witness.

This is the story told by Mr. London:

"While having dinner one night with Mrs. London and Mr. Silverman, my son-in-law, at Billy the oyster man's I was sitting next to a table occupied by the late senator. I noticed that he was about getting through with his meal. We just came in and sat down. He took out a large roll of money, pulled out a bill and paid the waiter. I happened to catch his glance and I winked at him. He nodded. He paid the check and then he came over to our table. He greeted Mrs. London; I introduced him to Mr. Silverman, my son-in-law.

"Then jokingly he remarked that a real job was wished on him as collector as well as treasurer of a fund. Then he told us about the trip he was to take to Europe. I said to him, 'What is the idea of carrying so much money with you?' I said, 'Get yourself a letter of credit or money orders.' He said, 'That is just the point. This afternoon I was supposed to meet somebody who was supposed to have gotten a letter of credit and I missed him; have to carry the money with me till tomorrow morning.' He said, 'The funniest part I may be held up.' I says, 'No chance, senator, with your secretary [who was acting more or less like a body guard] strong enough.' I says, 'Don't fear that.' With that we wished him a happy journey and safe return and he left us in a happy frame of mind as he always did.'"

Before Trip to Europe.

MR. CURTIN—Now after—that was some time before the trip? A.—Some time in August, 1927.

Q.—Now, after he returned did you see Senator Downing? A.—I did.

Q. — When and where and under what circumstances? A.—I met him one evening. It was either before or after election on East Broadway. I think it was on the corner of the John F. Ahern clubhouse. I have a friend living right next door and I was walking with him to his home and I greeted the senator, "Good evening, Mr. Cashier," and I asked him how he enjoyed the trip. He says "Fine." He said, "The only thing about it, the boys spent too much money. Now, I have another job to try to collect the balance."

MR. SEABURY—Try to do what? A.—Tryin gto collect the balance. I told him, I says, "You will have no trouble doing that." He said, "Yes, but it takes up a lot of your time and never again." I wish the senator was here today; it would save us a lot of trouble. Too bad the man is not living.

Testifies on Doctors' Fees.

Charles Schluter, clerk in the workmen's compensation bureau in the municipal building, testified regarding the payment of doctors' bills in connection with the charges that the mayor's brother, Dr. William H. Walker, had split fees.

The witness said there were six city doctors in the different districts and that each took care of workmen's compensation cases in his own territory. The fee, he said, for ordinary cases was $2 to $3 in the office and $3 to $5 if called to a home.

Gov. Roosevelt was interested in the "checkup" of city patients who "kept going and going" to the doctor. "Only physical examination by the doctor," replied the witness. "We take the doctor's word. They won't risk their reputations by running up bills."

Dr. E. S. Potter, general surgeon in the city employ, testified his income was about $10,000 a year. He told of the routine of handling workmen's compensation cases under questioning by Mr. Curtin.

Roosevelt Gives Views on Dry Law in New Jersey Saturday

New York, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Gov. Roosevelt will make his personal bid for the Presidency in 10 to 12 major speeches, his campaign manager, James A. Farley, announced today.

He will fire what was called "his prohibition broadside" on Saturday when he addresses a mass reception at Seagirt, N. J. Mr. Roosevelt will speak at 2 p. m. [E. S. T.].

His appeal to the New England states, three of which opposed him at the Chicago convention, will be made in a speech in Massachusetts.

The Democratic standard bearer will wind up his stumping at Madison Square Garden, with a message for his own state, which has 47 electoral votes.

Another prominent Democrat was added to the list of Roosevelt-Garner orators when it was announced that Bainbridge Colby, secretary of state under President Wilson, will address a Democratic gathering at Youngstown, O., Saturday.

As the campaign leaders continued their drive to line up all those who opposed Roosevelt at Chicago, Peter G. Gerry, former senator from Rhode Island, conferred with Farley and pledged his active support to the ticket. Gerry was one of "Al" Smith's most ardent supporters on the floor of the national convention.

A claim that Kentucky will give the Democratic ticket a majority of at least 75,000 was made by Mrs. Sam Connor, national committeewoman from that state, who conferred with leaders at headquarters.

While Farley was writing the talk he will deliver tomorrow night, when he, the governor and the two finance committee heads make an appeal for party funds, the Democratic money raisers held a long conference.

Among those present was Vincent Astor, wealthy and socially prominent member of the Astor family in America, and James W. Gerard, former national committee treasurer.

N. Y. MEDICAL BOARD CHILLY TO CHARGES AGAINST DR. WALKER

New York, Aug. 24.—[Special.]—The grievance committee of the state board of medical examiners did not give a very cordial reception today to charges preferred against Dr. William Walker, brother of the mayor, by Paul Blanshard, executive secretary of city affairs committee.

Eight members of the committee sat at the preliminary hearing and from their remarks it was inferred they were not greatly impressed by the evidence of fee splitting against Dr. Walker and four city physicians brought out before the Hofstadter committee upon which Mr. Blanshard based his charges.

"It appears to me," remarked Dr. Moses Keschner, acting chairman of the committee, after long arguments, "that you have no case against these doctors. It's up to you to produce the evidence if you have any. This is a judicial body."

The examiners made it very plain they knew all about fee splitting and were not disposed to regard the statements of laymen on the subject as carrying much weight.

The committee took under advisement the question of whether charges shall be preferred before the full grievance committee. There will be no decision for at least two weeks.

DAVIS AND SACKETT ON INTERNATIONAL ECONOMIC COMMITTEE

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—Norman H. Davis, New York financier, and Frederick Moseley Sackett, American ambassador to Germany, were named today by the state department as the United States representatives on the organization committee for the international economic conference sponsored by the league of nations. The committee is expected to meet in September, although the general conference may not be held until January.

Mr. Davis is at present one of the delegates to the league's disarmament conference now in recess.

No information as to the date or location for the projected economic conference was available today.

3 FILM OFFICIALS HOOVER GUESTS AT LUNCHEON

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—(AP)—President Hoover had as luncheon guests today three prominent motion picture officials, one of whom said he brought optimistic reports from both business and political fields.

Those at the White House luncheon table were Louis B. Mayer of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Joseph M. Schenck of the United Artists Pictures, and J. Walter Rubin, a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer official.

Mayer said he gathered from Mr. Hoover's conversation that business conditions were improving and that this coincided with reports he himself was receiving. He added he was "more hopeful" about the motion picture industry.

WEISMULLER'S ACTRESS WIFE TO SUE FOR DIVORCE

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 24.—(AP)—The approaching end of the marriage of Johnny Weissmuller, swimmer-actor, and Bobbe Arnst, musical comedy actress, was announced here today.

Miss Arnst's attorney said a private property settlement was being made and that his client would sue for divorce as soon as the negotiations were completed. He said he did not believe Weissmuller, who became a motion picture actor after a notable championship career as a swimmer, would contest the action.

Weissmuller and Miss Arnst met at Miami, Fla., on St. Valentine's day, 1931, and married two weeks later.

Denies Any Violation of Kellogg Treaty.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Aug. 25 [Thursday].—Japan is preparing to recognize the new government of Manchoukuo [Manchuria]. Foreign Minister Count Yasyua Uchida formally announced this to the special assembly of the diet this morning.

COUNT UCHIDA. [H. & E. Photo.]

In a 12 page exposition of Japan's position on the Manchurian question, the count said his country had been vainly patient for 20 years waiting for China to maintain peace. Finally, he said, Japan had acted, and he contended that his nation did not violate the Kellogg-Briand anti-war pact by going into Manchuria last September, and that in recognizing Manchoukuo Japan does not violate the stipulations of the nine power treaty.

No Mention of "Monroe Doctrine."

Contrary to expectations, Count Uchida did not pronounce a "Monroe Doctrine of the orient." In fact, he did not mention relations with the United States, soviet Russia, or other foreign countries, thus setting a precedent for a foreign minister's address to the diet.

This silence, however, still left in the foreground the Japanese furore which was a sequel to the address by American Secretary of State Stimson in New York on Aug. 8.

That speech, with the quotation, "moral disapproval, when it becomes the disapproval of the whole world, takes on a significance hitherto unknown in international law," the Japanese construed as a charge of Japanese aggression in Manchuria. As an example, the American secretary had referred to the American protest to Japan against the hostilities in China.

Calls "Peace Machinery" Hopeless.

In contrast to this, Count Uchida declared:

"No remedy can be effected in China by having recourse either to the covenant of the league of nations or any other organ of what is termed the 'machinery of peace.'"

He was emphatic that the solution of the Manchurian question lies between Japan, Manchoukuo, and China.

"The Japanese government is convinced that recognition of this new state is the only means of stabilizing the conditions of Manchuria and of establishing conditions of permanent peace in the far east," Count Uchida declared. "And it is with a view to early extension of formal recognition to Manchoukuo that we are making various arrangements, upon expected completion of which in the near future our plan will be carried through."

Clarifies Japan's Position.

The count then proceeded to clarify Japan's attitude toward China and the measures Japan has taken since the incidents of Sept. 18, when the Japanese seized Mukden following an attempt to wreck the railway there.

Uchida blamed "the chaotic conditions in China and the so-called revolutionary policy, under the enthralling influence of extravagant political dogma," for the unfortunate turn of international relations in the far east. Japan was the chief victim, he said, and it was here that he referred to the impotence of "the machinery of peace."

"It has been the practice of powers, as has been demonstrated on innumerable occasions, to repair or prevent injuries to their important rights and interests in China by direct application of force, without relying upon those instruments of peace," he said

"Japan Patient 20 Years."

Japan, he declared, was patient for 20 years, waiting for China to play her proper rôle in the maintenance of peace in the far east. Then the incident of Sept. 18 came as a measure of self-defense.

"There are those who argue as though the action of Japan were a violation of the Kellogg-Briand anti war pact," the count concluded. "But such contention has no foundation in fact Japan has been forced to adopt the necessary measures for the prevention of wanton attacks upon imporant rights and interests vital to her national existence.

"The anti-war pact does not put restraint upon the exercise of the right of self defense in such a case. And obviously, exercise of the right of self defense may extend beyond the territory of the power which exercises that right. Japan's action is essentially identical with the action that other powers have taken elsewhere in similar circumstances."

Traces Fall of Old Régime.

Count Uchida pointed to Marshal Chang Hsueh-liang's loss of power and the flight of the Manchurian war lord. People of Manchuria, he declared, long had resented the tyranny of the Changs [meaning Chang tso-lin, young Chang's father]. A "peace maintenance committee" was formed following Chang's flight, he said, and Japan gave its coöperation. The committee decided that the hour had come for founding a new state. The establishment of Manchoukuo was purely the outcome of a separatist movement, the count declared.

Cites Other Similar Cases.

"Again, as regards those who fancy they detect a secret connection of some sort on the part of Japan with the foundation of the new state, basing their suspicions on the fact that there are a number of Japanese in the employ of the Manchoukuo government, I need only to point to the existence of many precedents for enlistment by a young government or a newly founded state of services of foreigners.

"The view expressed in certain quarters that recognition of the new state would constitute a violation of the stipulations of the nine power treaty is, in my opinion, incomprehensible. The nine power treaty does not forbid all separatist movements in China or debar the Chinese in any part of the country from setting up on their free will an independent state.

"The Japanese government attaches the greatest importance to the following two points:

"1. We should aim at the fulfillment of the legitimate aspirations of the Manchurian people, with adequate guarantees for the rights and interests of Japan; and at the prevention, to make Manchuria a safe place to live, of any recurrence of the former anti-foreign policy.

"2. Such solution should be effected by rejecting all sentimental propositions and abstract theories and arrived at upon the basis of the realities of the situation.

"It is as clear as day that to invest China with power over Manchuria is totally irreconcilable with the political creed enunciated in the declaration of independence and other public statements of the Manchoukuo government. Such investment would only sow seeds of future trouble."

FINLAND TO DECLARE AMNESTY FOR 20,000 DRY LAW VIOLATORS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Aug. 24.—Twenty thousand Finnish citizens who are awaiting punishment for violations of the prohibition law, which was repealed some months ago, today heard the cheering report that they would escape prison sentences.

The Finnish prisons are already overcrowded and the authorities declare that they are unable to provide further accommodation. As a result, the minister of justice is preparing to decree a mass amnesty for the offenders.

YOUNG EXPLORER DROWNS; CANOE UPSETS IN ARCTIC

COPENHAGEN, Denmark, Aug. 24.—H. G. Watkins, 25 year old British explorer, drowned off the East Greenland coast while on a seal hunt, it was learned today. The meager reports received indicate that a kayak, an Eskimo canoe, in which Watkins was hunting, capsized and caused his death.

Watkins, the leader of the party which rescued Augustine Courtauld, a fellow explorer and scientist, from the Greenland ice cap in May of last year, was also engaged in research work investigating the possibility of establishing an air base for a Europe to Canada arctic route.

Midlothian Youth Kills Self Over Love Affair

Despondent over a love affair, Howard Jamison, 22 years old, shot himself near the heart in his room at 149th street and 49th avenue, Midlothian, last night. He was taken to the Oak Forest infirmary in a serious condition. Jamison, a wagon driver, left a long letter addressed to Miss Marie Isler, 21 years old, of 13400 Rexford road, Blue Island, expressing his love for her. Miss Isler told police later that she had met Jamison ten months ago but had recently stopped seeing him.

Los Angeles, Cal., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Two Negro bank robbers were shot and killed and H. R. Reed, teller, was wounded critically today when five Negroes attempted to hold up the Bank of America branch. W. TELLS HOW U. S. HITS 'FORGOTTEN BUSINESS MAN'

Shannon Demands End of Government Competition.

ing "patrons" that they might buy tires and tubes at half the usual retail prices, but to keep it under their hats. "Hold this strictly confidential," the letter closed.

"There," said Shannon, "is a document that speaks for itself. No wonder the merchants who have been driven out of business at these naval stations call these government authorized stores 'bootleg' stores.

"Every naval base is honeycombed with these bootleg stores, sniping on the business of independent merchants who were formerly prosperous business men and are now being choked to death by the racketeering of Uncle Sam masquerading as a welfare worker or an efficiency expert.

"At Norfolk the competition is doubleheaded—two sets of government stores have developed, one for the officers, one for the minor employés. The private merchants said to us: 'We have to contend with two government bootleg stores running side by side, both reaching out and grabbing with the zest of old time Bowery haberdashers for the business that belongs legitimately to the citizens of Norfolk.'"

Mass Buying for Pay Rollers.

Operations of the Interstate Commerce commission at Washington in developing mass buying by the employes on the theory that pay rollers as a privileged class are entitled to get neccessaries of life cheaper than is the taxpayer, were described by Mr. Shannon. The commission has what is known as the In-Com-Co club for mass buying for its employes.

"One day they will buy their eggs by the carload," said Shannon. "Another day they will buy a carload of butter or linen. Everything is purchased in mass. Then it is taken out in government trucks and distributed. It cuts out the little dealer in these products. The employé gets his bacon and eggs at carload rates.

"When the merchants of Washington protested, the secretary of the commission wrote that the idea of mass buying was to 'create an improved morale.'

"There you have it in a nut shell. No doubt the morale of the government job holders has been sustained at a high pitch. But what has been done to keep up the morale of the little merchants across the streets, who pay taxes, and but for this mass buying by the government would get their share of the employes' business?

Cites Commissioners' Salaries.

"It would seem the salaries paid the employés—In this case of the eleven commissioners they are drawing $10,000 a year and at that particular time their salary was $12,000—ought to be sufficient to keep up their morale. Certainly they should not be permitted in the name of morale to cripple the man who is trying to make a living by engaging in trade and is a tax payer not a tax eater.

"You would not think the interstate commerce commission would be engaged in the business of selling butter, and eggs, and pillow slips. The idea they are developing is the Russian soviet idea. It does away with the middle man with a vengeance. It is in use in Washington today under the bureaucrats. Washington is a perfect hive of nosing-in agencies."

A contrast between the appropriation made for investigating prohibition and for inquiring into government competition with private business was made by Mr. Shannon.

"I understand the Wickersham committee was given $500,000," he said. "Our appropriation is only $10,000 and this is the most vital investigation there is."

In another place the speaker said:

"They have perfected the art of bureaucracy in Washington. The peak of perfection is reached when a dignified salary is attached to the head of the bureau; when special fiscal prerogatives in the purchase of living supplies are fixed and determined, and when the bureau achieves the assumption of the ancient doctrine of unimpeachable motives in the ruling head—'the king can do no wrong.'"

CHARGES PARCEL POST WARS ON PRIVATE EXPRESS

Shannon Committee Is Told of Competition.

South Bend, Ind., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—Testimony before the Shannon congressional committee here today that the United States postoffice department was ignoring the interstate commerce act to crush the private express companies inspired Representative Robert F. Rich [Rep., Pa.] to promise congressional action. Representative Rich will recommend that the parcel post service either readjust its rates or that Postmaster General Walter Brown be dismissed from service, he announced.

Hits Small Merchants.

Representative Rich and Representative Samuel B. Pettengill [Dem., Ind.] had been listening for two hours to E. L. Oliver of Cincinnati, representing the Brotherhood of Railway and Steamship Clerks in the private express company service. He charged that the government parcel post service was stifling the express companies not only with the aid of government subsidy, but by putting "drummers" on the road to solicit the business of merchants and manufacturers with a cut throat rate.

It was asserted that the parcel post business was playing into the hands of the mail order houses and wiping out the merchants in the small communities.

"This parcel post service seems to be a contributing factor to the present depression," observed Representative Pettengill. "These bureaucracies that know no politics are contributing to a jobless nation. Business should not have to meet the competition of mail order houses subsidized by low parcel post rates."

Wants Brown Fired.

Mr. Oliver cited the parcel post section of the interstate commerce act of 1912 which mandated the postmaster general to adjust rates to cover the cost of operation.

Apparently amazed, Representative Rich broke in:

"A postmaster general who won't obey the mandate of the law should be dismissed from service. I will recommend such action to congress unless the law is complied with and the rates adjusted to cover the cost of operation. The operation of a parcel post service with a constant deficit, that is relying on letter postage and taxes to mend the deficit, is forcing the taxpayers of this country to assume an unwarranted financial burden.

The employment of "drummers" to get parcel post business from manufacturers was pronounced "criminal," by Oliver, because they had to obtain from the postoffice department the names of users of the mail.

"If you or I did it we would be imprisoned," he said.

CALL FOR KAISER ADDED TO DIN OF GERMAN POLITICS

General Injects New Note in Hitlerite Row.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Aug. 24.—Another of Germany's generals came out publicly today for the restoration of former Kaiser Wilhelm's Hohenzollern régime.

"There is only one solution to Germany's present difficulties," declared Maj. Gen. Count von der Goltz in the Deutsche Zeitung. "That is the restoration of the Hohenzollern monarchy. Von Hindenburg, who induced the kaiser to cross into Holland on that fateful 10th of November, 1918, is the man who must now take the decisive step. As president he is so popular that he can take political measures which would be impossible for his successors.

Must Make Amends.

"In the eyes of history he must make amends for what he did in 1918," he went on. "He must use all means at his disposal to create legal foundations for the return of the monarchy."

Meanwhile the battle raged on for the lives of the five Hitlerites who were sentenced to death at Beuthen, Upper Silesia, Monday, for a political murder.

"Storm troops" of Adolf Hitler's National Socialist party paraded and shouted in front of the Beuthen prison, where the five are held. Capt. Ernst Roehm, leader of the troops, visited the sentenced men today, further arousing the "patriotism" of the Hitlerites.

Lachmann, one of those convicted, told interviewers in his cell of his joy at receiving a telegram from Hitler.

"I hung it on the wall," he said. "It is an altar before which I shall pray every day for our leader."

Attacks Jews.

Joseph Goebbels, one of Hitler's lieutenants, in an article in the Angriff, a Fascist organ, blamed the Jews for the death sentences.

"Never forget it, comrades, and repeat it a hundred times, so that you will say it in your dreams—the Jews are to blame!" he asserted.

Goebbels also launched another attack on Chancellor Franz von Papen. He described him as enjoying a frivolous show while the masses of Germany suffered. As a result the Angriff was suspended for a week.

EVENING HIGH SCHOOLS' FATE LEFT IN BALANCE

Appropriation Overspent; Board Seeks Funds.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Reopening next month of the evening high schools, attended last spring by about 24,000 pupils, was left in the balance by the school board yesterday. A decision is expected at an adjourned meeting next Wednesday. The appropriation for the schools already has been overspent by several thousand dollars.

The schools are the Austin, Crane, Englewood, Fenger, Lake View and Schurz. To get them going again, Supt. Bogan recommended that the registration fees of $5 and $7.50—heretofore returned—be retained by the board to aid in defraying the expense. This brought into the discussion Supt. Bogan's recommendation that a tuition of $50 a semester be charged students at Crane Junior and Normal colleges.

Can't Charge Tuition.

"Supt. Bogan knows we cannot charge tuition," said Trustee Joseph P. Savage at the meeting. "I favor the evening schools. Many are attended by taxpayers, unable to get the education they desired earlier in life. I urge a transfer of funds from something else to keep the night schools in operation."

"I doubt whether we have the right to conduct these two colleges," interposed President Lewis E. Myers. "So far as Normal is concerned, we have 1,700 or 1,800 graduates of the Normal without positions, and about 550 supernumerary teachers waiting for jobs."

"I do not believe in a charge anywhere in the system," said Thrustee James A. Hemingway. "We should obey the law. We are only authorized to conduct free schools."

Night Fee Called "Wedge."

"Establishing a fee for night schools is a wedge to start charging tuition in the day high schools," added Trustee John A. English.

"I am opposed to transferring funds from other educational activities unless recommended by the superintendent of schools," argued Mrs. W. S. Hefferan. "This recommendation by him on the evening schools has been thoroughly considered."

Trustee H. Wallace Caldwell had a motion adopted asking the school attorney what authority, if any, the board has to make a charge for educational service.

It developed during the discussion that School Auditor Brackett has advised some of the trustees that another week, in addition to the two already agreed upon, must be eliminated from the school term "to make the budget balance."

Board for New Sales Tax.

The board talked about economy, but did nothing yesterday to reduce expenses, obtain pay for the employés, or to enhance its credit so that it may borrow. As one means of relieving the situation the board approved a resolution submitted by their lawyers and those for the teachers which said that in case a special session of the legislature is decided upon "the call should include relief as to the school situation now existing in Chicago and that such relief include the consideration of a sales tax for school purposes."

No action was taken by the board on the repeal of the "N. S. F. check" law which makes the 1932 educational tax anticipation warrants of the board unmarketable. Its only action was to order an "N. S. F. check" issued to Winnifred Mathews, a teacher, who obtained a state Supreme court decision asserting that the law is valid. Chapman and Cutler, security experts, have said that they will not approve of educational tax warrants while the "N. S. F. check" law remains operative and the banks will not buy without that approval.

Undecided on Action.

The attorneys for the teachers' organizations and the school board have been considering that law for some weeks. After a meeting yesterday with School Attorneys Frank S. Righeimer and Ralph W. Condee it was announced that the lawyers for the teachers were not ready to recommend what should be done. Among the teachers' lawyers at the meeting were Allan T. Carter, Thurlow G. Essington, Thomas Mason, I. T. Greenacre, George J. Hassenauer, and Wiley W. Mills. In addition there were also Robert C. Moore and R. R. Smith of the State Teachers' association and Aaron Kline of the Chicago Principals' club.

Harris S. Keeler, director of the Chicago Bureau of Public Efficiency, who died recently, was given a commendatory resolution by the school board.

DAVE "YIDDLES" MILLER.
[TRIBUNE Photo.]

David "Yiddles" Miller, diminutive pickpocket with a police record of 2,000 arrests, who informed detectives when arrested that the pocket picking business is no longer lucrative, appeared in the South State street court yesterday and thrust aside his attorney to tell Judge Justin F. McCarthy the truth about himself. He said he was in a sanitarium because of excessive drinking on the day the complaining witness said he saw him picking pockets. Judge McCarthy assessed a minimum fine of $10 and costs. Miller still has to face a charge of vagrancy in the South State street court next Tuesday.

HATTON POINTS OUT EASY PATH TO TAX RELIEF

Calls Politicians Only Bar to Consolidations.

A. R. Hatton, professor of political economy at Northwestern university, told yesterday how millions of dollars could be cut from the county's tax bills through consolidation of conflicting and overlapping governmental bodies without constitutional change. He spoke before representatives of civic associations at the Union League club.

Professor Hatton said that constitutional difficulties in such consolidations are over estimated. The great difficulty is politicians, he declared.

Power Rests in County Board.

"The constitution gives us the county board, which may reorganize practically anything in the county," he said. "There is no reason, for instance, for a separate sanitary district. The county commissioners might become ex-officio sanitary trustees as they are commissioners of the forest preserves. There is nothing in the constitution of the state to preclude conferring of all the powers of municipal government on the county board."

The objection of the limited bonding power of the county might be met through making assessments on the full value of property rather than the 37 per cent equilization factor, he said. With valuations increased almost two-thirds the county could adequately take over the functions.

"Local opposition from communities would have to be met," he said. "But it is being met under a similar plan in London. Taxes for metropolitan police might be apportioned on a basis of service offered so that one community would not bear a share of the burden of another."

Consolidation of parks in the city and county into one park bureau under the county board was cited as another merger possibility without constitutional revision. Multiplicity of school districts was declared to be indefensible.

"Within the next ten year much might be done through legislation without a constitutional convention," Prof. Hatton concluded. "All that is needed is an organization to foster and press a program."

WAREHOUSE RAID EVIDENCE TO GO TO GRAND JURY

Evidence obtained in a raid on the Chapin Rivers Terminal company warehouse at 2631 Arthington street will be presented to the federal grand jury, it was learned yesterday, although Charles J. Chapin, head of the company, and two other defendants were freed on Tuesday when they were arraigned before United States Commissioner Walker.

The warehouse was raided two weeks ago by prohibition agents, who found equipment for a 100,000 gallon still. Several carloads of corn sugar also were found. The dismissal of charges against Chapin followed the admission of prohibition agents that the equipment was not set up as a still when the raid was made. Defense attorneys argued that the government had failed to connect Chapin with the upper floors of the building in which the still equipment was found.

Names of the persons renting the building, said to be gangsters, are known to the government, and the men will be brought in at the time of the grand jury probe, it was said.

CUT REAL ESTATE VALUATIONS 10% IN WILL COUNTY

Board of Review Acts to Lower Taxes.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

The Will county board of review ordered a 10 per cent cut in the real estate valuation of the county for 1932 taxing purposes yesterday. The assessors had previously reduced the valuation on personal property by approximately $2,000,000.

The aggregate effect is that the property values for taxing purposes in Will county have been slashed 22 per cent from the peak of prosperous times, as compared with an eight or ten per cent cut in Cook county, as forecast by the committee on public expenditures.

Hit Peak in 1930.

Will county, like many others boosted taxes while business was good. Its tax valuation in 1927 was $109,739,800 and in the year following was within $350,000 of that amount. In 1930 the valuations were raised to the peak figure of $110,650,816. Last year they were reduced to $96,750,989 and the board of review—added to the assessor's action—dropped it yesterday to about $85,000,000.

Many property owners, at a recent hearing in Joliet requested a 25 per cent cut. The Joliet school board and city government protested that such a slash would not give them sufficient money upon which to operate. It was represented that the city budget would be cut $40,000 by the 10 per cent reduction and that the schools would have to curtail their terms by several months, if a 25 per cent cut were made. These are the reasons assigned by Reviewers Thomas Seely and D. H. Lents for not adopting the larger figure.

The 10 per cent reduction will give Will county a lower per capita tax for state, county and local purposes, than Lake, Du Page, Kane or Kankakee in the surrounding territory. The tax cut for 1932 will be about 19.6 per cent, compared with that of 1930.

1931 Tax Levy.

The 1931 tax levy in Will county totals $4,138,729. The 1931 levy is collected this year. If the rates are not increased, the county taxes next year will be about $3,663,000, a drop of 11.5 per cent.

In Will county nearly half of the taxes levied are for school purposes. Of the 1931 levy of $4,138,729, schools received $2,032,638, 49.4 per cent. County and township governments require about 26.8 per cent, Joliet and the other city and village governments, 10.2 per cent and the state government gets about 9.1 per cent.

Sixteen new suits against income bearing properties for nonpayment of real estate taxes were filed in the Superior court yesterday by Edward M. Winston, special attorney for the county. The suits seek the appointment of receivers to collect $1,010,791 from the real estate which is valued at more than $30,000,000.

The La Salle corporation, 39 South La Salle street, sued for $322,736 in delinquent 1928, 1929, and 1930 taxes, is the largest single defendant. The Orchestral Association of Chicago, 220 South Michigan avenue, was sued for $176,063 for 1928, 1929, and 1930 taxes.

Circuit Judge Craig Hood yesterday entered a $12,136 judgment against the Central City Chemical company, 4250 North Crawford avenue, on their delinquent 1930 personal property taxes.

BABY IS BURNED AS FLAMES TRAP FOUR CHILDREN

Edith Bakos, 2 months old, was a patient in the county hospital yesterday, suffering second degree burns as the result of a fire from which neighbors rescued the infant and three other children on Tuesday night in a bungalow at 5152 South Major avenue.

The father, Matthew Bakos, owner of the bungalow, and his wife, Marion, had stepped across the street to visit a neighbor at 10:15 p. m. Half an hour later another neighbor came to the door with an alarm that the Bakos house was in flames.

Husband and wife rushed towards their home, from the eaves of which flames were shooting. Meanwhile, two other neighbors, James Chatus, 5156 South Major avenue, and Ira Sewer, 5150 South Major avenue, had darted into the house and brought out the Bakos children.

The elder three children, Lorraine, 5 years old; John, 3, and Marion, 2, were unharmed. The baby, however, was severely burned on the left side.

JAIL TWO TRYING TO SPEND MONEY AND HAVE IT, TOO

Charles Rodgers, 29 years old, 1508 White street, Gary, paid a bill of three years' standing for $135 worth of lumber at the New Chicago Lumber company in New Chicago, a suburb just east of Gary. Twenty minutes later his friend, Ted Lar, 29 years old, of 522 Jefferson street, Gary, held up the lumber company's cashier, Fred Ewigleden, but could only find $35 in the cash box. An office boy with Rodgers' $100 already had been sent to a downtown bank to deposit. Ewigleden called police and they arrested Rodgers, who confessed the plot and also implicated Loar, who also was arrested.

THE PILLAGE OF PARIS

"Nature in the Raw"— after the great French artist Luminais . . . inspired by the savage fierceness of untamed Norsemen in the ruthless capture of Paris—845 A. D.

Copr., 1932, The American Tobacco Co.

—and raw tobaccos have no place in cigarettes

They are not present in Luckies ... the mildest cigarette you ever smoked

WE buy the finest, the very finest tobaccos in all the world—but that does not explain why folks everywhere regard Lucky Strike as the mildest cigarette. The fact is, we never overlook the truth that "Nature in the Raw is Seldom Mild"—so these fine tobaccos, after proper aging and mellowing, are then given the benefit of that Lucky Strike purifying process, described by the words—"It's toasted". That's why folks in every city, town and hamlet say that Luckies are such mild cigarettes.

"It's toasted"

That package of mild Luckies

"If a man write a better book, preach a better sermon, or make a better mouse-trap than his neighbor, tho he build his house in the woods, the world will make a beaten path to his door."—RALPH WALDO EMERSON.

Does not this explain the world-wide acceptance and approval of Lucky Strike?

HURLEY SPEECH SAYS DEMOCRATS LACK A PROGRAM

Accuses Roosevelt of Only Vague Suggestions.

Rocky Point, R. I., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—Accusing the Democratic party of having "no program," and its present standard bearer of suggesting none "save the vague references to a new deal," Secretary of War Patrick J. Hurley today undertook to answer last week's Ohio speech of Gov. F. D. Roosevelt.

The "Hoover nonpartisan reconstruction program is still the only complete and logical" one offered by any one "to break this depression," he said.

Secretary Hurley's address marked the opening of the Republican campaign in Rhode Island, and was delivered at the annual outing and clambake of the Republican club of the state. Virtually all the party leaders of the district were present, and about 2,000 others.

Lauds President's Speech.

Secretary Hurley praised the President's speech of acceptance and said: "For constructiveness of purpose, definiteness of program and for intellectual decency the Hoover acceptance speech has already taken its place in the minds of the American people among the outstanding papers of the republic. Contrast the words and the spirit of the Hoover address with the carping criticism, the unsupported charges, the indefinite, impractical and floundering suggestions of the Columbus address of Gov. Roosevelt.

"From the very beginning of this campaign, Gov. Roosevelt continuously has attempted to arouse class antagonism, to capitalize discontent, to make politics out of human misery and to profit by distortion of fact.

No Unemployment Plan

"Up to this moment, the governor has not stated whether he approves or disapproves the Hoover nonpartisan reconstruction program, he has not stated whether he would continue that program in effect or repeal it. He has not offered one suggestion of any nature for the improvement of that program.

"Up to this moment, the governor has not offered one constructive suggestion that would give employment immediately to any person or relieve distress or overcome the effects of the depression."

Secretary Hurley took issue with Gov. Roosevelt's idea that the "bubble burst first in the land of its origin." He said that the Democratic nominee "is either misinformed himself or trying to mislead the people." The war, with its high taxes and other heritages, "seem to have more to do with business of the world than a stock market boom," he said. Moreover, he continued, "our tariff was not enacted until nearly a year after the boom broke, so that did not break it."

Boom Not Broken in United States.

The speaker said that the report of the world conference of government officials and economists—in Geneva in 1931—"proves that the boom did not start first in the United States and did not break first in the United States. It shows that the boom broke in six important commercial countries before it broke in the United States and in three countries coincidentally."

"The governor favors the reform of the stock exchange," Secretary Hurley said. "The stock exchange exists under the laws of the state of New York. There is no doubt abuses have existed. There is no doubt there were organized bear raids detrimental to the welfare of the public. What did the governor of New York do to remedy this situation?

"Gov. Roosevelt now suggests federal control and publicity for the sale of securities. Why has not the governor inaugurated these reforms in New York? The control of the sale of these securities and the conditions under which they may be sold is now in the state of New York. There are New York state laws designed to protect the public against fraudulent sales of securities. These laws have not been enforced by Gov. Roosevelt. He is trying to pass the buck to the federal government."

The body of a man found shot to death early yesterday at Clinton street and 14th place was identified last night as Nello Pellegrini, 23 years old, 1215 South Damen avenue, formerly owner of a restaurant at 2610 West 26th street. The identification was made by his uncle, Gurio Moroni, 2429 South Oakley avenue. Pellegrini was shot seven times in the head and shoulders. Police were unable to find any witnesses. The bullets were sent to Sergt. Alfred Mulvaney, coroner's ballistics expert, for comparison with those which killed Herman Brin, 1801 South Wabash avenue, at 18th street and Michigan, under similar circumstances early Tuesday.

Fire Causes $25,000 Loss on Yacht in Harbor

The 60 foot sloop Joyant after it had been damaged by a $25,000 fire in Belmont harbor. The fire was started by a back firing engine. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Owner Is Rescued

Fire attacked the 60 foot sloop, Joyant, in Belmont harbor late yesterday afternoon, and imperiled other craft anchored nearby. Swimmers at the beach watched the blaze, and the rescue of one of the boat's owners, Harry L. De Lisle, a furniture manufacturer of Three Rivers, Mich. He estimated the damage at $25,000.

De Lisle went aboard the boat during the afternoon to pump out the bilge. He started the engine. A few moments later a burst of flame from the exhaust ignited the interior of the sloop, the fire spreading rapidly beneath the after deck.

Unable to extinguish the flames, De Lisle hailed a passing yacht, and was taken to shore. He telephoned the fire department, and Engine Company 7, commanded by Capt. Emery Coffin, responded. After trying to put out the fire with hand extinguishers from the deck of a small yacht tender, the firemen commandeered another boat, and towed the Joyant to shore where they finally got the fire under control.

De Lisle's partner in the ownership of the sloop is Herbert Bruning, of 915 South Crescent street, Park Ridge, a manufacturer.

METHODIST DRYS CONDEMN HOOVER FOR LIQUOR STAND

Curtis Commended in Same Statement.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—The nation-wide split up in professional dry ranks over the question of supporting President Hoover for reelection was thrown into bold relief today when the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal church issued a statement attacking Mr. Hoover, but commending his running mate, Vice President Curtis.

The reform organization assailed the President for his attack on the eighteenth amendment and asserted his plan for changing the amendment to protect dry states from liquor importations while allowing wet states to have alcoholic beverages was "utterly impossible." The President was indirectly charged with ingratitude for deserting his dry followers on the question of keeping the eighteenth amendment inviolate.

Can Back Only Curtis.

Supporters of national prohibition were urged to direct all their energies to the election of dry congressmen. The statement stated that the Vice President on the Republican ticket was the only candidate to whom commendation can be given. The President's utterances on prohibition were declared "in keeping with the cries of the hoodlums who filled the galleries of the Chicago Stadium" during the convention.

The outburst from the Methodist group today lined up the organization with the Anti-Saloon league and the W. C. T. U. The main bodies of the organized drys, such as the Allied Forces, 1,500,000 strong, according to the claims of their leaders; the Flying Squadron Foundation officials, and the National Temperance bureau have thrown their strength to President Hoover.

Woman Leader Quits Hoover.

Boston, Mass., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Mrs. William Tilton of Cambridge, nationally known prohibitionist, announced today she had resigned from the Allied Forces, of which Dr. Daniel A. Poling is president, because of his statement that the Allied Forces would support President Hoover's prohibition stand.

In a telegram to Dr. Poling Mrs. Tilton said:

"The Democratic program is really less dangerous that Mr. Hoover's. The latter, by deceiving the simple minded, will make repeal easier."

Green, New U.S. Prosecutor, Is Guest at Bar Luncheon

Dwight H. Green, recently appointed United States district attorney by President Hoover, was the chief guest yesterday at a luncheon of the Chicago Bar association. Attorney Green in an address outlined the work of the federal prosecutor and told of the government's income tax campaign against gangsters which has resulted in an unbroken series of convictions.

HOME CLOSED BY COURT AFTER LIQUOR SALES

Galesburg, Ill., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—For the first time in four years a private residence here was closed under an injunction as a result of liquor sales. States Attorney R. C. Rice secured the temporary writ against Mrs. Agnes H. Tyler, 70, owner of the property, after John Richards and Sam M. Andree had been convicted of bootlegging from her place. A hearing on the injunction which the state's attorney seeks to make permanent will be held next Tuesday in Circuit court. Federal, county and city officials have made arrests in raids of the house.

Policeman Is Discharged After Shooting in Home

Patrolman James Kerrigan of the Shefield avenue station, was ordered discharged from the police force yesterday after a hearing before the civil service commission on charges that while intoxicated he engaged in an argument with his wife on the night of July 3 in which his wife and son were wounded by a bullet from his gun. He also was accused of barricading himself in a bedroom after the shooting until he was driven out by a tear gas bomb. Kerrigan denied the charges at the hearing.

Cuba Asks Chicago Police How to Put Down Riots

Cuba appealed to Chicago last night for advice on how to handle disorders. The appeal came in a letter to Chief of Detectives William Schoemaker from Capt. Florinda Fernandez, inspector general of explosives in Havana. Chief Schoemaker said that he would advise the Cuban official that tear gas bombs and shotguns are most effective in quelling disorders.

HUSBAND, WIFE AND SON BURNED BY STOVE BLAST

Three members of one family were seriously burned last evening by the explosion of a gasoline stove in the basement of their home at 3549 Belden avenue. The interior of the basement was wrecked by the blast, and windows in adjoining residences were shattered.

The injured were Charles Koschel, 57 years old; his wife, Mary, 58, and their son, George, 30. They were given first aid at the Belmont hospital, and then removed to the county hospital.

Police said that the fuel stove was of an outdoor camp design, and was used by the Koschels for summer cooking.

DEMOCRATS SEE VICTORY IN FALL ON DAY AT FAIR

Judge Henry Horner Gets Big Reception.

BY PARKE BROWN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—It was all Democratic today. There were some Republicans in the crowd, state house employes and such, but at best they were in the minority.

Judge Henry Horner, Democratic nominee for the governorship, came into his party's celebration at the state fair on the peak of a wave demonstrated by straw votes of two local newspapers indicating that Illinois, ordinarily Republican, may go Democratic this fall by as much as one million. Old line Republicans deny this, but the reception given to Judge Horner at the state fair today included some of the old time Republicans who insist that there must be a change.

Judge Horner was received by the most enthusiastic crowd that ever greeted a Democratic nominee for the governorship.

Says Change Is Needed.

"They have come," he said, "to demonstrate that they are fully aware that there is something seriously wrong with the manner with which the affairs of the nation have been administered and that there must be a change for the better if there is not to be a change for the worse.

"Naturally, in the situation in which they find themselves these thousands turn to the Democratic party and to the candidates of the Democratic party."

Concluding the first month of "his getting acquainted trip," Judge Horner said that he had been extremely well impressed.

"During the month which I have spent in going from place to place," he said, "mingling with the people in the towns and on the farms, getting their opinions and impressions, I found that they are all longing for a new deal. Old party lines everywhere have been broken down and the old time party methods will no longer be tolerated.

Sees Illinois Democratic.

"The people of Illinois are going to vote for principles and men they believe represent these principles."

In the crowd that greeted Judge Horner were several hundred wearing a badge "For a Change Vote Democratic." There were said to be several thousand Republicans who this year are anti-Hoover. This is considered symtomatic for the conditions downstate.

All told, Democratic day at Springfield fair this year was considered the party's biggest day in recent years and a strong hint of the outcome in November.

E. T. CLARK, ONCE COOLIDGE'S AID TO HELP HOOVER

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—Edward T. Clark, private secretary to Calvin Coolidge during his occupancy of the White House, has been drafted by President Hoover to serve as one of his secretaries during the balance of the campaign. For the present Mr. Clark is taking the place of Theodore Joslin, one of the White House secretaries, now on an indefinite vacation.

Clark first came to Washington as secretary for the late Senator Henry Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts.

The presence of Mr. Clark at the White House this afternoon aroused reports that a shakeup of the secretarial staff was on the way. Walter Newton, the President's political secretary, said, however, that Secretary Joslin would be back in a few weeks. Mr. Clark is well known among Republican leaders and newspaper men.

Republican Women Mingle Hash and Politics at Tea

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Pastel tinted chiffon fluttered with the breeze and teacups tinkled merrily on the terrace at the Drake hotel yesterday. The stage was set for political chatter, but the feminine voters attending the tea of the Woman's National Republican club were reluctant to leave such engrossing, lusty culinary topics as East Indian curry and pigeon pie, baked Indian pudding and pfefferkuchen. They struggled back to discussion of ballots by way of frozen fruit salad and a cooling draught called "grape chill with oranges."

MRS. BERTHA BAUR [Rayhuff-Richter Photo.]

For the occasion marked the debut of the cookbook just compiled by the membership, to be retailed for the benefit of the party coffers. Each of the scores of arriving guests received one of the black and crimson volumes, and began an immediate inspection of its pages, for which credit has been given in the title of the book, "Distinguished Hostesses."

As president of the organization, Mrs. Bertha Baur greeted the Republican women, directing them to the long table where two Chinese girls in native costume, known as Yum Yum and O Fay, were dispensing tea and lemon with the usual dainty sandwiches.

Both before and after the "political interlude," however, pages were being riffled in the hunt for prominent names and favorite recipes. Among those most commented on were:

CREAM BRULE.

[Mrs. Walter Borden.]

3 yolks of eggs, whipped. Brown sugar. 1 cup cream. Fresh strawberries or other fruit.

Boil yolks of eggs and cream in a double boiler about two minutes. Cool in a glass baking dish. The consistency will be that of custard. Sprinkle generously with brown sugar. Melt the brown sugar under the flame. Serve with fresh strawberries or the chosen fruit.

PEAR DESSERT.

[Mrs. John McCutcheon.]

6 pears. 1 teaspoon cinnamon. 2 cups brown sugar. 3 tablespoons butter. 2 tablespoons water.

Peel pears and slice in halves; add sugar, cinnamon, butter, and water. Bake twenty minutes in oven in glass dish. Serve with Bavarian cream circle with whipped cream in center.

STUFFED SWEET POTATOES, CRILLON.

[Mrs. Bertha Baur.]

Marshmallows. Chestnuts. Salt. Sweet potatoes. Sugar. Bananas.

Scoop out the center of baked sweet potatoes and mash with sweet butter, salt and chestnuts, which have been cooked in sirup made of one part sugar with two parts water. Add marshmallows cut into small pieces, and refill the potato shells. Cover with alternate slices of banana and marshmallow, and brown in a hot oven.

CALF'S LIVER STUFFED AND LARDED.

[Mrs. Samuel Chase.]

Calf's liver. 1 cup stale bread crumbs. 1 onion chopped fine. 2 tablespoons chopped parsley. Pinch salt. 2 eggs. Brown sauce. Pepper to taste. 1 pound lean cooked ham.

Moisten chopped ham, parsley, onion and bread crumbs with brown sauce, and add two raw eggs. Mix and add salt and pepper. Use light colored liver, cut dash on under side, and fill pocket with stuffing. Lard upper side of liver with strips of lard. Bake two hours, basting frequently with brown sauce.

CORNED BEEF HASH.

[Mrs. Arthur Meeker.]

1 cup cold boiled corned beef. 3 cups cold potatoes.

Chop corned beef and potatoes, which have been boiled in their jackets, in a wooden bowl. Mix well together, adding some of the corned beef fat and a little chopped onion if desired. There should always be twice as much potato as meat. Cold baked potatoes can also be used, but the boiled are preferable. Grease the pan with a little butter; then put in the hash. Cover the pan; put it over a slow fire or in the oven, letting it cook for about 15 minutes until the bottom side of the hash has browned nicely. Then turn it out on the serving platter with the browned side up.

GRAPE CHILL WITH ORANGE.

1 pint grape juice. 4 teaspoons sugar. Juice of 2 oranges. Chilled water.

Dissolve the sugar in grape juice and add orange juice. Half fill four tall glasses with shaved ice, add the fruit juices and sugar and fill with chilled water. Serve with two straws thrust through a thin slice of orange.

Mrs. Harry Atwood was general chairman of the committee in charge of getting out the cookbook.

LAWYER SEEKS ARREST OF WIFE FOR TAKING SON

Newton, Mass., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Scott D. Ferguson, Boston lawyer, today obtained a warrant for the arrest of his wife on the charge that she had kidnaped their five year old son, Scott D. Jr. Immediately afterward Chicago and California police were asked to watch for Mrs. Ferguson.

Mrs. Ferguson is the daughter of H. Fielding Smith, who owns California fruit groves and Cuban sugar plantations.

The Fergusons had been separated for some time and Ferguson recently obtained a decree awarding him custody of the child. The boy had been permitted to visit his mother. Last night mother and child were missing.

JOHN BAIN AND SONS GUILTY IN BANK CONSPIRACY

Father Faces Joliet Term; Others Fined.

banker and politician and compared him to King Midas in his acquisition of gold.

"John Bain began some years ago with the West Englewood State bank, which, I think, was a good bank," began the judge. "He started others, and at one time had fourteen. He would open a bank in one locality and then move to another. He would put up a building and then sell the property to some bank. He had the confidence of every one who knew him or had heard of him. His banks had the full confidence of the south side. Then some of the north side banks got into trouble and they called on John Bain to help them out. They believed in him. Everything he touched seemed to turn to money.

Reputation for Honesty.

"Every one had confidence in him. His neighbors and business associates came here and told of his fine reputation for honesty and fair dealing before the crash. It is not disputed by the state. This does not excuse him in the eyes of the law, but it must be taken into consideration.

"In my opinion, when Bain started taking on and organizing these other banks he made his first mistake. The banks were sold the property at grossly excessive prices, and in my opinion they never had a chance to survive. The reason they closed when they did was on account of the distressing times. The hardest thing this court had to do was to look back at the situation as it was before June 9 of last year. Conditions are looking up now and it is hard to put yourself in the situation as it was then. There were lots of failures then, and not all of them were dishonest.

Failure Inevitable.

"The banks would have failed anyway in the near future. They were loaded down with paper they were carrying at grossly excessive values. The sheriff was always in the rear waiting, like Banquo's ghost.

"I don't agree with the state that Bain was worse than a murderer. He was not a bad man. He got in so far and so fast that he couldn't get out. There is no doubt that Bain and all the members of his family are penniless. While he ruined thousands of depositors, he ruined himself and his family, but that is no excuse in the eyes of the law.

"These banks were just a one man bank. There is no doubt about it. There was no man in the whole organization, with the exception of those who handled the details, who had complete control of all the policies except John Bain. I never heard of such banking, the shooting of loans from one bank to another. They couldn't stand up under such treatment."

Debts of Trust Company.

Judge O'Connor touched briefly upon the evidence and came to the loans Bain and his associates made. According to the judge's figures, Bain, at the time of the crash, owed the banks $680,000. Trust companies which Bain organized also owed huge sums. These were: John Bain, Inc., which owed $993,000; the Lews company, $257,000. John H. Bain owed $71,000; Robert A. Bain, $32,000; Merle Fisher, $41,000, and the officers and directors more than $5,000,000, the judge pointed out.

"It doesn't necessarily follow that the loans were bad because they were made by officers and directors," Judge O'Connor continued. "It just shows that the whole organization was dominated by Bain. Think of poor John Edwards, president of one of the banks. He couldn't tell a bank unless some one pointed it out to him. Bain ran it all. He did it while he was drowning and clutching at straws.

"The directors' and officers' loans were never submitted for approval to the various boards. The boards in most cases were a lot of dummies and not very good dummies, at that. It is a dangerous thing to take other people's money, because it may not be easy to put it back again.

"John Bain is not a young man any more. He has lost everything he had, but it is the duty of the court to enforce the law."

Raber Explains Law.

Prosecutor Raber's explanation of the law as to punishment for conspiracy was that Bain could be sentenced from one to five years in the penitentiary and to pay a fine up to $2,000, in which event the crime would become a felony because of the penitentiary sentence.

It is also within the discretion of the court, according to the prosecutor, to impose a misdemeanor sentence, up to one year in jail or a fine or both. Whether Judge O'Connor will impose the one to five year penitentiary sentence, the jail sentence, of the eighteen-month penitentiary sentence he said he was going to impose, will be determined this morning.

The early part of the afternoon session had been consumed by Prosecutor Raber's closing argument. He said he would confine his remarks to the guilt or innocence of the young Bains and Fisher, for the court had heard enough about John Bain.

"Robert A. Bain," said the prosecutor, "this fine young citizen, as Mr. Busch calls him, was cashier of the Stony Island bank. His was the only name we ever heard in connection with the running of that bank. Having taken all the depositors' money, it is now too late for him to say he was just a poor boy with no idea of what it was all about.

Conspiracy Is Proved.

"As cashier it was his duty, according to a ruling of the Supreme court, to know the assets of the bank and to make that known to the directors This he never did. His connection with the bolstering of the Auburn Park bank, the abstracting of rotten assets and replacing them with good securities at the expense of the other banks so the Auburn Park bank could remain in the clearing house, proves his concerted action and conspiracy.

"John H. Bain, the errand boy of the outfit, as he called himself, drew a salary of $900 a month. He was the downtown officer of these banks and when they were in their last throes he concocted a scheme to cover up the $40,000 steal. Six months later, and while the banks were closed, he was still busy covering up his father's tracks.

"Fisher? He's too well mixed up in this whole affair. I don't need to say anything about him."

In his closing plea Attorney Busch advanced the argument that a corporation can legally borrow money to pay dividends, even though its earnings are not in the form of cash or readily negotiable. All that matters is whether the earnings, in the form of property, have a value exceeding the liabilities.

News to the Judge.

"That certainly is news to me," said Judge O'Connor, smiling.

"I haven't any law at hand in support of that contention, but there is none against it," said Mr. Busch. "I believe I can produce the law on it." The state had contended that the Bain banks sold first mortgage bonds on property of various companies to which they had loaned money to meet dividend payments.

Mr. Busch accused the state of attempting to "guess a man into jail" in his discussion of the alleged "forty thousand dollar steal" from the Robert Esplin trust fund in the West Englewood bank. The defense had placed responsibility for this abstraction upon Fred J. Seberg, former head of the bank's real estate department, who is now dead, while the state accused Fisher, the cashier.

"It's not our fault that a subpœna won't reach Seberg," said Mr. Busch, "but the records show that he was head of the real estate department and Fisher had nothing to do with it. You can't guess a man into jail."

Borrowing from Own Bank.

Bain's action in borrowing money from his own banks to meet obligations to brokerage houses was defended as legal by Mr. Busch.

"There are hundreds of authorities for this," he said. "If the banks hadn't closed — if what happened hadn't happened—it wouldn't have made a particle of difference whether John Smith borrowed money to pay his broker or his grocer. And it wouldn't have made any difference whether John Bain did it. He borrowed money from the Continental and the Foreman banks for the same purpose.

"It makes no difference what the money was used for. The only question here is whether John Bain honestly believed he was solvent when the money was borrowed. It wouldn't matter even if he borrowed the money for an illegal purpose. If I borrowed $500 to have a man killed—I understand that's all it costs here—I'd be indicted for the murder, not for borrowing the money."

Attorney Busch concluded his argument at 3:15 p. m. with a fervent plea for "justice, not mercy," for his clients.

"You have a right to consider that Robert Bain is 29 years old, that John H. Bain is the father of four children, that Merle Fisher is the father of three children, and that if you punish Fisher it means his ruination, for his license to practice law will be taken away."

Losses Total $40,000,000.

Although the Bain trial stretched out over a period of ten weeks, having begun June 15, and much of the evidence was of a technical nature, depositors and investors whose losses aggregated some $40,000,000 maintained an intense interest to the end.

Judge O'Connor's courtroom has been crowded each day, and a series of dramatic scenes reached a climax when Banker Bain wept on the witness stand as he related the events of June 9, 1931, when his twelve banks collapsed. He prayed for his depositors, he said. "God will punish you," a woman spectator shouted as he left the stand that day.

The losses of the depositors totaled $13,000,000, as brought out by the state. An additional $30,000,000 invested through Bain companies will result in a 75 per cent loss, according to Prosecutor Raber.

Loans on Unsecured Notes.

The evidence showed that Bain, his co-defendants, and other officers of the West Englewood State bank, parent institution of the chain, owed $2,325,000 at the time of the crash. Bain himself owed $1,751,602 on unsecured notes to his own bank chain and was making efforts to borrow more. He borrowed $500,000 without the directors' knowledge and used his bank presidents as office boys, the state contended. He had stock market losses totaling $340,000, according to his secretary, Miss Anna Eunson, who told of daily duns from brokers, loop and New York bankers.

The defense leaned heavily upon the depression and its wrecking of the real estate market. Loans made on real estate security were in accordance with good banking, it was contended, and in ordinary times would have been safe. The defense maintained that the banks were, in fact, solvent at the time of the crash and are solvent now. Inability to obtain further loans to stop runs was responsible for the collapse and its disastrous consequences, the defendants set forth.

Judge O'Connor was confronted with one of the longest records in the history of the Criminal court—10,000 pages of transcript, containing 2,000,000 words.

Wrangle Over Judge.

Judge O'Connor, a member of the Appellate court, was sworn in as a Criminal court judge for the specific purpose of conducting the trial. The defense and prosecution wrangled over the selection of a Criminal court judge and could reach no agreement. The defense threatened to seek a change of venue from the county.

As a compromise the lawyers agreed upon Judge O'Connor and submitted their suggestion to the judges of both the Circuit and Superior courts, from which the Criminal court judges are selected. The judges ruled that such a proceeding was extra-legal, but approved it in this instance since each side had agreed that the question of the legality of calling in Judge O'Connor would not be raised.

The elder Bain, a Scotch immigrant, came to Chicago in the late '80s and worked for a time as a journeyman plumber. He married, established himself on the south side and became a master plumber, with offices at 6317 Laflin street. In 1893 he moved to 1509 West 63d street and opened a real estate office, where he worked nights.

The next year he quit plumbing to devote his entire time to real estate. There was a real estate boom on the south side following the election of President McKinley in 1896 and he began to build and rent cottages. He prospered. Up to 1906 he had constructed and rented 300 cottages and had loans on them aggregating $2,000,000. At the same time he became a banker, opening, with four partners, a private bank at 1637 West 63d street. This was done at the solicitation of business men he had accommodated, according to his testimony at the trial.

Weathers 1907 Panic.

He weathered his first panic in 1907, when deposits shrank from $200,000 to $50,000. Real estate loans were refinanced and they pulled through. The private bank became the West Englewood State bank, and later, after a merger, the West Englewood Trust and Savings bank. The capital stock was increased to $500,000, and in 1930, to $750,000. His interests were expanding and other banks were being organized, always "at the solicitation of responsible citizens of the various communities." Former United States Senator Deneen was his attorney.

No Appeal Likely.

Because of Bain's health it is expected that Attorney Busch will seek a stay of execution of the sentence, but it was reported that no appeal will be taken. With such a voluminous record the cost of an appeal would run into thousands of dollars.

The two sons who were co-defendants in the trial have nearly always been associated with their father in the banking business. Robert A., who is 29, lives at the father's home. His brother, John H., who is 32, lives at 11624 South Artesian avenue. W. Merle Fisher, Bain's son-in-law, the fourth defendant, is 46 and lives at 10412 South Hoyne avenue.

Judges Expect John Bain to Resign South Park Post

John Bain's conviction on charges of criminal conspiracy by Judge John M. O'Connor will soon terminate his south park commissionership, according to judges of the Circuit court, who hold the power of appointment to that board. Several of the judges said last evening that they expected Bain's resignation from the park board to be submitted to them shortly.

If he refuses to resign the judges said that under the present law they would be able to summon Bain before them and examine him upon his fitness as a commissioner. Another method of bringing about his dismissal, the judges said, would be by a petition of voters for his removal.

Bain was secluded in his home at 8844 Pleasant avenue last evening. He has refused to comment on his plans of retaining or resigning his commissionership.

Circuit court judges pointed out that, even though Bain were to present his resignation today, it would not be acted upon until the September term of court, which opens Monday, Sept. 19. A meeting of the Circuit judges would then be called to consider the resignation and to choose a successor.

Several judges interviewed yesterday said that Bain's failure to resign his commissionership immediately after the crash of his bank chain on June 9, 1931, had caused political clashes among members of the court. The judges asked that they be not quoted directly.

They said that heated debates between judges of the Robert E. Crowe-Homer Galpin Republican faction and the Republicans who were supporters of former United States Senator Charles S. Deneen followed the receipt of letters written by Bain depositors attacking the court for allowing Bain to retain his office on the board. He was appointed seven years ago under the sponsorship of Deneen, then senator.

While these debates were going on at the meetings of the judges the grand jury returned indictments against Bain, his sons, Robert A. and John H., and his son-in-law, W. Merle Fisher.

The judges then agreed to hold in abeyance the matter of Bain's commissionership until his guilt or innocence had been determined. Some of the judges said last evening that the court would take no action until it was determined whether the Bains planned to appeal Judge O'Connor's findings.

SOAK THE RICH, SEIZE BILLIONS, LONG PROPOSES

New Orleans, La., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—Senator Huey P. Long continued his "soak the rich" campaign in Louisiana today. In two speeches he declared, "We will have evolution or revolution in the next five years." He said conditions must be changed where "12 men make more money than everybody else in the country put together." He said the big issue before congress is not "prohibition" but the "breaking up of big fortunes."

"If congress will adopt my plan of limiting incomes to $1,000,000 a year and inheritances to $5,000,000, nobody would have to pay taxes but these big fortunes," Senator Long said.

"For example, suppose Rockefeller made 100 million dollars a year under my plan, I would let him keep $1,000,000 and the government would take the other $99,000,000. Suppose Andy Mellon, who has about 8 billion dollars, would die tonight. Well, I would let him give each of his children $5,000,000, making a total of $25,000,000. The government would take 7 billion, 975 million and nobody would have to pay taxes except the big fortunes and it would give money into the hands of all the people."

Congressman John H. Overton, in a speech at Kinder, said that Senator Edwin S. Broussard ought to be the last man to talk about taxation. Overton is contesting for Broussard's seat.

"His record of 12 years in the senate shows that he voted to cut down taxes on the wealthy and voted to put taxes on the masses."

RECORDS REVEAL 'LIFERS' FREED BY JUDGE KELLY

Trio Sentenced for Jewel Robbery on Train.

An investigation of Criminal court records yesterday disclosed a hitherto unpublished story of the proceedings in which Judge James J. Kelly released from prison two men who had pleaded guilty to a $500,000 jewel robbery on an Illinois Central train and who were serving a life sentence in the state penitentiary. An account of what happened was given as the grand jury voted new indictments against three shotgun bandits put on probation by Judge Kelly two weeks ago.

The jewel robbers were sentenced in Champaign county in 1926. Judge Kelly, according to the records, freed them from Joliet prison last spring on a writ of habeas corpus shortly after Judge Rudolph Desort had refused to free them on the same facts presented later to Judge Kelly. The robbers are Oliver A. Berg and Hywie Dickholtz, alias Harry Linard.

Prosecutor Not Present.

State's Attorney Roy R. Cline of Champaign county said yesterday he was not present at the hearing before Judge Kelly, that he was given no notice of the legal move which opened the prison gates for the pair. Assistant State's Attorney Charles J. Mueller of Cook county said he went to court to resist the writ and was told by Judge Kelly, "You will not be needed here, as the attorney general is representing the state."

Assistant Attorney General J. J. Neiger, who appeared in the case before Judge Desort, said he was not notified of the hearing before Judge Kelly and was not present, although he thought that some one from the attorney general's Chicago office might have been in court at the time. Representatives of the jewelers' association said they first heard of the freeing of the robbers from a detective who saw one of the pair at Hot Springs, Ark.

Judge Hazy on Case.

Judge Kelly said last night he did not recall much concerning the case, but that he was certain some one from the state's attorney's office was present. The court is not compelled to give notice that a hearing is about to take place on habeas corpus proceedings for a prisoner. The police it was stated, had no notice of the fact that the men were released, nor any opportunity to arrest them on other pending charges, including a murder in New York.

The robbers' attorney was W. W. Smith, who recently won the release of James [Fur] Sammons from the penitentiary on a writ. Previously Attorney Smith had succeeded in opening the penitentiary doors for George [Red] Barker, who was slain recently. A third man who pleaded guilty with Berg and Dickholtz—George Brown, alias Meyer Mendelson—was presumably left in Joliet, although his release, too, was asked before Judge Desort.

Story of Jewel Robbery.

The jewel robbery occurred on Sept. 8, 1926. Three jewelry salesmen in a drawing room on an Illinois Central train, southbound, were confronted by the robbers with drawn revolvers. The gunmen took their jewels, bound and gagged the salesmen, tossed them into a washroom, and alighted at Champaign with their loot. An alarm was given and after a wild automobile pursuit the three were captured near Paxton. They had hidden the jewelry, but later led police to the hiding place after fruitless efforts to negotiate for leniency on the promise of returning the loot.

As there were three victims of the robbery three charges of robbery were placed against the prisoners. The law at that time provided punishment of 10 years to life imprisonment for robbery with a gun, and Judge Franklin H. Boggs at Urbana sentenced the three gunmen to life imprisonment with the provision they were to spend one day a year in solitary confinement. They went to prison late in December, 1926. It was then announced they would be eligible for parole in ten years.

Starts Move for Release.

Last spring Attorney Smith filed a petition with Judge Desort for a writ of habeas corpus for the release of the three. He charged that the Champaign county Circuit court had erred in making the sentence life imprisonment instead of 10 years to life. Prosecutor Mueller argued that the court was without authority to review the action of a judge of equal jurisdiction in another county. Judge Desort indicated that he would deny the petition and Attorney Smith obtained leave to withdraw it.

A few days later, Prosecutor Mueller said yesterday, he saw Smith in Judge Kelly's court and learned the same petition was being filed. Mueller said he advised Judge Kelly of what had happened and said he believed that the only court where the prisoners were entitled to a hearing was the state Supreme court. He declared Judge Kelly said he would consider it later.

Asked to Leave Case.

Mueller said he then went to Justice De Young of the Supreme court and received from the justice an informal opinion that neither Judge Kelly nor Judge Desort would have jurisdiction in such a case. On the date of the hearing, however, Mueller was "invited to leave" the case by Judge Kelly, he said, and he withdrew from the courtroom.

Due to the workings of the "official court reporter" system, records of the hearing could not be obtained yesterday. Only one of the nine "official reporters" was to be found in the Criminal court building and Judge George Fred Rush, who was the only judge sitting there yesterday and who was acting chief justice, said he didn't feel it would be proper for him to direct the reporter to transcribe notes taken in hearings before another judge.

Bandits Indicted Again.

The new indictments against the three shotgun bandits put on probation by Judge Kelly were returned by the grand jury yesterday before Judge Rush. Two of the gunmen, St. Clair McInerney and Ralph Trimble, were charged with the robbery of the Mortgage Loan Securities, Inc., 2326 South Michigan avenue, on April 23, 1932, a crime not confessed by them when they admitted other robberies to Judge Kelly. George Dilly, the third probationer, was indicted on a charge of stealing an automobile.

Harvey Raymond Spencer, 31 years old, who lured girls to pose for pictures in the nude, pleaded guilty yesterday to charges of contributing to the delinquency of a minor and having in his possession obscene photographs. He was sentenced to serve six months in the House of Correction on each charge, sentences to run concurrently, by Judge Justin F. McCarthy in the Jury court.

Charges of adultery and disorderly conduct were dropped by Assistant State's Attorney Robert Klenha. Miss Constance Selbach, who answered an advertisement for models May 19 last and, after posing in the nude for Spencer, lived with him in his apartment at 5510 Harper avenue, pleaded guilty to a statutory charge. Her case was turned over to the probation department for investigation.

Wife Fails to Testify.

Spencer's wife, Mrs. Ruby Firth Spencer, manager of a beauty shop at 2509 Devon avenue, whom he married May 15 last, was in court, but was not called to testify against Miss Selbach.

Sergt. Michael P. Naughton, in charge of the Scotland Yards police detail, who investigated Spencer, protested in court against the motion to nol pros the adultery charge against Spencer, saying he had a "100 per cent case."

Attorney Norman A. Beck, one of Spencer's lawyers, asked that the court allow him to serve his sentence in the county jail because of "his poor health," but the request was denied by Judge McCarthy.

Defense Pleads Mob Hysteria.

A 17 year old girl, who was 16 years old last May, testified that in answer to an advertisement for models appearing May 19 last she applied for a job and was told to come to 4914 Quincy street, where Spencer induced her to pose in the nude. She said Spencer told her that if she passed the test he would pay her $1 an hour for work in movies out of Chicago over Sundays.

MOTHER KILLED, CHILD HURT BY AUTO ON DRIVE

Run Down on Crossing in Lincoln Park.

Crossing Lake Shore drive in Lincoln park, following her husband and a son, Mrs. Lucille Mincer, 34 years old, of 616 Wellington avenue, was killed and her daughter, Jeanette, 14, was probably fatally injured when they were run down by an automobile last night. The accident occurred at Deming place.

The family had been enjoying the coolness of the park. At the drive the husband, Nathan Mincer, and the son crossed. Mrs. Mincer and Jeanette waited a few moments and then followed. Both were hit by a car driven by C. Richard Peterson, 24 years old, of 1918 Foster avenue, a dental student at Northwestern. Mrs. Mincer and her daughter were taken to the Columbus Memorial hospital, where the former was pronounced dead. Physicians said that Jeanette had suffered a skull fracture and might die. Peterson was held. He said that he did not see Mrs. Mincer and Jeanette crossing the drive.

Gunner Oberg, 23 years old, 3808 Kimball avenue, died at the Evanston hospital yesterday of injuries suffered in a collision Monday night at Sunset Ridge and Winnetka roads, in Northbrook township. It was the second fatality resulting from the accident.

Oberg and Wesley Parsons, 21 years old, 6326 North Albany avenue, had just left the Sunset Ridge Country club, where they worked as caddies, when they collided with a car driven by Bjarne Paulsen, 16 years old, of Winnetka. Parsons was killed instantly.

A recommendation that safety devices be installed at the River road crossing of the Chicago and North Western railroad in Des Plaines was included yesterday in the verdict of accidental death returned by a coroner's jury. The jury investigated the deaths of Lawrence Abbot, 51 Quincy road, Riverside, and Walter Rolfe Jr., 3420 South Grove avenue, Berwyn. They were killed when a train hit their car on Aug. 13.

The deaths of Mrs. Mincer, Oberg, and two others increased the 1932 Cook county motor toll to 750. The other victims:

Melker Johnson, 6 years old, 648 Roscoe street. Died at the John B. Murphy hospital. He was struck by an automobile Wednesday in front of his home.

Rudolph Peterson, 28 years old, Elgin. Died in the Belmont hospital after an operation for an injury he suffered in an automobile accident on Higgins road, near Dundee, on May 6.

THREE HELD AS ROBBERS.

Judge Leon Edelman yesterday held three men to the grand jury on robbery charges. They were Jack Miller, 41, of 4912 South Paulina street; Peter Anarel, 29, of 2804 Prairie avenue, and Ben Carter, 30, colored, 21 East 31st street.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

THE HOOVER CONFERENCE: AN OPPORTUNITY.

Committees of leading business men have been formed in each of the twelve federal reserve districts and the members of all these committees are to meet with President Hoover in Washington on Aug. 26. They are to prepare "a concerted program along the whole economic front" and "to deal with specific projects where definite accomplishments in business, agriculture and employment can be attained." They will coördinate the efforts of private agencies and the government to bring about a recovery.

The program is a broad one. No doubt the President and his advisers can tell the business men some things they do not know about the possibilities of putting the loan funds voted to the Reconstruction Finance corporation to work. But no doubt, too, the business men have an unexampled opportunity to advise the President and his associates of the responsibility which the federal government must bear for the continuance of the depression.

Whatever the other committees may have to say, it is to be hoped that the Chicago committee will not overlook the opportunity to impress officialdom with the connection which exists between government waste, high taxation and business stagnation. The revolt against the tax eaters began in this section and has continued to look to Chicago for leadership. A certain amount of courage may be required to press the truth home, but to do so is a patriotic duty. When the conference is over there should be no doubt in the minds of Mr. Hoover and his associates that the real cure for the depression is the end of government waste.

IN THE ILLINOIS COAL FIELDS.

Frederick L. Schuman, instructor in the department of political science at the University of Chicago and a member of the faculty group "advising the Midwest College committee for investigation and relief of Illinois coal miners," wrote to the Voice of the People "to correct a false impression conveyed by the THE TRIBUNE'S account of Aug. 17." The students were turned back at Mount Vernon. Mr. Schuman says they were taking a ton of foodstuffs and clothing to destitute miners in Benton, were orderly, have no complaint to make of their treatment or what it compelled them to do except an emphatic complaint against the armed blockade, the interference with their legal rights and the intent of the authorities to starve and terrorize the miners into submission.

Possibly an agreement as to the facts would lead to an agreement of opinion. The roads were blockaded not to starve the miners into submission but to prevent miners of one region from entering other regions. It may be doubted that the right of lawful assemblage extends to large bodies of men marching into other localities to prevent other men from working if they want to work. There is no evidence that the sheriffs complained of were forcing men into the mines. They apparently were only interested in preventing other men from forcing them out.

There are mining counties in Illinois in which whole communities are eager to work their way out of the destitution caused by the suspension of their supporting industry. There is no report that men were being sent into the mines against their will. It is, rather, apparent that the workers were willing to accept the $5 scale and become self-supporting citizens. Money would return to the communities and they might chase the wolf out of the winter. There is a bitter fight in the miners' union, but it does not leave these working miners outside justification. Nor is it a necessary conclusion that persons who try to protect the right to work are thugs and persons who try to interfere with that right are armed in justice.

The localities affected are much disturbed and level headed citizens are trying to keep the situation in control. The invaders number thousands. Their own choice not to work in their own mines is not opposed. They are interfering in other regions. The tension in the disturbed counties is high. It has been observed that when a locality is so distracted certain students and citizens who spontaneously confess they are intellectuals add their presence to the scene. They did in Kentucky. Their reasons are better known to themselves than they are to others, but they should not expect that the pretensions they make are wholly credible.

Miners who have been driven from their work would not need a ton of supplies from the students if they were allowed to proceed peacefully. There is, furthermore, something lacking in the case for the students. The lack may be sincerity. It may be common sense. It may be the honesty of purpose which scholarship requires. Epater le bourgeois, but why try to be so solemn minded to oneself about it? The Illinois coal fields are in a fight for existence. The people dependent on them are of two minds as to what is good for them but of one mind in knowing that the conditions are desperate. They may make a mistake and destroy their industry. They have known destitution. They may know desolation. They may regard the student investigators as skylarking young people or as agents provocateur. They can't recognize good intentions. Mr. Schuman indicates that he has a pattern in his mind. On one side are thugs and exploiting capitalists; on the other side terrorized and starved workmen. It is not quite that simple.

TOUGH TIMES FOR THE BETTER MINDS.

The campaign as it is about to open finds a number of citizens lost in the woods. It is just as well to be lost. They would have no place to go if they could find their way. The political system of the country has completely failed them or, if not completely, has failed to offer anything satisfactory to the lowest minimum of requirements.

Mr. Borah is one such, but he is more resourceful than most of the wanderers. Mr. Borah, always a bit of a political mystic, has become more of one. He seems to have penetrated deeply into rajayoga and to have reached a perfect communion with the universal spirit. Thus he has been able to reject all known parties and all known candidates and yet find a party and a candidate. He will not name names, but he can close his eyes and be in a political ecstasy. This accomplishment cannot be too highly commended to the other citizens whose way is lonely, but the attainment of the state of Brahma is nothing to be dashed off in the moment of need. It requires spiritual preparation. Nevertheless, it is the only thing which will completely fill the bill. Everything else is a makeshift.

Of course, there are palliatives, but they are pale. There is the Communist party, but one cannot overlook the fact that the comrades are merely playing with the elections. They have no use for elections and will have no truck with the presidential office, congress, the general electorate or democracy. At the sign of the Sickle and Hammer the war cry is for Zack and his snickersnack. There is Norman Thomas and the Socialist party, but the lost American liberal minded do not try to disguise the fact that Mr. Thomas' state is a state of mind, just as the illiberal minded, such as Bishop James Cannon Jr., recognize that Mr. Upshaw-an'-at-'em of the Prohibition party is slim pickings for customers who were accustomed to the cream of the crop in the major parties.

There is left Coin Harvey of the National Liberty party and there are probably a few others whose names do not occur at the moment, but as roads to redemption none promises arrival at any destination. Dissent is out of luck. The Planned society has plenty of architects, but no bricks. Mr. Borah alone has found a refuge, but if rajayoga is beyond the spiritual grasp of the others, as it probably is, there is only one thing they can do and that is to declare the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November a day of national humiliation and lock themselves in their closets for the occasion.

THE ITALIAN NAVAL PLAN.

The Italian plan of naval reduction may be welcomed without drawing any of the optimistic inferences to which our official zeal for peace through disarmament is prone. It may be welcomed as a measure of retrenchment which will benefit Italy directly and therefore it may be hoped Europe and the world. To that extent it is a contribution to stabilization and recovery.

It is not, however, an experiment in international self-sacrifice and altruism. The retirement from commission of Italy's two battleships, for example, is not practically a reduction in relative strength. Two battleships are not a battle fleet and would only unbalance and restrict the efficiency of a force otherwise made up of faster and lighter ships. The money spent on their upkeep and operation would obviously better be saved or expended upon ships which are within the strategic and tactical design of the Italian navy. The Italian policy recognizes that Italy cannot afford to build against France in this category, much less against the other great naval powers. Her needs and potentialities are better served by fast cruisers, destroyers, submarines and aircraft.

The other reductions conform with what seem to us sensible considerations of economy and naval efficiency as conditioned by Italy's situation. They do not deplete her strength, but on the contrary increase it by permitting the use of her available resources on the best naval equipment she is able to maintain. The plan seems to us a contribution to sanity in naval maintenance and policy. It is not an act of abnegation or of unilateral reduction in actual naval power.

Editorial of the Day

KNOWS HIS WAY ABOUT.

[The Baltimore Sun.]

Henry Field, who beat Senator Brookhart for the Republican nomination for reëlection from Iowa, did a great deal of clowning in the campaign. But, while he still speaks of himself as being "plain as an old shoe" and discusses governmental problems in homely vernacular, he exhibits a background of common sense which suggests that he may not be a bewildered crossroads storekeeper who would be a total loss in the seats of the mighty.

Henry is for less government in business—"a whole lot less." He believes the prosperity of the country is wrapped up in the prosperity of the farmer, but he is one Iowan who has no sure fire cure for agriculture. He has no doubt that the administration's plans for relieving the farmer were dictated by an honest purpose, but he would like to see "some move toward farm relief without congress having so much to do with it." This, too, coming from the corn belt, is refreshing. And as for the trouble between grain men and farmers, Henry would take ten of the best from both sides, lock them in a room, and then be willing to "bet that they would come nearer settling their controversies in ten days than congress has in ten years."

He would whip the depression "not by appropriating billions in taxes in some vague hope, but by courage, common sense, and honesty." If you want to get ahead "you have got to spend less than you make," and this holds true of government, "which never got into business" without messing it up. "So far as most private business is concerned, putting it into the hands of politicians is the best way I know to run it into the ground." If elected in November Henry has no idea of going to Washington thinking he "knows it all."

If Henry sticks to it the country may not know that he is in Washington, but it may not, as is to be said of some other statesmen, become conscious of his presence only to regret it.

THOMAS CURTIS CLARK.

WHY I NEVER MARRIED.

Lysle had been my governess as long as I could remember. She shared our home at officers' quarters. Besides the three R's, she taught me much that a man of nine should know and believe. From her lips I learned that I was attended by two angels, one of whom rejoiced at my good deeds, while the other, a sinister spirit, egged me on to unworthy thoughts and actions. She mothered me, heard my prayers, tucked me in, and kissed my soft round cheek as I fell asleep. If I had a third angel it was Lysle.

A love for the cool moss grown aisles of the woodland, where cathedral vaulted tree tops were peopled by God's feathered songsters, led me, often, on lonely trails in unfrequented parts of the forest. On one such excursion I unexpectedly met Lysle and the major approaching on the path, and, horrors, before my very eyes, the major kissed my governess.

Well, as a soldier, what was I to do? I stood at attention, and as they passed I saluted and the major, the big hypocrite, returned my salute. And then, with a lump in my throat and tears in my eyes, I scurried home at top speed.

Later I admonished Lysle, asking her how she thought her angels liked her actions, but as she seemed repentant and promised to be more careful in future I decided to consider the incident closed. But, lo, the deceit and perfidy of the woman. Disregarding both men and angels, she, a short time later, left us and married the major.

This was a severe blow to me, as I myself had planned to marry Lysle. Bowed with sorrow, but disillusioned, I penetrated the depths of the forest and in the solemn presence of my beloved standing trees, took the vow of celibacy—I was through with women at the age of nine years.

ST. LAWRENCE.

THERE IS SOMETHING EERY about this sanctum of R. H. L.'s, as you shall hear. It is located on the fourth floor of the original building constructed back of The Tribune Tower proper. It faces the Chicago river, with the open air parking space, formerly occupied by the Kirk offices, in between. There are no near-by abutments or methods of approach. It is a sheer five stories to the lower level pavement below.

As we entered the sanctum there was scattered glass on floor and desk. We looked up to see an irregular aperture about a foot in diameter in the window pane. Now the mystery. On the floor was a telltale golf ball, which from its position evidently had come through from the outside. But how and from whence?

FARM RELIEF.

Wake-Line: Encourage all farmers to raise puffed wheat. The average yield of wheat per acre in the U. S. is 28 bushels. Puffed wheat occupies twice the bulk, so the average would be 56 bushels. Statistics show one bushel of this wheat boxed to sell for breakfast food brings about $8. Think of the extra surplus the farm board would have to give away to show a greater deficiency of taxpayers' money that it now shows.

SOME TOOTHACHE REMEDIES.

THE remedy for toothaches that most persons know about is oil of cloves. It is supposed to be applied on cotton. A small wad of cotton saturated with this remedy is placed in the hollow of the complaining tooth. The remedy is good enough for the circumstances which fit its use. In the hands of the dentist it is fine. That functionary cleans out the cavity nicely, then dries it, and skillfully places the drop of clove oil where it will do the most good.

Unfortunately for the popularity of the method, toothache has a way of its own. It develops in the night mostly, and in places to which a dentist is not handy. When mother tries to put cotton in the hollow of the tooth along about 1 o'clock in the morning she is apt to fall in her undertaking.

Dr. Frederick A. Cook, who tried to minister to a few thousand inmates at Leavenworth, found this matter of expert tooth service around midnight theoretically all right but practically difficult. He found that powdered acetyl salicylic acid was excellent as a relief measure. The powder is applied to the tooth, to the gums around the aching member, and to the part of the tongue near by. The patient is told not to swallow the powder for five minutes, anyhow. He found the remedy to give excellent results. Anybody can apply it, by any kind of a light, at any hour of the night. The drawback to it is the ease with which it is applied. Using it is so easy that most persons overdo it. When overused it may cause small ulcers like apthous stomatitis. However, these heal easily and quickly.

Acetyl salicylic acid, finely powdered, has considerable ability to relieve pain. It is used as a gargle for this purpose; also as a dusting powder for painful ulcers.

Another remedy for the relief of toothache is that proposed by Dr. J. E. Keefe. It consists in spraying the back of the nose and the path to the throat with alcohol.

One wonders if trichlorethylene by inhalation would not be efficient in relieving the pain of toothache, as it is in that of trifacial neuralgia. The cause of toothache is neuralgia of the nerve of the tooth. Decay in almost always the secondary cause. Putting clove oil in the cavity or hollow has the advantage of putting the remedy just where it is needed. Another advantage is that the dentist cleans out the cavity before he puts the cotton in place, and he may bore a little and let out some gas. If any other method is used the cavity is liable not to get the immediate attention it needs—the service the pain is calling for.

ANGINA PECTORIS.

Mrs. W. C. A. writes: I wish to thank you for letting us know about moleskin adhesive plaster for bunions and all foot troubles. It has been wonderful for four members of our family, especially for calluses of years' standing and a corn on each little toe of an old lady.

1. What is angina pectoris?
2. What are the symptoms?
3. What causes it?
4. Can it be cured?
5. Is it an illness of long duration?
6. Is rigor mortis absolute proof of death?

REPLY.

1. A pain or sense of uneasiness and oppression which is felt back of the upper part of the breast bone. It is apt to shoot from that location to the left in the chest and sometimes down the left arm.
2. It is a symptom, as given above.
3. Most persons think it is caused by a disease in the heart wall and in the blood vessels that supply it. One authority thinks it is caused by stretching of the fibers of the aorta. That question is one for physicians to work over.
4. Each attack is apt to be self-limited, but the attacks recur. Angina pectoris is a serious symptom and calls for attention immediately and for good care of the heart between attacks. It is usually advisable to change some habits.
5. As a rule, attacks occur for two or more years. There are many exceptions.
6. Yes. It is a late sign. There are some reasonably good earlier ones.

IT IS NETTLE RASH.

A. H. G. writes: 1. Periodically for eighteen months I have been subject, during the day and the night, to an intense itching of the skin which turns red in spots. When I scratch it leaves raised welts, with the appearance of having been struck with a cat o' nine tails. This will appear sometimes on neck and jaws, sometimes on shoulders and sides; then again on thighs.

2. Will the water at Hot Springs, Ark., be harmful?

3. I understand it is of radium class and the senate has been asked to investigate its chances of being harmful.

REPLY.

1. You have urticaria, or nettle rash. If you can find the cause and avoid it you will need no further doctoring. Investigate the subject of allergy. Everybody else is.
2. I do not think it will harm you. Neither will it help you. It is not a cure for allergy diseases.
3. I am informed that you have been misinformed. There has been no charge that these waters contain enough radium or radium in the form to be harmful.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

R. F. C. LOANS.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I believe I read in the text of the emergency relief bill recently signed by President Hoover that a certain portion of the appropriation was to be obtainable by individuals for the purpose of building homes, the loans to be long term and not to exceed $20,000. Was this correct? If the first statement is correct how can one obtain information on getting such a loan?

C. L. P.

Sec. 4d of the home loan bank act provides that until the government contribution has been repaid, "any home owner who comes within the limits of this act and who is unable to obtain mortgage money from any other source may obtain same from any bank organized under this act." It seems probable that the regulations to be adopted will define inability to obtain money from other sources in such a way that direct loans from the Home Loan bank to individual borrowers will be exceptional and that the bulk of the business will be in loans to building and loan associations and similar institutions which will deal with the general public. The opening of a channel through which member associations can move their mortgages will encourage these associations to lend more readily and in this way will benefit individual home owners. Bonds will be issued by the Home Loan bank on the security of the accumulated mortgages and the market for such bonds will determine how much money will be available for continuing operations. The system will not be in operation till near the end of the year, but it is hoped that there will be some anticipatory beneficial effect.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

DEFECTIVE RAIN GUTTERS.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—[Friend of the People.]—The house opposite ours needs new eaves badly. When it rains the water pours down all around the house. As a result the dirt runs on our walk and it keeps our basement damp. Also, the vacant lot near by is overgrown with weeds.

A. W. G.

You are advised that, due to a former complaint, the following notice was served on the owner: "Repair or replace rain gutters on south side of building." Subsequently our inspector reported that he interviewed the owner, who stated he would comply within thirty days. The complaint of a growth of weeds has been assigned to an inspector for investigation, and if any violation is noted, proper action will any violation is noted proper action will be taken.

HERMAN N. BUNDESEN,
President, Board of Health.

NOISE WILL DIMINISH.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—[Friend of the People.]—Behind the city pumping station in the 1700 block on Springfield avenue the city water department is digging a large hole. Between the blasting and two air compressors running we cannot sleep at night as the men work twenty-four hours a day. Can't these compressors have a muffler placed on them to deaden the noise?

W. H. P.

The work at the Springfield avenue pumping station is in connection with a new water tunnel which will increase the water supply on the west side of the city. The increase is sorely needed, and the work is being pushed as fast as possible. The annoyance due to the blasting will diminish as the work advances when the blasts will take place farther underground and at increasing distances from the shaft. We will substitute electrically driven compressors for the present ones operated by gasoline in the near future. We will try to muffle the gasoline engines for the present.

A. A. SEGALE,
Commissioner of Public Works.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

AUGUST 25, 1916.

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Negotiations between President Wilson and executives of the principal railroads to settle the wage controversy and avert a general strike are expected to reach their crucial stage tomorrow. At a meeting then the carriers intend to answer the President's demands for an eight hour day and a commission to investigate overtime pay. It is expected the answer will be neither a complete acceptance nor a complete rejection of the President's compromise plan. The roads fear to accept an eight hour proposal, because it is uncertain what course the interstate commerce commission might take on a rate raise.

LONDON.—Striking simultaneously the British and French have made substantial gains on the Somme front. Maurepas has fallen to the French, who have pushed forward more than 200 yards beyond the town on a front of a mile and a quarter. The British report a 300 yard advance south of Thiepval and the capture of many prisoners. The capture of Maurepas leaves Clery almost surrounded and brings the French directly in front of the important railroad town of Combles.

SOFIA.—The victorious Bulgarians are driving the allied troops before them on the front between Lake Presba and the Struma river. The official announcement says the retreating enemy is leaving many dead behind. Kostour and Kastoria, south of Lake Presba, have been captured by the Bulgars.

PETROGRAD.—Russian forces operating in southern Turkish Armenia have reoccupied Mush, captured by the Turks on Aug. 8, a war office announcement says. Teutonic forces have begun determined attacks against the Russians who recently forced their way across to the west of the Stokhod river in the vicinity of Rudka-Chervischa, northeast of Kovel. The presence of Turkish troops on the Zlota Lipa [Galicia] is disclosed by prisoners taken.

BERLIN. — French infantry made several attacks in the region of Thiaumont work, northeast of Verdun. These attacks were unsuccessful, the war office says. French and British attacks on the Somme were repulsed.

BERLIN.—A wireless dispatch from Austria says that a court martial has sentenced Gen. Riedel, in command of Goritz when the city was captured by the Italians, to dismissal from the army and loss of his rank and pension.

ROME.—Italians are pressing their offensive movements at various points in the Dolomites in the far northerly portion of the Austro-Italian front and report occupation of new positions in the Fassa Alps.

CHICAGO. — Frank Carney, just three-quarters of a second quicker on the trigger, banged away five times with his automatic and when he slid through the door of "Jim" O'Leary's gambling palace with a fleeting glance over his shoulder, Michael McDonough, doughty gunman who had fired four shots, was sprawled on the floor dead. It was a gunfight de luxe in O'Leary's gambling palace de luxe and wreaked vengeance de luxe for a knife wound inflicted by McDonough on Carney in a fight four months ago.

CHICAGO.—Eleven dollars and seventy-three cents. That is all the funds that representatives of the Central Trust company, receiver, have been able to find of the millions once possessed by the eccentric and aged Edward W. Morrison. Attorneys Edward S. Tiedebold and W. A. Johnson found the small amount in a garret to cellar search of the quaint old two story Morrison home at 759 West Harrison street. In Judge Landis' court Attorney Francis J. Houlihan revealed how the credulous old man had been mulcted out of his large property by a coterie of strange characters over a period of twenty years.

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. — Miss Elaine V. Rosenthal of Ravisloe, the titleholder, was eliminated in the women's western golf championship semi-finals when she was defeated, 2 and 1, by Mrs. F. C. Letts of Cincinnati. Miss L. Kaiser of Flossmoor eliminated Miss Vera Gardiner of Glen Oak, 3 and 1. Miss Kaiser and Mrs. Letts will play in the final tomorrow.

THE MUSIC FESTIVAL.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—Glory be given THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE for the way it suppressed the gloom of depression of the 125,000 people who attended the third Chicagoland Music Festival. Many of those who attended were out of jobs, many with troubles of other source, but if you gazed around, every individual present had on a smile radiantly displaying happiness. No heart specialist, no psychologist, no doctor could stir the emotions of the heart as did this magnificent event. In other words, it was simply superb, etc.

ROMAN B. KELLAR.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—I wish to express my appreciation and thanks to you for the music festival which you have sponsored for the last three years. It is a fine and enjoyable entertainment within the financial reach of all, and I can safely say that all who attended agree with me as well as those who listened in.

I only wish that the men peddling refreshments and the newsboys would be made to do their peddling silently during the program. One is still hearing the last note of a number when some unappreciative fool of a peddler yells, "hot dogs." It is a very rude recall to consciousness. I also think people should remain seated and silent until the end of the program.

Even those things failed to spoil the fine entertainment. Which is sufficient proof of its merits.

B. TEMLEY.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—Much appreciation for the wonderful spectacle we witnessed last night. We hope to see it again some year in the future.

Our commendation to all, especially to the girls who did the dance. I wish they could have appeared twice on the program.

ROBERT PFEIFER,
Pastor, First Congregational church, Swanton, Vt.

Chicago, Aug. 21.—I wish at this time to thank each and every one who assisted in making the trip of the veterans of the Grand Army of the Republic [ages 81 to 93] to the Chicagoland Music Festival as guests of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE a success. I refer especially to Phil Maxwell of THE TRIBUNE staff, Frank Bering of the Hotel Sherman, the J. J. Krema Trucking company, Brig. Gen. J. J. Gerrity, Col. George D. Gaw, and Richard Wolfe, president of the Chicago Auburn company. Thirty-eight veterans were present. They are thankful to all.

THOMAS L. BEEM,
Adjutant, Department of Illinois, Sons of Union Veterans.

Chicago, August 21.—I attended the Chicagoland Music Festival last night, and I was surprised that the beautiful American flag that hung at the north end of the stadium had its blue field pointing west. Wasn't that a fine example to set before 125,000 people? Still the average person knows so little about the American flag etiquette that they probably didn't know the blue should point east anyway.

ROY W. MCCARTY.

For the superb manner in which the same was carried out in every detail: Compliments.

For the emotional reaction to such an impressive grouping of instrumentalists and vocalists: No suitable expression.

These are poor words for the sensations aroused by your admirable production of last night, in the mind of a visitor from the Philippine Islands—which is America in the tropics.

JAMES KING STEELE.

A DECADENT NATION.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—Here we are; some foreign country again beats us to a new achievement. Eckener pilots the first dirigible over the ocean, Piccard climbs to a height never reached by man, and now comes Mollison, the first man to cross the pond in the westward direction. Yes, sir; foreigners on the alert for doing things and all that we in this country are wasting our time about is to make sure that no one drinks a glass of beer. Well, folks, get up into the attic, dig down into the old trunk and drag out that old favorite tune entitled "Go Way Back and Sit Down."

G. S.

THE RECOGNITION OF RUSSIA.

Chicago, Aug. 20.—May I not point out that in your excellent editorial of yesterday, entitled "Recognizing Russia," a technical misconception on a very important issue may ensue, for Russia, as a geographical entity, does not officially exist at this time? No standard map of the world shows the use of the name "Russia," since it has been proscribed by official edict.

What the soviet government wishes is recognition of the U. S. S. R., which means the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

Should the United States government recognize the U. S. S. R. it would at once be compelled to recognize, let us say, for instance, Chile, if that country should go communist. Then, according to the constitution of the U. S. S. R., the president of communist Chile would, in rotation, have to serve as president of the U. S. S. R. in like fashion, as would the seven presidents of the Ukrainian republic, the Tadzhik republic, etc. The same would hold good with every new country that goes communist, be it Germany, the Philippines, Cuba, Mexico, or what not, and then the United States, in each instance, would have to recognize the new régimes as such would rotate in control of the U. S. S. R. Chaos would certainly follow in international affairs if the U. S. A. recognizes the foolish principle as stated.

What the U. S. S. R. wants in its quest for soviet recognition is, first of all, further credits and the bargaining power to whipsaw competitors for political advantages and the ultimate entrenchment of sovietism as a recognized world system. If the U. S. S. R. is sincere in its desire for extended trade with the U. S. A. and is not simply seeking political advantage, it would cease its propaganda for recognition, since it already has an absolute and extralegal monopoly of all foreign trade—no trade, in the accepted sense of that term, being possible with other than soviet government trusts.

Kuybishev, the chairman of the state planning commission of the U. S. S. R., made the case as stated above full and overflowing when he said in a speech delivered at the conference of the Russian communist party in Moscow, regarding the foreign trade policy of the U. S. S. R. and as quoted in Pravda of Feb. 8, this year:

"The second five year plan will extend over a period during which we must at all costs secure economic independence from the capitalist world. We shall only develop those foreign connections which will enable us to receive products from abroad for any period we may choose, whether it is raw material or machinery, and also only those relations which will enable us to sell abroad the surplus of any production we may have at any time. But we must be the masters of the situation. If we want to sell, we sell; if we do not wish to sell, we shall not. We must contrive to produce ourselves all that the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics requires and therefore not be faced with the necessity of importing. We can either buy or not buy—but we shall not have the need to buy. We must be the masters in our relations with the capitalist world."

H. A. JUNG.

A CITIZEN IN DIFFICULTIES.

Chicago, Aug. 16.—Sunday evening last, while coming from the circus in Grant park, a young man was held up, robbed, and then mercilessly beaten over the head. Half dazed, bewildered, and streaming with blood, he tried to make his way home. At the Michigan avenue bridge a police officer—the first one he had seen—stopped him and had him taken to a hospital, where his scalp was stitched up. While he was at the hospital two detectives quizzed him. They refused to believe his story, but tried to implicate him in a fight of some kind, and would not let him use the telephone to call his friends. The detectives took him to the Chicago avenue police station and put him in a cell for the night. The next morning, after a sleepless night, distracted and weak from his experience, he was bluffed into signing an agreement to pay a police court lawyer to "get him off." We are urged to trust and rely on our police department, but what are we to think of the protection given us by the police when an unoffending and badly injured citizen receives treatment like this?

New Lingerie Temptation to All Shoppers

Magnolia White Feature of Fall Season.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

SUMMER resort brides, the returning vacationists who were persuaded to take themselves out of circulation under the spell of summer moonlight and sun browned summer cavaliers with a beguiling gift of charm, are rushing around in a rosy tinted daze, trying to keep their minds on the important but confusing pursuit of a complete and soul satisfying trousseau.

The shops which lure the greatest amount of money from these temporarily mad young things are the shops which spill yards and yards of chiffon, lace, satin, and silk lingerie in the most conspicuous cases. Trousseau money melts airily and as swiftly as mist under a hot sun when a lingerie shopper reaches these fascinating displays. A suit or coat is almost forgotten with all the lovely lingerie temptations that beset the shopping path of the bride-to-be.

There are plenty of new things to spend your money for . . . new gleaming soft satins as supple and smooth as the blue white petals of the magnolia blossom, the name for a new bridal white that is being introduced this fall. Magnolia white is as perfect a name as any romantic shopper could ask for. This satin has the pale silver shimmer, with faint blue shadows of the same pale blue white of magnolia blossoms.

Bridal nightrobes of this glamorous satin are something to dream over, long clinging models with bias seaming . . . yokes and necklines outlined in fragile cobweb Alencon laces in either white or sun tan shades. One creation is a picture book affair, with a short slithering train, also edged with insets of matching lace.

The newest idea to flutter over is the deep cowl back. Folds of lustrous magnolia white satin are draped and attached to the low waistline. These bridal nightrobes are as sophisticated and perfect in design as the slender evening gowns they are patterned after.

Combinations, also made with bias seaming, trimmed with Alencon lace and made to fit the silhouette smoothly, are also available in the same new blue white shade to match the nightrobes.

Breathtaking lingerie in flesh and rose tints will satisfy the most capricious trousseau collector . . . thin rosy satins, trimmed with bands of delicate lace in ecru tints, have unusual back treatments . . . one uses a high shoulder strap crossing horizontally the deep oval cutout, while criss cross straps in suspender effect are used for others. Misty trifles of flesh colored Ninon fashion the new next to nothing combinations that can hide under the most form clinging gown without a wrinkle.

There are more form fitting costume slips now on display than you have seen in years. And practically every one of them will slide into place and stay there, serenely unwrinkled, no matter how active the slip owner is. Most of the newest slips are fitted with brassiere tops or are made with a decorative bit of embroidery and hand hemstitching so that one may wear these good looking feminine creations under a smart black gown, made with a deep cowl neckline.

Whitewood Is Good Name for Ryan Residence

Wheaton Estate Opened for Charity Sale.

BY JUDITH CASS.

WHITEWOOD is a most appropriate name for the William A. Ryans' new estate in Wheaton, for the impression one carries away after a first visit to the house is one of pristine whiteness and newness, both inside and out. Very attractive whiteness and newness, however, and especially so on a warm day like yesterday, when the Vocational Society for Shut-Ins held a sale there.

The exterior of the house is white and so is the entrance hall, a charming room with a soft réséda green rug, two empire sofas covered with striped material in soft greens and golds, two lovely old gold framed mirrors and two circular windows looking out to the screened porch, where the sale was held.

The windows are outlined with gilt wire contrivances somewhat on the order of the old photograph holders that used to hang in Victorian houses, each contrivance holding a white tin vase in which there were gorgeous white hydrangeas yesterday.

Out on the porch, where the articles made by shut-ins were displayed, one looked out on a peaceful country scene with a haystack and fields in the background and a tiny garden in which were blooming late summer flowers in the foreground.

Porch Furniture Black and White.

The porch furniture, black and white wicker, was in the yard yesterday, but one would not need much imagination to realize how inviting and cool looking the porch must be when the furniture is in place. White Venetian blinds shade the porch, as they do all the first floor rooms of the house, which is reminiscent of some of those exquisite small châteaux in France.

The furnishings, too, are of French inspiration, a sort of combination of empire and modernistic, which is so simple and lovely in design and which is so chic nowadays.

The drawing room has baby blue walls, a raisin color rug, lemon yellow draperies, and the furniture is all in soft grays and whites except for one sofa which is covered in red and ivory striped damask. The only other touch of bright color in this room yesterday were salmon pink gladioli which were in two black vases at the ends of the mantelpiece.

A colorful and stunning room, but not as stunning as the white and black dining room, which has dead white walls and ceiling with a molding of silver balls where the ceiling joins the walls. No rug covers the dull waxed black floor of wood squares and at the windows hang draperies of heavy white corded silk, which must have pale pink linings for the sun shining through them yesterday cast a faintly rosy glow.

Furniture of Old White Wood.

The furniture is of old white wood, the chair seats of dull white leather and the table and side board tops are marbleized in black. A crystal chandelier hangs above the dining table and on the two side tables are lovely old crystal candelabra.

A winding staircase leads up to the second floor but only Mrs. Ryan's intimate friends went upstairs to see the bed chambers yesterday. Assisting at the sale were Mrs. Dewes Burgweger, president of the society; Mrs. Henry Murphy and Mrs. Harrison T. Yenton, members of the board, and Mrs. Niblack Thorne, Mrs. Horace O. Wetmore, Mrs. Joseph M. Bricker, Mrs. David F. Taber, Mrs. Edwin A. Hoffman, Mrs. Ira L. Couch, Miss Dorothy Plamondon and Miss Elizabeth Brown.

Mrs. Ryan is the former Helen Hurley and Whitewood was the wedding gift of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward N. Hurley, whose country place, Hurley farms, is the next estate east of Whitewood. The Ryans, who occupied a rented house in Wheaton during the building of their own house, just moved into it this summer, and yesterday was the first time Mrs. Ryan had opened it for any sort of large affair.

J. Earling Fitches Visit Uncle Here.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Earling Fitch are in town visiting Mr. Fitch's uncle, Sherman Earling, at 732 Junior terrace. The former Jane Wright Anderton and her husband have been with Mr. Fitch's mother, Mrs. Frederick C. Thwaits of Milwaukee, at her Oconomowoc summer place since their arrival from France several weeks ago, and they probably will spend a few weeks in Chicago before they return to France in October.

Dr. O. E. Van Alyea, whose brother, Thomas, is married to the former Margaret Fitch of Milwaukee, is to be host at a small buffet supper for Mr. and Mrs. Fitch this evening at the Saddle and Cycle.

Most of the Chicagoans and former Chicagoans now spending the summer or residing permanently in southern California met on Sunday or Monday at one of two house warming receptions given by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hervey Jackson at their new residence, San Carlos ranch, at Montecito.

The new house, which has been under construction for more than a year, is a Spanish California type of architecture similar to the John J. Mitchell's ranch house in Santa Barbara. The ranch includes a half size polo practice field, stables for the polo ponies, kennels for Mrs. Jackson's famous Kerry Blue terriers and many acres of orchard.

Scores of guests attended each of the two house warming parties. Among the familiar Chicago names on

"More Merry-Go-Round" Is Published.

BY GENEVIEVE FORBES HERRICK.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—"More Merry-Go-Round," written, anonymously, by the same authors who, also anonymously, last year sent "Merry-Go-Round" to whirl its way daringly through the country, has just been published by Liveright. It is a smart, tart satire on our national capital, from President Hoover to the lady lobbyist. It is packed with the names that everybody has heard of. It is filled with revelations that, in many cases, have already been printed, but are served up with a new flip and a flair.

The anonymity of the authors is not nearly so complete, by the way, as when their first book appeared. The two men responsible for most of the book are Robert J. Allen, the reporter, who was fired from the Christian Science Monitor for his participation in the writing of "Merry-Go-Round," and Drew Pearson, attached to the Washington bureau of the Baltimore Sun. Their chief collaborator is said to have been George Abell, columnist for the Washington News.

As the November election nears, Democrats will probably find happy reading in the opening chapter on the "Dance of Depression," in which the authors rake the Republican administration over the coals for a lot of things.

Prominent in the dance, along with Leaders Herbert and Lou Hoover, are, the book suggests, such national figures as:

Dolly Gann, "the big bassoon of the Hoover administration."

Secretary of State Stimson, "who can trace his ancestry back to the seventeenth century and is never able to forget it," and Robert P. Lamont, former secretary of commerce, "whose fortune dwindled from a round million to his meager salary as a cabinet officer, but who, at Mr. Hoover's request, kept on dancing just the same."

Even the Supreme court, usually so sacrosanct to the most acid ink of authorship, is held up as merely a group of "nine old men," fallible and fretful. Justice Stone, for instance, is described as "always right, the second time."

Ogden L. Mills and Eugene Meyer, characterized as "the right and left bower" of the Hoover administration, it is revealed, waged a perpetual and somewhat petty battle for power, each over the other, when they were both "wizards of reconstruction on the reconstruction finance board."

Lining up the cabinet to take pot shots at them, the authors dub Secretary of War Hurley "the cotillion leader," and Postmaster General Walter F. Brown as "the political hatchet man" of the administration.

Brown, the authors charge, is so everlastingly on the go, attending to G. O. P. business, that one can never find him at his Washington office.

Here is the way they phrase it:

"It is harder for a senator to see Walter than it is for him to get an audience with the pope. The pope is always in the Vatican, but no one can say when Walter will be in his office."

Senators are ridden ruthlessly around the ring: New Hampshire's Moses, "wise cracker and Walter Winchell," who, the writers charge, lost a chance to be Vice President because of wise cracking; "apostolic Smoot of Utah," who, they declare, has built up a private patronage army in Washington of vast dimensions; Florida's Trammell, who sleeps in his office. Challenging his explanation that he often worked so far into the night that he was too tired to go out to a hotel, the authors wonder—

"Just why the Florida statesman should work late at night," since, in sixteen years of continuous service in the senate, he "has still to give any indication of knowing anything about anything."

The senator who dyed his hair to make him look younger; the senators who put wives and sons on the pay roll and let a clerk do the work; the senators who are "mutes," and those who ought to be; they all come in for their spanking.

Society, with its self-conscious capital [yes, you may take that word in its two meanings, please] S, is held up to scorn. In these days of congressional prattle about economy the authors find it a bit ironic that the social bureau of the state department, which used to be handled by one man, receiving $3,800 a year, now has an annual salary expenditure of $32,300.

Pointing a dollar sign to the governmental extravagance they deplore, the authors of "More Merry-Go-Round" have dedicated the volume "to those who pay for the ride."

Sees Legislation 'Around the Corner' to Sterilize Misfits

Ithaca, N. Y., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—Legislation for the compulsory sterilization of the misfit and the defective "is just around the corner," the Ithaca Rotary club was told today by Dr. Clarence C. Little, former president of the Universities of Maine and Michigan. Dr. Little is director of the Roscoe B. Jackson memorial laboratories at Bar Harbor, Me., and general secretary of the Sixth International congress of Genetics which opens its sessions at Cornell tomorrow.

Reviewing progress in the study of heredity in the 30 years following the first discovery by Mendel, Dr. Little declared that science and humanity must work together to create a race in America that will insure the happiness and well being of its inhabitants. One of the important steps to insure that end must be the prevention of the unfit from propagating their kind, he said.

"We in America," Dr. Little said, "are now carrying on the greatest biological experiment in human history. The biologist is interested in stopping the perpetuation of bad heredity at its source and it is high time that effective measures were taken to this end. We are now spending more money on defectives than we are on school children and conditions will grow worse unless we take advantage of the benefits of our knowledge of the laws of heredity. We favor legislation to restrict the reproduction of the misfit."

Many Chicago Residents Play at Lake Louise

Bartle Bulls There for Stay of Week.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

BANFF, Alberta, Aug. 24.—Up here at Banff and Lake Louise—9,000 feet and more in the clouds—the end of every day finds some Chicagoans talking big game with an Australian hunter, comparing notes on a trail ride through the mountains, or planning tomorrow's climb with an Alpine guide.

For this summer Chicago is well represented among the vacationers who are coming to the Canadian Rockies for a week, a month, or an even longer holiday. The Bartle Bulls have just completed a week's stopover at Banff on their globe circling wedding journey. Mrs. G. F. Edmunds, one of the South Shore Country club's star golfers, is here now playing in the Prince of Wales trophy tourney, and William Campbell arrived the other day to ride the trails. The Ira Nelson Morrises left only recently after several days exploring the pine covered slopes and snow capped peaks on their mountain ponies.

These ponies are foolproof, untiring little fellows—and an open sesame to the mountains. There isn't a picture to equal a group of trail riders setting off in the early morning from lovely Lake Louise bent on discovering some of the loftier playgrounds. The sun has just climbed up over Saddleback mountain and the water has taken on that divine blue which holds the fire of iridescent green beneath its surface—the color of Hera's peacocks.

It probably was some wandering redman who discovered Lake Louise and Banff—some lone eagle who tired of his tribal ritual and turned his eyes and his pony's nose to the mountains. Probably, but no one knows.

Today—change the counters and the game is much the same, for where is the person who mounts a pony and trails the clouds without forgetting all the tribal ritual he has ever known or without discovering some new panorama and the marks the Indians left behind? Graven on trees and stones hereabout in legendary lore is the history of the Cree, Sioux, and Stony Indians, their patient squaws and little papooses. The descendants of some of these stalwarts still camp out around about Banff and Lake Louise, eating wild game, fish, roots, and berries, but most of them live now on the Indian reserve at Morley.

As to freedom, take the case of the young son who set out the other day to explore the glaciers lone handed. A guide found the 12 year old, warned him that he was in a dangerous place and might topple into one of the crevasses, but no attention whatsoever from the youngster. Disturbed, the guide at last hunted up the lad's father, only to receive the nonchalant reply:

Guests of Sally to Enjoy Laughs at Movie Today

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

A lot of laughs are scheduled for this afternoon when a hundred boys and girls will gather for our party at McVicker's theater to see that array of comedians known as the Marx Brothers. The picture is called "Horsefeathers" and it's reported to be one of the funniest imported from Hollywood in a long time.

Those of you who won invitations to this rollicking party should make a point of being punctual this afternoon so that we won't have to miss any of the performance.

It's also a big day for the boys and girls who are interested in seeing that mystery picture, "Seventy Thousand Witnesses," coming to the Oriental theater next week. I hope all your letters reach me this morning for I am planning to select my hundred guests before party time this afternoon. You'll know Sunday whether you're a winner, for the list of lucky ones will appear in THE TRIBUNE that day. In the meantime, be patient and —hope for the best.

I'll be seeing you this afternoon.

The Death Watch

By Edgar Wallace

SYNOPSIS.

Peter Dunn of Scotland Yard is in pursuit of a band of thieves who some years before had robbed the Canadian Bank of Commerce in London. The robbers spent nine years in jail for the theft, but the loot was never found trace of. Peter's buddy, Inspector Sam Allerway, was dismissed in disgrace, accused of taking a bribe from the head thief, and killed himself. Peter, the only baronet in the service, kept right on working after he came into his title and fortune. It was his form of fun and he wanted to vindicate Allerway. The year after the robbers were released Peter, on a vacation, cruising on the Thames, recognizes a servant in a supposedly haunted house as one of the robbers. Peter stays in a nearby town and investigates. The house is owned by Mr. Hannay and is one of two identical villas lying side by side.

INSTALLMENT IV.

A HAUNTED HOUSE.

"In fact, Chesterford is one of the nicest houses in these parts," said Peter's informant. "It has beautiful grounds, a bathing pool, and everything."

Mr. Hannay apparently was a wholesale draper who had passed his responsibilities on to a limited liability company in the days when company promoters were paying enormous sums for likely propositions. He had one child, a daughter—her name was Patricia. Peter had a glimpse of her driving a large car through the town. She wore a blue tennis jacket and a gayly colored scarf about her throat. Her head was bare and her brown hair was flying in all directions. Pretty, he thought; but then, Peter had this weakness, that he believed most women were pretty.

His very discreet inquiries produced no stories of ghosts—at least, no ghosts attached to Chesterford. Yet something peculiar was happening in Mr. Hannay's house. Servants were leaving; few stayed there more than a week—this he learned at a local employment agency. The butler had left a month before and had been replaced. Two cooks had left in one week; there had been five new maids in the house in the past two months.

Mr. Hannay was a gentleman of irreproachable character. He was rich, a churchgoer, had a large electric canoe and two cars. Obviously he was not a flighty man; a plain, matter of fact, sober, rather intolerant citizen so far as Peter could make out. There had been some feeling locally because, at a recent parliamentary election, he had discharged two gardeners who had had the temerity to vote for the Labor candidate, and very foolishly had boasted of their fell deed.

He was, in fact, the kind of man one might meet in any small English town, who believed that the country was going to the devil and that something ought to be done about it.

Three days of his vacation Peter gave up to a little private investigation. He went near enough to the house to catch a glimpse of Miss Patricia driving the yellow car, and was considerably impressed.

The household, he discovered, consisted of Mr. Hannay and his daughter, a working butler named Higgins, two maids, one of whom had left in a hurry—Peter supposed this was his terrified guest—and a gardener-chauffeur who had recently been engaged.

Peter made a very careful survey of the grounds, but did not approach the house. It was easier to examine the second of Mr. Diggin's Follies, for the red brick villa stood more or less as it had been delivered from its maker's hands; an atrocity of a building, gaunt, desolate. It stood in two acres of untidy ground. No attempt had been made to form a garden; the weeds were knee high; the windows blurred with the rains and dust of years. In one part of the field—it was little more—he found the old chicken huts that had been delivered years before and had been stacked at the back of the house. The weather had taken toll of them: most of them had fallen to pieces.

He cleaned a pane of glass with his handkerchief and stared into an empty room the walls of which had been covered with a paper of atrocious pattern. It was peeling from the walls, and as he stared he saw a little brown form whisk across the floor and disappear into a cavity which he identified as the fire grate.

"Rats and rubbish," said Peter.

He tried the doors, front and back; they were locked. At the back door he thought he saw the trace of a footprint, but this was not remarkable: the people in the neighborhood often came over to stare at Diggin's Folly; they overran the surrounding ground and would have picnicked there if its bleak character had encouraged such a frivolity.

About twenty years before the gloomy house had gained notoriety as the scene of a very commonplace murder. A tramp woman had been murdered by another wanderer of the road who had long since fallen through the trap in expiation of his crime. It was when he was making inquiries about this deserted place that Peter heard the first hint of a ghost.

The place was reputedly haunted, or had enjoyed that reputation till the public grew tired of its mystery. Yet Peter discovered an elderly man who had seen the old tramp woman walking in the grounds of the house, wringing her hands and moaning.

"I admit I'd been drinking that night," said his informant, "but I know when I've had enough."

"That," said Peter, "is a more common illusion than ghosts."

He had a three weeks' vacation. Nearly a week of it was gone. He went up to Scotland Yard and saw his chief.

"Surely, you can have six weeks if you want it. It's due to you, but you told me that three would be sufficient."

Peter explained that he needed the rest. He had just finished with an important and tiring case, and the extra leave was granted.

He had another object in coming to town. He collected his car. Peter Dunn was a rich man. It was the complaint of Scotland Yard that he ought not to be there at all.

He came back this time to Maidenhead. He did not want to be at Marlow too long, and with his car the question of distance was no object.

It was not to be supposed that his presence in the immediate neighborhood of Chesterford should pass unnoticed. After dinner one night Pat Hannay asked her father a question.

"A young man? Good heavens, I don't notice young men! One of the maid's admirers—that new girl Joyce is rather pretty."

"He doesn't look like a maid's admirer," said Pat. "In fact, I cherish the romantic impression that he might be waiting to catch a glimpse of me."

"Nonsense!" said her father.

"You're very rude," said Pat, and then: "Do you realize that we know hardly anybody in this neighborhood? We've got a lovely tennis court that nobody plays tennis on, and even my London friends do not come to Chesterford."

Mr. Hannay looked at her in amazement.

"Why on earth do you want people here?" he said. "Half the delight of the country is that one is alone."

"It isn't half my delight or even a quarter of it," said Patricia Hannay, and went on without a pause: "He was rather nice looking."

"Who was?" asked her baffled father. "O, the young man you saw? Well"—heavily jocose—"why don't you ask him to play tennis with you?"

"I thought of that," said Pat, and then struck a more serious note. "You know the cook has left?"

"Has she?" said Mr. Hannay in astonishment. "I thought tonight's dinner was extraordinarily good——"

"I cooked it," said Pat. "It was rather fun, but if I did it more than twice it would be a bore. Daddy, do you realize what an awfully ugly house this is?"

She was touching Mr. Hannay's tenderest point. He was an amateur architect. It was his boast that he had designed the additions that had turned a villa that was plain to the point of ugliness into something which bore a resemblance to a charming country house.

"I don't mean that the architecture's ugly," said Pat, hastily tactful, "but it's so isolated, and I can almost understand the servants getting ideas about ghosts and groanings and rappings. Why don't you let it, daddy? That was a magnificent offer you had the other day."

"Let it?" scoffed Mr. Hannay. "Absurd! It would be—um—derogatory to my position. I can't let furnished houses. I either close them up or sell them. I was saying to Dr. Herzoff at the club—he's an excellent player; in fact, I had all my work cut out to beat him——"

She had heard of Dr. Herzoff before.

"FRANCES."

If the club's O. K. I wouldn't let him get that bossy.

"Dear Miss Blake: I love a boy who pays attention to me except when his people are around. Does he love me?

Stagg Offers Road Work in Gridiron Film

Leads Players in Run Down Field.

BY ROSALIND SHAFFER.

Hollywood, Cal., Aug. 24.—When the Fox company was filming "Rackety Rax," a picture about defeating a crooked college football team, the studio induced A. A. Stagg, the veteran University of Chicago coach, to play the rôle of the football leader who gives his boys a pep talk in the training quarters and inspires them to go out and "do up" the roughneck opposition.

When they shot the scene in the Los Angeles Olympic stadium, where the Olympic games recently were held and where Notre Dame and the University of Southern California play their biennial coast feature game, Mr. Stagg was supposed to give his pep talk and then send all the athletes charging out of the dressing rooms and tearing up the sod to get at the roughnecks.

When the scene was actually shot under Director Al Werker's instructions Mr. Stagg himself got so worked up in his enthusiasm over pepping up his synthetic team of former Yale, Harvard, Northwestern, Notre Dame, and Trojan players that when the team came galloping out onto the field Mr. Stagg was galloping ahead of them, and he stayed ahead, much to the surprise of all, for the entire run down the lane of what had been the Olympic games 100 meter dash track. This was a few days after Mr. Stagg had celebrated his seventieth birthday.

They shot the scene several times, but each time Mr. Stagg appeared at the head of the 100 meter track about three feet in the van of the charging athletes, and each time he ran so fast he stayed the same three feet in advance all the way to the players' bench. So they voted that "the old man" was the peppiest film newcomer they had used in a long time, and let the film run that way.

Child Quickly Absorbs His Elders' Manners

Learns Little Niceties of Life Early.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

The postman blew his whistle and the little boy went careening to the door and brought in the mail. As his mother glanced over it she stopped.

"Why, here's a letter for you, Jeremy," she said, then read the address ceremoniously because it was Jeremy's first letter—and handed it to him.

His eyes gleamed, of course. Then he gave it back to his mother.

"Read it, Mommie."

"You open it," she said. "It's your letter."

A scene like this, added to observations of older members of the family about respecting each other's mail, never reading another's letters without permission, makes an impression. In fact, it makes so much of an impression that it never becomes necessary to say, "We don't open each other's letters, or read them if we find them lying around." A child absorbs these courtesies or points of honor if he has seen them observed by every one about him.

A little boy I know received a letter the other day from a friend. He's old enough to read and loves getting mail. After he'd read the letter—he was in bed with a cold—he put it under his pillow. His mother to whom he usually handed his letter said, "May I read it, son?"

Some little quirk, perhaps something he'd heard, made him say, "But it was meant just for me to read, Mother." And his mother let it go at that until she had time to go deeper into his motives.

Quite different in ethics and delicacy of feeling are these two instances from the state of affairs in two homes I used to know of.

"Don't write anything you don't want Mother to know," said one grown woman and, "You'll just have to write me at the office," said another, because both their elderly mothers opened and read their daughters' letters if the mail came first to them.

Fight to Keep Family Acres Novel's Theme

Hilda Vaughan Studies Crazed Woman.

"The Soldier and the Gentlewoman," by Hilda Vaughan. [Scribner's.] Published tomorrow.

HILDA VAUGHAN, the wife of Charles Morgan, one of the latest literary meteors in England, is herself the author of four novels, all set in Wales where she and her ancestors came from. She writes of her strange mystical Wales with a studied disinterestedness that does not conceal her shining love and pity, and the intenseness of her personal attitude that quietly appear under the surface polish of her writing.

HILDA VAUGHAN.

"The Soldier and the Gentlewoman," a curious title for this book with a sort of ghastly whimsicality about it, tells the story of Gwenllian Einon-Thomas, a middle aged spinster who has known life only through the men who have thwarted her. Her father whom she worshiped barely noticed her and provided in his will that, should his sons die, the family estate would not go to the daughter but to the nearest male heir.

Her brothers brushed her aside from their lives as carelessly as if she had been a fly. Her sweetheart asked her to go away with him but when she refused temporarily never again attempted to see her. Her emotional life, diverted from the natural outlets of passion, devotion and affection gradually became centered upon the family estate, upon the traditions which her family handed down from generation to generation. Here at last she would not be denied, nor spat upon, nor be lashed by tongues of malice.

But her brothers are lost in the war and a cousin, an undistinguished little worm of a man, is made heir to the estate. They meet before she leaves her home and she with her obsession pressing upon her devises a scheme, opens a campaign to keep the estate. The soldier and the gentlewoman are married, the soldier without brain or courage or will, a pawn for the woman, a generation older, with her dark purpose and her pride.

For many years they live together without love or harmony. Gwenllian bears two sons through her sheer determination that the Einon-Thomas line shall not die. The soldier squanders money, pathetically tries to adapt himself to a life he soon hates. He wants modern improvements in the old house, he wants gayety, men and women sipping his wines, praising his gardens and lawns, he wants frivolity and tinsel and a harmless badness. The struggle goes on throughout their lives, the husband beaten down under her will, the wife conquering slowly halted from time to time by her defenselessness against his humiliating pettiness. Gwenllian's obsession finally becomes an expression of insanity, a cold calculating madness. One night under the yew trees, planted in a circle hundreds of years ago, in the blackness of this circular enclosure she plans her revenge.

A few years later, robed in black, triumphant, with her two sons near her, pitiful in her dependence, the mistress of the glory of the Einon-Thomas' heritage, at last released from the frustration of her life but the possessor of a secret that can never be uttered, she goes over the countryside, giving sympathy to those who need it, money to the helpless, attending church regularly and gradually building up around herself the legend of sainthood.

The characterization of Gwenllian, despite what might seem to be its extravagant conception, is handled with restraint and a beautiful economy of words. The book has a precision that does not tire the reader. The contrast between the forcefulness of Gwenllian and the weakness of the soldier [you never think of him by any name] helps to give variety to the plot and scene, to give the novel more than one tone.

Despite the excellence of the style, the competent characterization and the effective creation of atmosphere, "The Soldier and the Gentlewoman" just misses being a fine novel. When it is compared for example with Julian Green's "Avarice House," a book dealing with the same theme, then the inferiority is conspicuous. With all the blackness and the grandeur and the melodrama, in "Avarice House" there is life, not cold nor dead, not perhaps as we know it in our own experience, but there, living and memorable.

Hilda Vaughan misses that by her exactness. She has not molded realism to fit her own purposes, has not distorted, has not selected, emphasized, underestimated the facts and intentions and events. She has not taken advantage of the immemorial right of the artist. Nevertheless, "The Soldier and the Gentlewoman" is a good book with the breath but not the voice of life in it. M. D.

A FRIEND IN NEED

BY SALLY JOY BROWN.

Furnishings Needed.

"We are living in a damp basement and must move because I have tuberculosis. We can get a little house in the country and my husband could make a small living by selling eggs. We will need some things, though, which I cannot buy and I wonder if you could get them for me. I'd appreciate having an oil stove, a wash boiler, a tub, oil lamps, fruit jars, and bread pans. We are a family of three. Mrs. M. R."

Most of the articles Mrs. R. requests for her new home are things which may be found in a number of storerooms and basements. If you can resurrect a few of them they will help them in furnishing the house.

It would be Pollyanna-ish and trite to remark that it's an ill wind that blows nobody good. But at the risk of being both I do so remark. For the wind that blew in these days of stiff retrenchment has taught all of us how to make much out of little in ways we never dreamed of before. And one of the best lessons we have learned in the general scramble—especially if we've annexed an office and an eight hour job in the mêlée—is that time is worth gold bricks and that twenty minute dinners instead of three hour ones are a hefty boost back towards prosperity.

Grill dinners—one of the oldest but most newly revived time savers—I recommend most heartily to the time limited cook, whether her hurry results from a dash home from the office, the bridge tea, or the golf course. And if you've never indulged in a grill, don't let that trouble you. Beginner's luck is the regular thing in this cookery method, which is just what it sounds—a system by which the whole dinner, with perhaps the exception of a cold dessert, is assembled at once on a grill in the broiler oven and set to toasting its sides while the final touches of bread, butter, relish, and water are whisked to the table. A frozen dessert or gelatin dish is the correct topping off course, for this may have been mixed in a few moments in the morning and tucked away in the refrigerator and forgotten till the dessert course arrives.

MIXED GRILL DINNER NO. 1.

While the choice of meats to adorn dinner grills is wide, one has to consider a bit more carefully the vegetables or fruits to accompany them, as broiling agrees much better with some than with others. For instance, the following grill seems to give just the right blend of flavors, textures, and food values:

6 lamb chops.
1½ cups brown sugar.
4 large cooked sweet potatoes, split lengthwise.
6 slices bacon.
1-3 cup butter.

Preheat the broiler ten minutes. Grease the broiler rack and sear the lamb chops on it under a good flame, being careful not to let them catch on fire. When seared, surround with the sweet potatoes and pineapple rings. Cream the butter and sugar and spread the mixture on the sweet potatoes. When the chops are nearly done, add the bacon and broil till crisp. Baste the potatoes and pineapple from time to time with the accumulated drippings. Serve directly on to hot dinner plates and garnish with crisp cress or parsley.

MIXED GRILL NO. 2.

Hamburg for 6 large or 12 small patties.
3 bananas.
Salt and pepper to taste.
4 large cooked white potatoes.
1 tablespoon flour.
2 tablespoons melted butter.

Split the bananas lengthwise, form the hamburg into cakes, and slice the potatoes in half inch pieces. Sprinkle all with salt and pepper and arrange on a greased broiler rack. Brush over with the melted butter and powder with flour from a sifter. Broil the dinner in the oven until the patties are cooked to suit. Serve on a large hot platter with the bananas and patties arranged in the center and surrounded by a ring of overlapping potato slices. Dust with finely minced parsley. Follow up with a tart berry pie and Russian coffee.

MIXED GRILL DINNER NO. 3.

4 large cooked yams.
4 large ripe tomatoes.
Dash of salt and pepper.
1 tablespoon flour.
3 tablespoons fat.
Paprika.

Preheat the broiler oven 10 minutes. Meanwhile arrange on a greased broiler rack the salmon fillets [each sufficient for a serving], the yams, which have been sliced crosswise, and the tomatoes, which have been skinned and cut in halves. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, and flour. Dot with butter and spangle with paprika. Let broil until all are a rich brown and the fillets are tender. Serve with lemon slices dipped in minced parsley.

THE STAGE

The American Theater society announces that the first play of its subscription season will be "Whistling in the Dark," with Ernest Truex as the star, opening at the Erlanger theater Oct. 3 for a three weeks' stay. This is a comedy by Laurence Gross and Edward Childs Carpenter with a murder mystery as the basis of its plot. It was staged in New York last January and ran until the last week in May. The committee of seven that selects plays for the American Theater society is said to have voted unanimously in favor of "Whistling in the Dark."

Ernest Truex appeared in Chicago last season as co-star with Beatrice Lillie in "The Third Little Show," a revue. He is best known, however, as an actor of quaint, bewildered, tragi-comic little men, such as the character he played in "Six Cylinder Love." His last dramatic rôle in Chicago was in "The Fall Guy," offered at the Adelphi theater in 1925.

"Whistling in the Dark" will be followed at the Erlanger by the Theater Guild's staging of "Reunion in Vienna" with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne in the central rôles. This opening is scheduled for Oct. 24.

The new stage season will begin with tonight's première of "Cynara" at the Grand Opera house. Philip Merivale is the star of the company of thirty players, among whom Sir Guy Standing, Phoebe Foster and Nancy Sheridan are given emphasized position. The engagement is limited to four weeks.

"Legs and Laughter" is the title of the entertainment which will begin a new régime of shows at the Garrick theater Saturday night, Sept. 3. The program will be a combination of revue sketches, chorus numbers, vaudeville acts and talking pictures, and there will be weekly changes of bill. Among the performers of the first offering will be Benny Moore and Burt Carr, comedians; Lillian Lee, dancer; Nona Martin, soubrette; Esther Burt, Jack Edwards and Mario Fiorella. C. C.

Field Museum Receives 4,000 Plant Photographs

The Field Museum of Natural History has received a shipment of 4,000 photographic negatives of plant specimens preserved in the herbarium of the botanical garden and museum of Berlin, Director Stephen C. Simms announced yesterday. The total number of such photographs being gathered as a joint project of the Field museum and the Rockefeller Foundation of New York has reached 20,000. The purpose of the collection is to provide American botanists and students access to their study without a trip to Europe.

Posture Adds or Detracts from Appearance

Graceful, Erect Carriage Lends Youth.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

I'm going to keep on hammering away at posture, as I think it is the one thing on which the greatest majority of women are remiss.

It is puzzling, when you stop to think of it, how women will spend millions and millions a year for cosmetic beautifying measures; how they will endure martyrdom in the interest of a slimmer figure; how they'll sit under permanent wave and drying machines on the warmest day in summer—and yet on one simple trick which would make a terrific difference in the youthful appearance of thousands of them, they choose to remain blind.

I've noticed recently in conversation several of my friends have complained of how round shouldered they're getting. Now, if that were extra pounds that was the trouble, they'd be on the diets at once, and they'd be rid of the surplus poundage in no time.

When one is beyond the debutante age by a decade or more, let's say, rounded shoulders pile on additional years thickly. And you do see numbers of women who dress well, who spend money regularly on their face and hair, yet who let that back shoulder view present itself as anything but young. In fact, I don't know of anything more ageing in appearance than the rounded upper back line.

If it is flesh burdened, just that much more age is added. An axiom might well be created to the effect that a woman is no younger than the straightness of her back.

Work can be done just as effectively from a straight back posture as the other. Every little while during the day it would be well to jack oneself up on this item, since there is such an excellent youth preserving secret within its practice.

Five to Midnight Gown of Brocaded Satin from Chanel

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.— [Special.] —The French fabric manufacturers have turned their backs on homely and rustic fabrics. Rich velvets and lustrous satins that are brocaded in beautiful patterns of flowers, dots, and even stripes are the kind that are being offered for next fall. They are the new fabrics that will fashion many of next season's smartest evening gowns, late afternoon frocks, and even blouses to go with velvet suits.

Many have been the discussions in the fabric world as to whether dull fabrics would continue to be more important than shiny, but the new brocades remain neutral. They combine both shiny and dull, whether the brocade be in satin or velvet.

The sketch today shows you a Five to Midnight gown in a brocaded satin. Made of a thin, supple satin, in ivory white, it is brocaded in black, in a small pattern that alternates shiny with dull velvet. This gown, which is from Chanel, has an ankle length skirt. Sun ray bands trim the skirt below the waistline in front, these bands becoming gores below the hips. The bodice is draped into a knot at the center front. The sleeves have two deep flounces starting from the elbows.

Better to Enjoy Life Now Than Wait for Future

That Looked for Day May Never Come.

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Better to spend on a little fun as you go along than to stint and hoard for that big day when you will have everything you need.

To illustrate: Mrs. Smith, we'll call her, at 23 married a man without a single bad habit—except one. And a bad one, that! He wouldn't spend a nickel for pleasure! And he wouldn't give his wife a cent to spend. But, he told her, "There'll come a day when you will have everything you want."

Every cent he could lay hands on went into the bank. Presently there was enough there for a first investment. This grew. There was a second investment. And more and more, until the man's financial status could have stood a number of trips to Europe with all of the trimmings, a good home and a well furnished one. Still, he must go on. There must be more before money could be spent "foolishly," as he now termed it.

He grew snoopier around the kitchen as this money disease grew on him. Suggested savings here and there. Tried to hold out further on the household running allowance. No, the old dining carpet would do. Some day they'd have a rich rug and a fine dining room suite, but not yet. No, the wife couldn't have a new coat this winter. But wait until the ship came in and she'd have sables! Always that Wait-Some-Day-You'll-Have-Everything!

Well, his financial collapse was but one of the broken dreams of thousands who wrote their paper wealth off in six figures but a year or so back. Everything went—the real estate, the mortgages, stocks—everything.

The wife feels cheated! Bitterly cheated. The youngsters haven't any feeling for their father that he could use now in his hour of need. They pretty nearly hate this man who denied them and their mother everything for years. He protests that it was for their sakes he wanted big money. He was waiting for the day—

Better to take your fun as you go along than to stint and hoard for the day that may never come.

Longmeadow Hounds Ready.

From Donald F. McPherson, hunt secretary of the Longmeadow Hounds, comes word that their season has opened and that the hounds will meet at the kennels for short morning runs at 6:30 o'clock each Monday, Wednesday and Saturday morning. Albert E. Peirce is M. F. H. of the Longmeadow Hounds, Ernest H. Hicks is field master, and William B. McIlvaine is honorary whip.

Mr. McPherson's communication gives the further information that "the hounds have been regularly exercised during the summer and are in good condition. Although some hounds were lost last winter as the result of distemper, we now have nine and one-half couples. The panels have been worked over and in general the country is in good condition for hunting. The morning runs will be short until cooler weather begins.

Invitations were received yesterday to the wedding of Miss Ann Ashcraft, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Maurice Ashcraft Jr., to Raymond Otis Mitchell, to take place on Saturday, Sept. 10, at 4:30 o'clock in St. Mark's church in Evanston. Like so many of the engraved invitations received nowadays for small church weddings to be followed by large receptions, the old order of the size of the inclosures in the two envelopes has been reversed.

Those persons who are invited only to the reception received only a double folded engraved invitation bidding them to the Ashcraft house a half hour after the ceremony. Those few who are invited to the church found a small card inclosed in the larger reception invitation. This form of engraving leaves no doubt in the minds of the recipients that the church service is to be small and the reception large. At home cards state that the couple will reside at 1209 Astor street after Oct. 15.

Everett Millard Is Back Home.

Everett Millard Jr. has just returned to his parents' residence in Highland Park after a fourteen months' stay in Europe. After his graduation from Harvard a year ago last June the young man went abroad to travel during the summer with his mother and sister and then settled in Vienna to study music and German all winter. And after what sounds like such an idyllic year Mr. Millard expects to go into business in the fall!

Mrs. David Shields Cook, who left Chicago before the warm weather set in for a summer of traveling, is now at Jasper Park lodge, in Jasper National park, Alberta, Canada.

Mrs. Albert de Wolfe Erskine is vacationing from her insurance job and is at Desbarats for a month's visit with her mother, Mrs. J. B. Brower. Mrs. Erskine's own estate in the island colony has been rented for the season to Mrs. Harry B. Clow Jr. and Mrs. Russell Kelley.

Another debutante to be added to the crop of north shore buds is Miss Dorothy Davis, whose parents, Capt. and Mrs. Guy Davis of the United States navy, formerly of Long Beach, Cal., have just taken a house at 1334 Sheridan road, Evanston. Capt. Davis is head of the naval science department at Northwestern university.

STATE PUBLISHES REPORT ON YEAR'S TRAFFIC SURVEY

Shows Costly Rural Roads Are Little Used.

BY HAL FOUST.

State Highway Engineer Sheets yesterday published his first report on a traffic survey started last August for the announced purpose of guiding future road expenditures to projects of the greatest value to the motorists who foot the bill.

The statistics presented in the elaborate preliminary report show Illinois laced with 8,500 miles of pavement, the main routes carrying volumes of traffic that more than justify the cost of the highway, but with hundreds of miles of little used concrete where a cheaper material would have met the needs of travel.

Finds System Sound.

However, in his conclusions, Mr. Sheets has lumped the good roads with the bad, the mileage that returns a rich revenue on the investment with the mileage that was a waste of public funds. By this means, the state engineer finds that the 160 million dollar bond issue system, which will cost half a billion dollars when completed and the bonds retired, is "economically sound."

Of the rural sections of the state's two lane pavements, only 86 miles carry a load in excess of 10,000 vehicles per day, 112 miles carry from 7,500 to 10,000 vehicles per day, 432 miles carry 5,0000 to 7,500 vehicles per day and the remainder of the mileage has a daily flow of less than 5,000. Mr. Sheets does not tabulate the routes with a low usage, but an analysis by the Chicago Motor club of the state's traffic counts for last August, the peak month for travel, shows 1,609 miles of expensive pavement on which $32,180,000 would have been saved had the state built the roads to fit the traffic.

Table Shows Use of Roads.

However, the report does make a comparison by counties of the volume of traffic on the state's mileage. Cook county, with 181.4 miles, had an average daily traffic of 2,661 vehicles for the eleven months from August, 1931 to June, 1932, inclusive. The average flow in August was 4,544 vehicles per day. Some of the counties with little traffic volume are listed in the following table:

County—	Mileage.	Autos per day.
Putnam	25.9	435
Pope	24.8	365
Stark	44.4	564
Johnson	37.9	588
Hardin	13.9	397
Hancock	100.4	588
Ford	107.3	572
Gallatin	28	517

In a class room lecture at the University of Illinois on Feb. 12, 1930, Mr. Sheets said that a traffic of from 500 to 800 cars per day, including trucks, could be accommodated by macadam costing from $8,000 to $15,000 per mile. The most of the concrete roads in these rural sections was approximately $30,000 per mile, and half of the money came from Cook county motorists.

Waste Curbs Expansion.

"If the state had not wasted money on little used concrete," said George Barton, engineer for the Chicago Motor club, "there would not be so many farmers marooned by mud, nor would city residents be marooned by the congestion and delays of travel on antiquated streets.

"An independant analysis of the statistics gathered by the state highway department indicates that much of our expensive concrete was laid on roads required solely to serve some farms or some subdivisions.

"The standard two-lane pavement will care for travel on most of the rural routes, although there are routes where three lanes are needed to aid in passing trucks and slow drivers. A third class is the radial routes leading from centers of population where four lanes are required. A fourth class is the busy radials leading from Chicago which require grade separations at all important intersections and a fifth class is the elevated highways which are necessary in Chicago."

Roads Reduce Auto Costs.

1. The high type of pavement on the state bond issue system has reduced the average operating expense of an Illinois automobile $44.70 a year as compared with an average tax available to the highway department of $23.44 a year.

2. Twelve per cent of all traffic consists of vehicles licensed in states other than Illinois.

3. Fourteen per cent of state highway traffic consists of commercial vehicles and eighty-six per cent private passenger cars.

4. Ninety-three per cent of the area of the state lies within five miles of a state highway.

This preliminary report did not include the surveys made in the metropolitan areas of East St. Louis and Chicago. Ald. John Massen, chairman of the council traffic committee, issued a report on the Chicago study Monday.

FLEET TO STAY ON PACIFIC FOR REST OF YEAR

Washington, D. C., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—Continued unsettled conditions in the orient where Japan is making new inroads on Chinese territory have prompted the state and navy departments to retain the scouting fleet in the Pacific until the Panama canal maneuvers in January, it was learned today. The decision means that for at least another five months the United States will keep its full naval strength concentrated on the west coast.

The scouting fleet was transferred from the Atlantic coast early this year for the Hawaiian and Pacific coast maneuvers. When conditions at Shanghai and in Manchuria grew tense, it was decided to postpone the return of the warships of the scouting fleet to their home base on the Atlantic until October. A few days ago decision was reached to again delay the return of the Atlantic fleet until next January.

A new crisis in the Asiatic situation is expected in September or October when the league of nation's commission appointed to investigate Japanese activities in Manchuria is scheduled to make its report.

WILLIAM J. GLEASON.

William J. Gleason, 83 years old, who described himself as "Gambling Bill" when he was arrested Thursday night because of the reckless manner in which he was passing out $10 and $20 bills, walked out of the South State street court yesterday with $400 of his bank roll still intact. Gleason arrived in Chicago a few days ago from Lincoln, Neb., and registered at the Dearborn hotel, 666 South State street. On Tuesday night he went out for a fling, but was rescued at the 12th street beach by a taxi driver and driven to the detective bureau, where he was lodged in a cell. Yesterday Judge Justin McCarthy freed him.

ADMEN, A. F. OF L. JOIN IN 7 POINT PROSPERITY PLAN

Urge 30 Hour Week and Repeal of Prohibition.

New York, Aug. 24.—[Special.]—What was characterized as the first direct step ever taken to bring about joint action by industry, commerce and labor in a seven point plan for economic recovery and stabilization was announced today by the Advertising club of New York.

The program, worked out by its board of directors and concurred in by the American Federation of Labor, is designed to help restore the nation's economic life and provide jobs for millions of unemployed.

It was revealed after the meeting that a national congress of capital, labor and other important factors in trade and industry would be summoned in this city in October to consider the program and devise ways and means of putting it into effect.

Urge Support for Farming.

Business was urged to declare itself willing to support government policies that fairly serve interests of agriculture, an equally important factor in the nation.

The high lights of the seven points are:

1. That business and labor join in effecting a plan for their common problem—"stabilization for business and security of employment."

2. Revision of the anti-trust laws to permit the gigantic business of the nation to plan sensibly and thus avoid a repetition of the last era of overproduction and consequent depression.

3. Inauguration, through combined efforts of business and labor, of the six hour day and the five day week as a means of spreading employment.

Favor Public Works.

4. An aggressive and increasing program by the federal, state, and municipal governments for public and semi-public works. These, wherever possible, to be primarily income producing or self-liquidating.

5. The broadening of the base of taxation to distribute more generally and fairly the burden as a means of balancing the national budget.

6. Immediate reduction of the cost of federal, state, and municipal government, not necessarily by wage cuts, but primarily by trimming duplication of bureau activities and reducing non-essential duplicated activities.

7. Abolition of prohibition and liberalization of the Volstead act to secure additional employment and raise additional revenue for the government.

FIVE PLEAD NOT GUILTY TO LODGE LOTTERY CHARGE

Senator Davis Fails to Appear.

New York, Aug. 24.—[Special.]—Five of the seven individuals indicted last week in the federal government's drive to end lotteries conducted by national fraternal organizations were arraigned before Judge John C. Knox in federal court today and entered pleas of not guilty.

Neither Senator James J. Davis of Pennsylvania nor Theodore G. Miller of Mooseheart, Ill., who were named in two of the four separate indictments found, was present, and Judge Knox set Aug. 30 as the date for them to plead to these charges.

Conrad H. Mann of Kansas City, President Hoover's personal friend and a prominent figure in middle west politics, appeared with his counsel, former Attorney General Albert Ottinger. He and Frank E. Herring, editor of the Eagle magazine and a professor in Notre Dame university, were indicted together. This indictment, referred to as the Eagle indictment, was set for trial on Sept. 19.

The fourth indictment, naming M. J. Revise, head of the parcel delivery department of the Western Union and the Western Union Telegraph company, in connection with a lottery to be conducted by the Shriners, was set for trial on Sept. 26.

The two principal defendants, Bernard C. McGuire of the B. C. McGuire Merchandise company and his assistant, Raymond Walsh, were named in all four indictments and will be required to make their appearances in court on the various dates fixed. McGuire was held in $2,500 bail and all the others in nominal bail of $1,000 each.

Profits More Than 4 Million.

The indictments charge the defendants with sending or causing to be sent lottery tickets through interstate commerce in violation of the law.

According to government evidence, lotteries for charitable purposes were conducted by the Moose, the Eagles, and the Shriners in which tickets worth $5,000,000 were sold and in which cash prizes aggregating $225,000 were distributed. Bernard C. McGuire promoted these lotteries.

LEAKING LIQUOR SPOILS PRAYER IN VIRGINIA CHURCH

Jenkins, Ky., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—As members of the little congregation at McClure's Fork Church of God, a few miles from the Kentucky border in Dickenson county, Va., knelt in prayer, there came an odor of moonshine whisky, then a trickling of the intoxicant.

To some of those in the supplication it may have seemed a glorious manna was being sent down from heaven, but to others the stench became obnoxious as the flow was more pronounced.

Prayer finally ceased and a converted sister suggested that an investigation be made, concluding with, "Brethren, moonshine whisky should not be permitted in a house of worship."

It was allotted to the smallest man in the congregation to go through a little opening leading up into the attic to investigate. There he found two small jugs and a leaking ten gallon keg of moonshine, with indications the makers had infested the attic of the house of worship for some time. Entrance had been gained by prying the ceiling from the outside beneath the roof. Officers were advised, who confiscated the whisky and are looking for the intruder.

JAIL FOR DRY IS UPHELD BY COURT RULING

Wilmington, Del., Aug. 24.—(AP)—The judgment of Federal Judge John P. Nields, who held Harold D. Wilson, former deputy prohibition administrator for Delaware, in contempt of court for refusing to name the person who gave him a key to a club which was raided, was ordered put into effect in a mandate received today from the Circuit Court of Appeals.

Wilson, who is now connected with prohibition forces at Omaha, Neb., in the fall of 1930 conducted a raid on the headquarters here of the Democratic league of Delaware. The league later entered suit asking that a quantity of beverage seized be returned on the ground that it had been obtained illegally.

Judge Nields in District court in February, 1931, held Wilson in contempt when he refused to reveal the name and sentenced him to an indeterminate stay in the county jail here. Wilson was released on bail, however, pending an appeal to the Circuit Court of Appeals at Philadelphia. The latter court last May upheld Judge Nields.

Earthquake Causes Damage in Island Resort

MANILA, Aug. 25 (Thursday).—(AP)—Several thousand dollars' damage was caused and residents terrified when the most severe earthquake in recent years struck last night at Baguio, a mountain resort 200 miles north of here, and at nearby La Union. Residents at both places slept in the streets, fearing a recurrence of the shock. A landslide blocked the main mountain road.

JAPANESE TROOPS AGAIN ON PATROL IN STREETS OF SHANGHAI

SHANGHAI, Aug. 24.—(AP)—While the Chinese "Blood and Iron society" intensified its agitation for an anti-Japanese boycott today Japanese soldiers in steel helmets appeared again in the streets of Hongkew, one of the Shanghai districts which was fought over early this year. Japanese naval officials announced that they had increased their guard because of the growing anti-Japanese boycott.

Japanese headquarters assured their large national colony in Hongkew that "every precaution will be taken to insure the safety of Japanese residents against the harmful mischief of unruly elements."

The "Blood and Iron society" delivered a bomb to a prominent Chinese merchant here today with a note which read: "This time the fuse is not set. Stop handling Japanese goods or the next time it will be." The Chinese Chamber of Commerce also issued a circular urging merchants to stricter observation of the anti-Japanese crusade.

Marion, Ind., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—Nathaniel Foltz, Grant county's oldest resident, is dead at his home near here of pneumonia at the age of 101. He has ten children living. He came here from Marion, O., in 1834.

BROTHER THINKS SMITH REYNOLDS WAS MURDERED

Winston-Salem, N. C., Aug. 24.—(AP)—R. J. Reynolds Jr., heir to the tobacco fortune founded by his father, said here today he believed his brother, Smith, shot to death at the Reynolds home here, July 6, was murdered.

His bride, Libby Holman Reynolds, and his chum, Albert Walker, are free under $25,000 bonds awaiting trial on a charge of murder growing out of the case, which was at first called suicide by the coroner.

"In view of the facts available at this time, I believe my brother's death was murder," he said, basing his belief on testimony at the coroner's inquest.

Chinese Group Demands U. S. Explorer Be Expelled

SHANGHAI, Aug. 24.—Cancellation of passports and forcible deportation from China of Gene Lamb and his wife, Americans now exploring in Ninghsia, western China, is demanded by the Peiping Association for the Preservation of Cultural Objects, the same organization which crippled Roy Chapman Andrews' activities. The association charges that the Lambs sent to America "false reports and seditious statements insulting China."

Caution:
In the days of slower speeds and unsurfaced roads you were taught to put your best tires on the rear wheels—for traction. Not so today. With speeds of 40,50,60 and better the best tires belong on the front wheels. When a front tire blows it's seldom a minor accident—too often it's fatal.
TODAY'S MARKET is flooded with tires deliberately built to sell as low as $3.93 and similar prices according to size. Built to sell—not to serve. "Round and cheap." Put out with utter disregard for quality. Price is the pattern. The sacrifice of human life is the inevitable penalty.
When a battle for more business directly affects public safety it's time to speak frankly.
Take out quality to meet price in clothing and furniture—in fact, most merchandise—and your only penalty for buying is dissatisfaction. Not so with tires. Human safety hangs in the balance when every tire is made.
A Tire Built for 25 Miles an Hour Cannot Go 40,50 or 60 With Safety
"Bargain" tires unsafe to drive over 25 miles an hour are expected to travel up to 60 and better. They are a menace on American highways—a markdown on the value of human life.
General condemns such tires as a betrayal of the industry's clearly defined responsibility to the motoring public. General has never bid for business by lowering quality.
17.6% Increase in Sales Proves that People Want the Safety of Generals
Today our factory is working full time. Sales are going up. Six months records show 17.6% more General Tires were sold than in the same period last year. What other tire manufacturer can say that?
Generals were always worth the difference when that difference amounted to dollars. Today, with raw material costs the lowest in history, that difference is measured in pennies.
That slight additional first cost brings you the exclusive advantages of patented no-breaker-strip construction—full plies from bead to bead—blowout-proof, skid-safe protection—the comfort of 30% less air pressure—and the economy of General's famous big mileage.

3 CHICAGOANS SURVIVE IN WESTERN AMATEUR GOLF

LEHMAN, BANKS, COUCH GO INTO QUARTER FINALS

Moe, 1931 Champion, Is Beaten.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Rockford, Ill., Aug. 24.—The 33d annual amateur tournament of the Western Amateur Golf association moved through two turbulent rounds of match play over the course of the Rockford Country club today. The close of a day replete with surprising developments left three Chicagoans among the eight men who will battle through the 36 hole quarter-final round tomorrow.

JOHNNY LEHMAN.

Not the least of the day's surprises was the elimination of Don Moe of Portland, Ore., the defending champion. Moe lost to Chick Evans of Edgewater Golf club, Chicago, eight times western amateur champion, in the first round, 1 up. The struggle was not decided until the pair reached the 18th green.

Putter Fails in Afternoon.

Evans' triumph was shortlived. His putter, which had gained him a victory over the champion in the morning round, reversed itself after noon and he was beaten by Arthur Bartlett of Ottumwa, Ia., another veteran of many a western tournament, in the second round, 2 up.

As unexpected as both of these results were, they scarcely overshadowed the defeat of Dick Martin of Sunset Valley, the Chicago district champion, by Richard Ashley of Kenosha, Wis. Martin had shot a 68 in the qualifying round yesterday and until Johnny Lehman, the medalist, posted his 66 for a record breaking qualifying score, Martin had appeared to be certain of leading the field. He carried on his brilliant play in the first round match this morning, eliminating Frank Justin of Chicago with comparative ease, 4 and 3.

Four Up on Martin at Turn.

His afternoon round, however, was another story. Ashley, who had startled the gallery and shattered the morale of his morning opponent, Bob Cochran of St. Louis, with a hole in one on the 130 yard 16th, got the jump on Martin right at the start and led by four holes at the end of the first nine. Thereafter he merely protected his lead and breezed in to win, 3 and 2.

Lehman had no trouble at all coasting through his first two rounds. He routed Joel Shepherd of Kalamazoo, Mich., 6 and 4, in the morning round and in the afternoon defeated Arnold Huhta of De Kalb, Ill., 5 and 4. His play was as steady today as it was yesterday when he turned in his record breaking medal score of 137.

In his match with Shepherd he was out in 35, one under par. On the 10th he holed a chip shot for his fourth consecutive two on this 230 yard hole, and he sank a ten foot putt for a birdie on the 11th. His first above-par hole of the day was the 14th, where he took a 6 to end the match. Incidentally, that was the first hole on which he had taken more than perfect figures in 31 holes of play.

Ex-Stanford Star Wins.

Besides Lehman, Bartlett, and Ashley, those who won their way into the quarter finals are Ira Couch of Chicago Golf club; John Banks, Chicago; Don Armstrong, Aurora; Gus Moreland of Dallas, Tex., and Charles Seaver of Los Angeles, Cal.

Seaver, a former half back on the Stanford university football team, and a member of the Walker cup team, was hard pressed to beat Frank Renwick of Aurora in the first round. Renwick carried him to the 20th hole, where Seaver ended the struggle with

Golden Rule Coaches Go on Gold Rush

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 24.—It is with some confusion that I hear that several of the great spiritual leaders of the game of football have decided to take the shilling from the moving picture industry because the moment that commercialism enters into the soul of a football man sport hops out the window.

I believe this implicitly because the proposition was so stated by these great spiritual leaders a few years ago when C. C. Pyle and other practical promoters were going around corrupting the spirit of sport in many a stalwart young innocent of the football cloisters with financial enticements. Mr. Pyle and the others represented a brutal materialism and they had no ability to appreciate the true beauty of football played under intercollegiate conditions.

They poisoned the idealism of their prey by suggesting to them that when they got out of college they could not pay the rent with laudatory newspaper clippings and little gilt footballs and, though they claimed many victims, the gridiron evangelists undoubtedly saved a few by inquiring, "What is a man profited if he shall gain the rent and the eating money and lose his amateur standing?"

The Dollar Usually Is the Yardstick.

At first I did not understand the value of this spiritual treasure, as it seemed to me that the ability to make money, preferably by honest means, was the one standard gauge by which success was measured in this country. It was not that money, of itself, was the substance of success, but that if a man had great ability his earnings would be commensurate.

Moreover, cost or cash value was the accepted gauge of worth not only as to men but as to achievements. American cities boasted of their libraries, not that they contained so and so many books of such and such a character, but that they had cost a million dollars or two million. A five million dollar city hall was just four million dollars better than a million dollar hospital.

And it was natural to reckon that a football player who could make $10,000 a season for a few years after leaving college was a better football player than the one who did not receive any offers of employment from Mr. Pyle. Football, I took it, was a kind of trade or profession because the colleges emphasized it so and such great care was taken to acquire good football candidates and drill them in the intricate mysteries of the game.

Naturally, if football was a trade or profession a young man who had majored in the game during his years at school seemed justified in pursuing upon his graduation the one occupation for which his physique and his college education have best equipped him. And, of course, the commercial yardstick has been applied to the coaches, too. The most successful of the wizard mentors receive as much as $25,000 a year and pickings, whereas the less successful tutors have to be content with inferior pay and no pickings, and with such duties as coaching the second string backs or the scrub or scouting.

By-Products Belong to Coach.

These coaches' earnings all seem legitimate except certain of the pickings which are the income from literary cat meat sold through the journalistic wagon peddlers and from testimonials of dubious sincerity. However, the coaches did not seem to suffer any spiritual contamination from the acceptance of their cash rewards from whatever source, although the distinction was pretty fine between this sort of money and the kind that C. C. Pyle was paying over to Red Grange.

It must be said, though, that one of our middle western apostles was not like other coaches. For years he held back, refusing to exploit football for personal profit while his brothers in the convas cloth of this semi-clerical calling were no more loath than so many Billy Sundays. The point was made that an impecunious blocking back with his board and keep to earn for himself must be careful not to earn very much lest he come under suspicion. The coaches, however, might be selling for their own profit the by-product of the players' own efforts, with much more interest in the

Whips Platers by Length at Hawthorne.

BY FRENCH LANE.

For a horse that sold for $150 only six weeks ago, Pigeon Hole is doing right well by his new owner, Mrs. L. A. Connor of Kentucky.

He was out again at Hawthorne yesterday associating with those $2,000 selling platers in a mile and a sixteenth race. And when the race was over Pigeon Hole's number was hung out in the winner's slot.

It was the fifth straight victory he has rolled up—one at Arlington and the other four at Hawthorne—for his new owner. It was the sixth time he had entered the winner's circle since he sold for $150. His earnings since the sale total $4,575.

Once Great Stake Horse.

The story about Pigeon Hole is just one more turf romance. Pigeon Hole was a mighty horse once upon a time. Then he drifted down the ladder to the lowest rung. Now he's back again as the most famous selling plater in the country.

Probably the saddest day in Pigeon Hole's life was that July morning some six weeks ago at Arlington when he was led into the sales ring to go under the hammer at Hal Price Headley's disposal auction. It was made more sad when the auctioneer shouted, "What am I bid for him?" Pigeon Hole had performed many noble deeds while racing in the Headley jacket. The auctioneer told about his famous victories. Stake after stake he had won. Many handicaps had gone his way. And old Pigeon Hole sort of acted as if he wanted to pat himself on the chest while the silver tongue of the auctioneer wagged on and on.

Sold—And for $150.

But there were bumps and blemishes here and there on his old legs and in his starts just prior to the sale he had not been able to beat platers. Despite the auctioneer's spellbinding oratory not a man, woman, or child in the crowd would bid as much as a $10 note for Pigeon Hole. Out on the withdrawn from the sale. Out on the fringe of the crowd there was a whispered conversation between Mr. Headley and Mrs. Conner's agent. "I'll give you $150 for him," said the agent. "He's your horse," replied Mr. Headley.

In his last five victories Pigeon Hole has run like a stake horse. Maybe his ancient legs were hurting him, but if they were Pigeon Hole has been too game to let anybody know anything about it. He has looked the platers in the eye and traveled on out far in front of them to win as he pleased.

Just Coasts Home.

He went into the lead at the head of the stretch yesterday, took things easy in the final furlong, and beat White Legs by a length. Curmudgeon, which ran out at the head of the stretch, was third.

Almost the whole crowd—there were some 10,000 present—was pulling for Pigeon Hole. When he came sauntering home they gave him a great cheer. And why not? A big majority of the folks had bet on him and he paid $3.08 for a $2 ticket, being just a little better than 1 to 2 in the wagering.

The Worth purse, at a mile and a sixteenth, was the best race on the program at Hawthorne yesterday, and it resulted in a handy victory for Watch Him, which races in the silks of Mrs. John Hertz.

Rehoboth made the early pace, but Watch Him was never far back, and at the head of the stretch Jockey Steffen took the Hertz colt around on the outside and he soon flew into the lead.

Pays $7.08 to Win.

Tom Taggart's Playdale was coming with a rush by this time, and he, too, drove past the tiring Rehoboth. But he couldn't catch Watch Him, which won by two lengths. He had a big following and paid $7.08 in the mutuels. Watch Him reeled off the mile and a sixteenth in 1:45 2-5, very fast for the Hawthorne racing strip.

HACK SLUGS BALL ALL THE WAY TO SECOND BASE

Prof. Lyons Demonstrates His Victory Formula for Sox, 7-3

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Boston, Mass., Aug. 24.—Prof. Ted Lyons, the gallant bachelor of Vinton, La., performed in a dual rôle today, and his act was more than sufficient to make the lowly Red Sox unravel in the series opener with the almost equally humble White Sox. Ted not only pitched himself into his eighth victory of the year but made three hits, the latter item taking care of four runs, which was exactly the Chicagoans' winning margin in a 7 to 3 triumph.

Lyons encountered difficulty in the early innings and surrendered three runs, which was the same number the westerners had been able to score off their nemesis, Bob Kline, in a similar span. One of these runs was driven home by Ted's first single. Then he tried to start something by beating out a bunt to open the fifth inning, but this didn't work. So in the seventh, with the deadlock still in existence, he became a bit more violent. He noticed two mates on base and doubled them home. He scored himself in the four run rally, which definitely decided everything.

Boston Scores First.

A single by Stumpf and a double by Alexander gave Boston a run after two were out in the first inning, but the Chicagoans adjusted this matter in a hurry. They came up with a pair in the second and should have had twice that many. Sullivan singled and continued to third on Kline's bad throw to first. He scored on Appling's hit. Nobody was retired on Selph's grounder to third. Appling then died trying to steal third, Kress flied out, and Grube singled. Lyons did the same thing to send Selph home with the second run.

Fonseca's boys bobbed up with another run in the third. Funk tripled to the grass embankment in left center and scored on Hayes' drooping single behind third. This made it 3 to 1, but not for long. Olson blew open the home half of the third with a single to left and Pickering popped out. Stumpf hit a home run into the seats behind the left field flagpole.

Then Came the Fireworks.

Kress singled to center to start the seventh and the deadlock still in existence, he became a bit more violent. Grube looped a double over first, putting Kress on third. Lyons then resumed his batting activities by doubling to left center, scoring Kress and Grube. This moved Kline out of the picture. Funk sacrificed Lyons to third. Hayes also bunted and Alexander picked the ball up but thought it foul, so he made no play. It gave Hayes a hit and Lyons scored. Seeds tapped to Boerner, who pegged to second, but Olson dropped the ball. Hayes went to third on Sullivan's fly and scored when Tate threw wild to second trying to catch Seeds stealing.

The things Lyons had to contend with after the third weren't exactly annoying. Kline led off in the third with a two bagger to center, was sacrificed to third and cut down when he tried to score on Pickering's grounder to short. Tate doubled with one out in the seventh, but made no progress. Pickering got a single on a trick bounder that hit Appling on the cheek to start the eighth, but a double play and fly ball fixed that. Mr. Jolley furnished a hit in the ninth, but never passed first base.

HACK'S A WOW IN BROOKLYN, BUT IN CHICAGO—

Hack Wilson was a bust again yesterday.

In Brooklyn Mr. Wilson has done many wicked things with his bat to distress his former mates. Several of the Cub embarraasments in Flatbush, such as the one in which Hack hit a home run off Malone with the bases full in the first inning, have been due to the pudgy one's power above all other things.

But Hack Wilson was a bust again at Wrigley field yesterday, just as he was in the first Dodgers' series here and just as he was in the second Dodgers' series in Chicago.

The first time Hack came back to Chicago his total batting in four games was one scratch single. Another scratch single, an infield one at that, was his total hitting during the four games the Dodgers played here in July.

Hack Still Fans.

In the first inning yesterday the former National league home run king fanned with mates on second and first. In the third inning he was thrown out by Herman. In the fifth inning he came up with men on third and second with the tying runs and two out. Hack obliged by letting a third strike slip by without a swing. In the seventh Hack flashed his one offensive stroke—he walked to fill the bases and hasten Root's demise.

[When Charley failed to strike out Hack, Manager Grimm signaled Bob Smith to bear down in his warming up exercises and two minutes later Root was out of the game.]

He'd Better Hurry.

Hack's fadeouts yesterday were great surprises to some of the boys up north, who, it is said, sat up most of the night Wednesday listening to Hack tell how he was going to tear out the right field wall with long drives, come afternoon.

Nevertheless, Wilson appears to be in much better physical condition than he was last year while with the Cubs. For the most part he is in good spirits, reports of midnight truculence from Pittsburgh notwithstanding. Now, whenever Hack socks a nocturnal pal he apologizes the next morning, 'tis reported.

Cubs Start Bush Today; Dodgers to Depend on Clark

This afternoon Guy Bush will carry on against William Watson Clark, a distinguished left hander who has made it very tough for the Cubs so far this year, in the second game of the series with Brooklyn.

Tomorrow Lon Warneke will go after victory No. 19 with blood in his eye. Lon has lost five games this year and three of the defeats were hung on him by the Dodgers. They included two on successive days the last time the Cubs were in Brooklyn.

Dazzy Vance did not pitch in the last series between the Dodgers and the Cubs and there is said to be little likelihood he will get in this series, though his reported sore arm was sufficiently soothed for him to warm up a little yesterday.

The Cubs now have won two more games than the second place Dodgers and have lost seven fewer. The Dodgers have 30 more games to play and the Cubs have 35.

Frank O'Doul, the National league's leading hitter, had a double, a single and a walk in five trips to the plate and fattened his average. He had a distressing day afield. He had a terrible time getting his hands on Herman's triple and then made a bad throw to let Billy run on home. He also punted Grimm's double in the big fourth, but got no error because Charley was content to stop at second.

The telegraphic plant at Wrigley field collapsed before the game started and not a word of the important contest was cleared telegraphically from the park. There was a great demand for radio reports, carrier pigeons, pinto ponies and overland stages. However, such devices were not available for use by the New York and Brooklyn newspapers, which, through a merciful fate, were kept in the dark as to the sufferings of their heroes.

Brooklyn Players Speak Over W-G-N This Afternoon

Three members of the Brooklyn club—Manager Max Carey, Pitcher Dazzy Vance, and Outfielder Hack Wilson—will talk over W-G-N, THE TRIBUNE radio station, from Wrigley field at 2:45 this afternoon.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

One game of the highly important three game baseball series between the Cubs and the second place Brooklyn Dodgers has been played and set down in the book as a 7 to 4 triumph for the Chicagoans. In beating their main foes before 25,000 at Wrigley field yesterday afternoon the Cubs increased their lead over the Dodgers to four and a half games and also moved up a game on the third place Pirates, who now trail the leaders by five and a half games.

The contest, more like the old slashbang Cub spectacles than anything the Cubs have staged at Wrigley field in many weeks, was the more refreshing because in the first third of the game the Chicago boys were laboring under a handicap of two runs which the Dodgers scored off Charley Root in the first inning. This circumstance seemed most serious in view of the fact that Van Mungo, an able man, was doing the Dodgers' pitching.

Bring Out Fireworks in Fourth.

Waiting for one of those ninth inning special Cub finishes was ruled out by Manager Charley Grimm, however. In the fourth Boss Charley gave the signal for a way back when McCarthy riot. Cuyler singled and scored on Stephenson's double—one of nine knocked in the park during the afternoon. Stevie went to third while Moore was being thrown out. Then Grimm and Hartnett both busted gorgeous doubles and Koenig followed with a single, the whole of which netted the Cubs four runs and a 4 to 2 lead.

In the fifth inning Billy Herman doubled and later scored the Cubs' fifth run on some smart baserunning. And, since we've mentioned Billy, there's no better place than right here to record that the Cubs' sprightly young second baseman had a perfect day at bat with a single in the first inning, a walk in the third inning, the double after which he scored in the fifth, and a triple with which he drove in a run in the seventh and continued on home on an error by O'Doul.

Seventh Unlucky for Root.

After Herman scored that run in the fifth the score was 5 to 2 and, inasmuch as Root had steadied splendidly after his flighty first inning, it appeared the engagement would proceed to the end without giving the rabid bugs any gooseflesh.

In the seventh inning, however, and after two were out, Mr. Root bogged down, filled the bases and then forced home a run with a walk. With the bases full, and the score 5 to 3, a single would have tied the score and one of those fashionable doubles would have given the Dodgers the lead. Manager Grimm called in Bob Smith and Manager Carey sent forth Johnny Frederick, who has been making a name for himself hitting pinch homers. This time Johnny obliged by fouling out to Hartnett.

Misses Homer by 10 Feet.

Smith and Herman produced those two runs in the seventh, but the Dodgers again turned on the heat in the eighth when they got a run home on three singles and O'Doul came up with two on, bent on making one of his famous anti-Cub homers, which would have tied the score. He missed the homer by 10 feet, and that scare was over. From then on comfort abounded.

Yesterday's triumph made it five straight for the Cubs and eight out of nine for the home stand. And while we're in this vein we may as well remind you that it was the 15th victory the Cubs have won out of the 20 played under the management of Mr. Grimm. It was the eighth decision over the Dodgers in 17 played. So this afternoon the Cubs will have the opportunity to even the season series. Furthermore, when the Chicagoans stepped 5½ games ahead of the

MAN O' WAR SON, WAR HERO, WINS HURON HANDICAP

Beats Out Stepenfetchit at Saratoga.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., Aug. 24.—[Special.]—The Huron handicap fell to a son of Man o' War for the second time today, when the Glen Riddle farm's War Hero, winner of the Travers last Saturday, duplicated the feat of Crusader in 1926 and scored in a driving finish. Crusader also bore the Glen Riddle silks.

It was no easy task for War Hero to gain the $2,850 prize, for he was out to the last ounce to win by half a length over Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Stepenfetchit, which showed a decided improvement over recent races. Eight lengths back of Stepenfetchit, Snap Back gained the show, with Osculator and Pardee finishing as named.

Pelican Loses.

War Hero finished the mile and three-sixteenths in 1:57, the fastest time since Cleopatra won for W. R. Coe under 114 pounds in 1920. War Hero's impost was 112 and he handled the weight well. Johnny Gilbert, who was on the colt when he won the Travers, again had the leg up this afternoon.

There was a disappointment for the backers of Joseph E. Widener's gelded son of Haste, The Pelican, in the Lucerne purse, when he finished out of the money after being made a hot favorite at even money. The Pelican has been regarded as the best 2 year old in the Widener barn and one of the best of the division.

Bold Lover Wins.

Either he was short today or he is a good deal less in quality than has been believed. E. R. Bradley's Bold Lover, an 8 to 1 shot, which had previously started in a claiming race, was the winner by a nose over Mrs. Payne Whitney's Jungle King. W. R. Coe's Llandaff landed third. The order after that was Kerry Patch, Misguide, The Pelican, Union, Energetic Boy, and Lieut. Bob.

Mate, Gusto Arrive Today for Gold Cup

Mate and Gusto will arrive at Hawthorne this morning for the Gold cup Saturday. They left the Saratoga track in the same car yesterday morning. Equipoise was definitely declared out of the Gold cup late yesterday.

The easterners in the Gold cup field will be Faireno, Mate, and Gusto. The west will be represented by Plucky Play, Charleigh, Brown Wisdom, Evergold, Polydorus, Sidney Grant, and possibly two or three others.

Faireno thrilled the railbirds at Hawthorne early yesterday morning when he galloped six furlongs in 1:12 3-5. He was fighting for his head all the way and all who watched the workout were impressed by his fine condition. "We won't have an excuse to offer if Faireno is beaten in the Cup," George Tappin, who brought the 3 year old here, declared after the training move.

A lot of old timers got a kick out of the second race yesterday when Nusakan was an easy winner at odds of $21 to 1. A few years back he could beat most any sprinter in the country. He raced yesterday in the silks of J. D. Mikel of Bloomington, Ill.

The winning streak of the Nash Brothers' Shandon farm horses keeps going right along. North Mill carried the green and white Shandon jacket to victory yesterday and paid $45.96 for a two dollar ticket.

Brother Hanover Wins National Handicap Trot

The race sponsored by the Trotting Horse Club of America is estimated to have netted $3,000 to the winner. Brother Hanover won both heats.

Fair Dreams, brown mare of the Arden Homestead stables of Goshen, N. Y., ran second. Nedda Guy was third, Abe Harvester fourth, and McGregor fifth. Summaries:

DICK TRACY—At Eighty Miles an Hour

Cubs Conquer Dodgers, 7-4; Increase Lead

Root nearly got out of the jam he precipitated for himself in the first inning, but couldn't quite make the grade. After D. Taylor filed to Moore, Stripp doubled to left. O'Doul ran the count to three balls and two strikes and then walked. Wilson fanned elaborately, but Cuccinello was hit by a pitched ball, filling the bases. Slade doubled along the left foul line, Stripp and O'Doul scoring and Cuccinello stopping at third. The situation calmed when Herman threw out Clancy.

In the Cub half of the first Herman pushed off with a single to left and went to second and third on infield putouts which retired English and Cuyler. Bill died on third when Stephenson bounced out to Clancy.

The third Brooklyn hit was also the third double and was knocked by Taylor with two out in the second inning. It went to waste, for Stripp followed with a fly to Moore.

Hack Is a Hero—Almost.

Here's the detail of how Wilson had a chance to tie the score with a single in the fifth and struck out for the second time. Mungo fouled to Grimm, but D. Taylor walked. Stripp forced Taylor, but O'Doul dropped a Texas leaguer double near the left foul line. Stripp going to third. Hack stepped up to the plate, radiating confidence. He ran the count to three balls and two strikes, then let the third strike rip through without a swing. He roared loudly at Umpire Klem, but the latter just walked away and let him roar.

Herman scored the Cubs' fifth run in the fifth after leading off with his second hit, a double to right center. Bill went to third on English's out. Cuyler tapped to Stripp and Herman pretended he was going to hold third, but as soon as Stripp threw to Clancy to get Cuyler, Bill broke for home and beat Clancy's throw to the plate. Cuccinello then threw out Stephenson.

Root Goes Out in Seventh.

Root's fadeout in the seventh was as surprising as it was sudden. Picinich batted for Mungo and popped to Grimm and D. Taylor fanned. Stripp singled to center and stopped at second on O'Doul's single to left. Wilson walked, filling the bases, and Cuccinello walked, forcing in Stripp. It was at this point that Manager Grimm decided Charley was too tired and angry to proceed. So Bob Smith came in. Frederick was assigned to bat for Slade and fouled to Hartnett to end the inning.

Thomas undertook to pitch for the Dodgers in the seventh and things were made right merry for him. With one out Smith doubled to the left field wall and scored on Herman's third hit, a triple to left. Herman continued home when O'Doul made a poor return. English and Cuyler fanned.

Moore Grabs O'Doul's Smash.

The Dodgers' eighth was as disturbing to the nerves as the Dodgers' seventh. With one down Lopez scratched a single off Herman's torso. Sukeforth batted for Thomas and fanned. D. Taylor singled to center and Lopez stopped at second. Stripp singled to left, Lopez scoring and D. Taylor stopping at second. A homer would have tied the score and a homer was what O'Doul had in mind when he slammed an immense drive to right center. The concerted groan indicated the crowd thought the ball was bleacher bound, so you can imagine the relief when Moore dashed over near the screen and pulled it down for the third out.

HE'S A BEAR, THEY SAY

Ross-Miller Bout Recalls Feud of Leonard, White

The rivalry between Barney Ross, west side lightweight boxer, and Ray Miller of New York, who meet in the ten round windup of the West Side Boxing club's show tomorrow night at Sparta stadium, reminds fight fans of the Benny Leonard-Charley White battle at Benton Harbor, Mich., in 1920.

Leonard, who was lightweight champion of the world at the time, was picked to win over White because of his greater boxing ability. Nevertheless, White was given a chance to score a victory because of tremendous power in his left hand.

Fans recall that 20,000 saw White land on Leonard's chin in the fifth round and knock the champion out of the ring. The result is history. Leonard recuperated some seconds later and finished strong.

Miller has been sparring with two former opponents of Ross, Harry Dublinsky and Jackie Davis. Ray's standing as a lightweight contender depends on the outcome of tomorrow's bout. Ray excels at infighting, but his long range boxing is not as good as Ross', who has shown a disregard for boxing to slug with Jack King and Young Joe Walcott, welterweights.

Miller rested yesterday. Ross sparred five rounds. His trainer said he weighed 132 pounds after the workout, but has ordered him to build up today so that he will scale 133 at the Illinois Athletic commission offices tomorrow afternoon. Miller will finish training this afternoon. His trainer, Sam Buxbaum, said Ray is down to 132 pounds.

Kid Leonard, Moline, Ill., middleweight, is working out at the Arcade gymnasium for his ten round bout with Gorilla Jones, former titleholder, at Davenport, Ia., Monday. He boxed several rounds yesterday with Baxter Calmes, who fights Les Kennedy at the Stadium next Wednesday. Leonard will go to Davenport on Saturday.

Sammy [Kid] Slaughter, Terre Haute, Ind., boxer, has signed to meet Allen Matthews at St. Louis, Mo., next Thursday. Then he goes to Cleveland to meet Paul Pirrone.

Browns Whip A's in 11th on Levey's Homer

Philadelphia, Pa., Aug. 24.—(AP)—Jim Levey's home run with one on in the 11th inning gave the St. Louis Browns a 5 to 3 victory over the Athletics today after the Macks had tied up the battle with two homers in the ninth.

The A's were trailing by two runs when they came into the ninth and Rabbit McNair and Jimmy Dykes jumped into the breach with a circuit drive apiece to deadlock the game. The Athletics' other run also was a homer—the 45th of the season from the bat of Jimmy Foxx. Score:

Here, Coach, What About Amateurism?

The tempters of Hollywood are seductive, luring many artists to the surrounding mountains and offering them the riches of the beautiful, goofy city on the plain in exchange for their principles. They caused the downfall of several college players just before the Olympic games, corrupting boys who had come out to play in the exhibition contest between the east and west, who were then dismissed from the squad more in sorrow than in anger as fallen brothers.

Now a group of the coaches have tarried in Hollywood after the Olympics to lend their talents and presumably their reputations and any other box office assets which they may possess to the football dramas which are in process of manufacture for the fall trade. The most hesitant of them all has finally yielded, and there is nobody left to decry the evil influence of such as Mr. Pyle when promoters come slinking around the campuses with their pants pockets full of ten dollar bills.

Well, I still believe it is wrong for players to turn pro upon their graduation because the coaches explained it so beautifully a few years ago. True, I am unable to reconcile this belief with the recent course of the very coaches themselves, but there are some things about which it is better not to ask too many questions lest there arise a troublesome, conscientious doubt.

Sox Get 2 Stars from Tyler, Tex.; Recall Ed Walsh

Boston, Mass., Aug. 24.—Manager Fonseca was delighted to learn this morning that a couple of new pupils would be available for the White Sox baseball school when it returns to Chicago Labor day. The new talent will be Outfielder George Washington and Pitcher Charley Biggs, both aces of the Tyler Texas league club.

Ed Walsh Jr., is to be recalled from Oakland, Cal., club within another week. He is reputed to be the best pitcher in the Coast league, notwithstanding a tendency to weaken toward the end of a game. Infielder Gregory Mulleavy will be recalled from the same club if Oakland will consent.

Sam Jones will do the pitching in the second game of the Boston series tomorrow and probably will be opposed by Gordon Rhodes, the ex-Yankee.

Pickering's trick single in the eighth bounced up and landed against Appling's right cheek. He folded up on the grounder under the impression that he was hurt, but was back on his feet as soon as he determined that his facial beauty wasn't marred.

Grube had a large day at bat with two doubles and a single, but didn't have the pleasure of driving in any runs. The single and the first double, however, paved the way for Lyons' hits. Grube's second two bagger started the ninth, but he died on second.

Crothers Wins Trapshooting Championship

Along with Charlie Bogert of Sandusky, Ohio state champion, Crothers shattered 199 out of 200 targets and then went on to break 50 straight in the shootoff while Bogert missed his 47th clay. This was the second straight year that Crothers triumphed over state champions from all parts of the country. In breaking 249 today, he boosted his string for the last three days to 846 out of a possible 850. Two targets back of Crothers and Bogert came C. L. Waggoner of Diller, Neb., to take third prize.

F. D. Kelsey, 77 year old marksman from Aurora, Ill., won the veterans' trophy for the third consecutive year when he broke 190 out of 200. Kelsey is the only marksman ever to win a grand American championship more than two years in a row.

At the close of firing officials selected the first all-American trapshooting team on the basis of today's scoring. The team with the scores:

Fred Harlow, Newark, O., 200; W. S. Beavers, Berwyn, Pa., 199; Mark Arie, Champaign, Ill., 199; E. F. Woodward, Houston, Tex., 199; R. A. King, Wichita Falls, Tex., 199; S. M. Crothers, Chestnut Hill, Pa., 199; Joe Heistand, Hillsboro, O., 199, and E. B. Chamberlin, Martville, N. Y., 199.

Harry Paul, Philadelphia, was awarded the decision over Bill Hall, Grand Rapids, Mich., in the six round semi-windup. Bill Connell whipped Mickey O'Shea and Billy Gladstone won from Jimmy Lundy in another pair of six rounders. Johnny Caserio defeated Tod Kelly in a four round bout and Jack Ripp beat Ray Moore in the four round opener.

The canoeists will compete in a series of three contests. The first will be a rescue race in which one canoe is submerged and the paddler rescued by another canoeist, the second a race in which the paddler jumps overboard in the middle of the course and climbs back into the canoe, and the third a contest against time in which the canoeist submerges his canoe and then shakes the water out of the boat over the gunwales.

STAGE VETERANS AT FUNERAL FOR WILTON LACKAYE

Great of Older Broadway at Last Rites.

New York, Aug. 24.—[Special.]—Chorus girls on their way to rehearsal halted, burlesque performers, taxi dancers, battered troupers leaned from the windows of actors' boarding houses in 49th street today as the great of an older Broadway gathered to honor the memory of Wilton Lackaye at a requiem high mass in St. Malachy's church—the actors' chapel—in West 49th street.

The oldsters were unfamiliar to the onlookers. Ingénues who had made brilliant debuts with Lackaye in the flavorous '90s, one time juveniles in shiny trousers but with mustaches still carefully waxed, managers dating from the era when even the box office end of show business had style—these crowded unnoticed into the little church.

Several honorary pallbearers had to be assisted down the church steps because of infirmity.

Notables Are Present.

Among those in the 800 mourners were Daniel Frohman, James J. Corbett, Hap Ward, Loney Haskell, representing the Jewish Theatrical guild; Augustus Thomas, playwright; Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Glendinning, Gene Kinkead, Charles King, who has played musical comedy juveniles for twenty years; William D. Weinberger, representing the Friars, and Eugene Sullivan, heading a delegation from the National Democratic club.

The star's widow, Mrs. Catherine Riley Lackaye, wept quietly during the mass. With her were her son, Wilton Lackaye Jr., and two sisters of Mrs. Lackaye, Mrs. A. H. Annadale of Washington, and Miss Helen Lackaye.

Honorary Pallbearers.

The honorary pallbearers included A. D. Brown, shepherd of the Lambs; Gene Buck, president of the song writers' group; Arthur Hopkins, producer; John McGlynn, head of the Hotel Men's association; De Wolf Hopper, Surrogate John P. O'Brien, R. H. Burnside, producer; Frank Gillmore, head of Actors' Equity; Al H. Woods, producer, and Mr. Ward, old time vaudeville actor.

The Rev. James G. O'Reilly celebrated the mass. Burial was in Calvary cemetery, a police motorcycle escort accompanying the cortège.

PRICE OF MUSIC ON BROADCASTS SET FOR 3 YEARS

New York, Aug. 24.—[Special.]—The long waged battle between composers and broadcasters over payment for the use of copyrighted music on the radio which reached a deadlock in July, resulted in an agreement today. The National Association of Broadcasters consented to pay the American Society of Composers, Authors, and Publishers a substantially increased annual fee.

The terms of the new three year license, effective on Sept. 1, require the broadcasters to pay a 3 per cent tax for the first year on the net receipts from the sale of time on the air, a 4 per cent fee for the second year, and a 5 per cent toll for the third year. In addition a "sustaining" license fee, equivalent to the toll exacted under the present system of flat assessment, is required.

BETTER SALES OF ELECTRICITY SIGN OF UPTURN

Add to Favorable News of Trade.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Trade reviews yesterday continued in cheerful vein. The day's news of industry was considerably brightened by the report of a rise for the week in electric power output, which is regarded as one of the best indices of business activity.

After holding steady for the first two weeks of August, power output figures for the week ended Aug. 20, took a slightly more favorable turn with the spread from 1931 cut down fractionally.

Production of 1,431,910,000 kilowatt hours represented a gain over the week ended Aug. 13 of 16,788,000. In the last two years the gains for corresponding periods have been only about 14 million.

Power output last week was 12.9 per cent below that of the like 1931 period. In each of the two preceding weeks output was 13.1 per cent below 1931 levels. Most of the improvement last week occurred along the Atlantic seaboard.

Production of electricity in the Chicago district last week was 83,703,000 kilowatt hours, 13.8 per cent lower than output for the corresponding week last year.

Merchandise Output Gains.

Operations of factories allied with merchandising have increased sharply as a result of better wholesale buying groups, according to R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of business in the Chicago district.

"Reports from downstate," says Dun's, "tell of increased output for shoe factories and men's clothing. Locally, manufacturers of women's ready to wear complain of a shortage of really skilled help in several instances, many of their old employés having found permanent jobs elsewhere during the summer dull period.

"Textile deliveries are deferred on new orders, one wholesale dry goods house booking nothing earlier than Sept. 15 delivery. Textile price advances have likewise kept the orders for goods of this type at high levels.

Out of town buyers, says Bradstreet's, were more numerous in Chicago during the last week.

"Business is picking up in practically all lines with a decidedly better feeling and an increased purchasing of merchandise, creating more activity amongst wholesalers and retailers throughout the country," this agency reports.

Better Summer Sales.

Summer goods have had the most satisfactory sale and cleanup in several years, while leading wholesalers report orders of all kinds equaling a year ago. Shipping departments of wholesalers are kept busy at full time.

The monthly federal reserve report on conditions in the Seventh reserve district shows a contraction of 4 per cent in employment and 8 per cent in pay rolls from June 15 to July 15.

"Normal seasonal factors," the review states, "such as vacations, summer inventories and the July 4 holiday no doubt contributed largely to the contraction in the totals, yet the size of the decline in comparison with previous years indicates that nonseasonal curtailment of industrial operations was also a factor.

Factory Losses Largest.

"The losses registered by manufacturing industry, as in the preceding month, exceeded those for nonmanufacturing. The degree to which aggregate factory pay rolls have fallen as a result of layoffs, part time operations and wage reductions is shown by declines of 24 per cent since the fifteenth of January, 38 per cent from a year ago, and 65 per cent from the 1925-'27 average. All manufacturing groups except vehicles, leather, and rubber products reached new low points in aggregate pay rolls on July 15."

Two groups, leather products and coal mining, scored gains in both employment and wage payments. The gain in coal mining up to July 15, however, was negligible.

Since then, with the reopening of many Illinois mines, following the wage agreement, there has been a considerable upturn in employment in mines. The federal reserve report covers only the period up to July 15.

A large part of the decline from June 15 to July 15 was due to a falling off in metals and metal products. In that division employment dropped 12.4 per cent and pay rolls 21.3 per cent. This was largely the result of shutdowns in steel mills.

TRACING PROGRESS OF THE DEPRESSION THROUGH 1930-1931

(This is the second of four articles dealing with the decline in commodity prices and volume of trade and the effect on wages during the depression period. This article reviews the breakdown of President Hoover's plan to have industry maintain wages. The next article will appear on Saturday.)

BY SCRUTATOR.

Following the plea of President Hoover to industrial leaders late in 1929 to maintain wages, business declined persistently, prices of commodities, not bolstered by the government, fell even more rapidly than they had in 1920 and 1921, and corporate profits were changed to deficits. Dividends to stockholders were reduced or suspended and many corporations encountered financial difficulties or even were forced into receiverships.

In spite of the reluctance of industrial leaders to reduce wages during the current depression, it became clear by the autumn of 1931 that with prices, corporate profits, dividends, rents and sales adjusted to a depression status, wages could no longer be maintained at peak prices. A number of cuts in pay must have been in force in 1930 and early 1931, but no public statements concerning them were made.

Employés' Earnings Drop.

Actually, earnings of a large number of employés declined, as is seen from the fact that the average weekly earnings of factory workers in Chicago receded from $31.99 in 1929 to $23.48 in 1931. This, of course, was partly due to less work as well as lower wage rates. But surreptitious wage cutting unquestionably was going on. It remained for the United States Steel corporation to bring it out in the open.

On Oct. 1, 1931, the U. S. Steel corporation gave formal recognition of the change in the situation by reducing the pay of its employés 10 per cent. This action by one of our largest industrial concerns was followed by industry generally and cutting of wages became fairly general. On May 16, 1932, the U. S. Steel corporation announced a second reduction in wages of approximately 15 per cent. In each case the independent steel companies took similar action immediately following that of the dominant concern.

Steel Wages Compared.

In this connection, it is interesting to note the dates on which the U. S. Steel corporation made other changes in its wage scale:

Date—		Change.
Jan.	6, 1916	10 per cent increase
May	1, 1916	10 per cent increase
Dec.	15, 1916	10 per cent increase
May	1, 1917	10 per cent increase
Oct.	1, 1917	10 per cent increase
April	15, 1918	10 per cent increase
Aug.	1, 1918	10 per cent increase
Oct.	1, 1918	8 hour basis day adopted
Feb.	1, 1920	10 per cent increase
May	16, 1921	20 per cent decrease
June	6, 1921	Basic 8 hour day abolished
Aug.	29, 1921	Decrease to 30c hourly
Sept.	1, 1922	20 per cent increase
April	16, 1923	11 per cent increase
Oct.	1, 1931	10 per cent decrease

Now let's see what happened in another great industry. Railroad presidents took a prominent part in the conference with President Hoover in 1929. They also promised to sustain wage levels and in addition they agreed to stimulate business by increasing their expenditures for roadbed improvements and equipment.

Railway Revenues Drop.

Larger railroad expenditures in the early part of 1930 doubtless had a good deal to do with the brief upturn which business then had. But soon revenues began to recede. Car loadings dropped 11 per cent in the last half of 1930 and the decline persisted and even was accelerated in 1931. Meanwhile, fixed charges of the roads continued at boom time levels or even increased, due to expenditures made following the autumn of 1929 in an effort to keep prosperity going. But the railroad industry found it was no more depression proof than the steel industry. What happened thereafter will be shown in the next article.

READING ROAD'S JULY OPERATING NET IMPROVES

July operating results were reported yesterday by three railroads. One of the roads, the Reading company, showed an increase over the same month last year. Net operating income for the month was $649,779, as compared with $136,335 in July a year ago. A seasonal decline was shown from June when net operating income totaled $691,987.

Union Pacific reported July operating income of $919,165. This compares with $969,493 in July last year. In June net operating income was $890,810. Great Western's July operating net was $91,884, as compared with $275,684 in the comparable 1931 period. In June net was $17,187.

Canadian Pulp Exports Lower; Newsprint, Too

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 24.—Exports of pulp and newsprint paper from Canada during the month of July totalled $7,854,665 in value, which compares with $8,693,764 in June and $10,933,148 in July of last year. The exports of newsprint showed a considerable decrease both from the previous month and the corresponding month of last year while the value of pulp exports showed a small increase over the June total but fell below last year's July figures.

COTTON AT HIGHEST POINT THIS YEAR; GAINS $2.50 PER BALE

Cotton yesterday had one of the most excited finishes experienced of late after a rather slow and easy tone at the start. A rush of buying in the last few hours carried prices up rapidly to new high levels for the year with advance of over $2.50 a bale and finished practically at the top. There has been an advance of more than $15 a bale from the season's low level.

Active development of the boll weevil over a large part of the cotton belt in the east as well as in the southwest was the bullish impetus. It reminded old traders of 1924 when the boll weevil cut down the crop material and prices advanced over $3.50 a bale in one day. In 1921 boll weevil activity was a new factor and cotton prices advanced from 11c to 22c—the crop that year was under 8,000,000 bales.

Net gains on futures in Chicago were 45 to 56 points, the latter being $3.30 a bale. New York futures were up 43 to 50 points and spots 50 points to 8.30c; New Orleans gained 45 to 55 points on futures and 45 points on spots, equaling 8.10c; Galveston-Houston were 8.05c; Liverpool closed 3 to 5 points net higher. WHITNEY HITS SENATE QUIZ ON STOCK MARKET

Reports to Board of N. Y. Exchange.

New York, Aug. 24.—(AP)—Asserting that much of the testimony presented before the senate stock exchange investigating committee had been "misleading," President Richard Whitney today filed a report with the governors of the exchange. He said he had not been permitted to reappear before the senate committee to reply to certain testimony, and therefore was making a final report to the governing board.

Charges Unfair Statements.

Pointing to "misstatements contained in the record of the investigation," Whitney declared the stock exchange in its listing requirements "in many instances had been in advance of public opinion."

"We welcome full publicity," he said in the course of his report, which fills thirty-two pages of printed script and about an equally voluminous record of charts and graphs. He declared that the exchange "by maintaining a free and open market for securities rendered a great service to the nation."

"One of the abuses disclosed by the senate investigation," his report said, "was the payment of money to employés of the press by persons who are either speculating in or distributing securities. Quite frankly, we have no idea of the extent of this evil but we shall seek the coöperation of the owners of newspapers and their financial writers to make sure that practices of this kind will be eliminated.

Exchange Makes Inquiry.

"In fairness to the members of the exchange, I must say, however, that much of the testimony presented to the senate committee on this point was misleading. We have investigated every case where sufficient facts were given to identify the transaction. One witness submitted the names of a number of members of the exchange as the alleged source of payments for false publicity.

"Without exception, our investigations disclose that no money, options, or other things of value were given to this individual by members of the exchange for their own account for false or inspired publicity. Payments were made to the individual in question in some cases upon the order of and for the account of customers. We have found no evidence that any of these payments were made by a member of the exchange with knowledge that they were for improper purposes.

"Evil Can Be Prevented."

"The mere fact that we have not found evidence that a member of the exchange was directly connected with practices of this kind does not mean that the evil is non-existent.

"As far as the protection of the market is concerned, it is immaterial whether payments for false publicity were made by members of the exchange or other persons. This evil, I believe, can be prevented. I know that the owners and publishers of our newspapers and all responsible representatives of the press will join with the exchange in taking whatever ac-

Railway Labor Demands End of Wage Cuts

Cleveland, O., Aug. 24.—(AP)—A program of opposition to further railroad consolidations until congress enacts legislation protecting labor from resulting unemployment was determined on today by the Railway Executives' association.

It also was decided to seek early action by congress on the Pittman-Crosser six hour bill in order to give "employment to some of the 700,000 rail workers now unemployed and to increase employment for those working on part time." The bill is sponsored by nineteen railway brotherhoods.

Labor Prosperity Planks.

At the same time, the association, in a statement, served notice that "in coöperation with all other industrial and agricultural organization of workers we propose before the election in November to put on record every aspirant for public office either for or against a labor prosperity program."

That program was summarized as follows:

"Our national resources and credit should be mobilized and employed as they would be in a time of war for the purpose of coördinating and compelling the use of the industrial facilities of the nation for the employment of all those capable of self-support.

"We advocate a civil mobilization, under civil authority, to organize our resources for national defense against the destructiveness of present uncontrolled economic forces."

More Losing Their Jobs.

The association asserted that, despite an agreement by railway managements to "make an earnest and sympathetic effort to maintain and increase railroad employment," when the workers accepted a 10 per cent wage cut, last January, an additional 100,000 men have lost their jobs in the last six months.

"In the light of experience," the labor executives said, "we again insist that it is economically unsound and socially unjust to reduce the earnings of the rail workers, or of any industrial or agricultural workers, in order that labor may pay a dole to idle capital."

Predicts the Farm Board Will Quit Pits in U. S.

Omaha, Neb., Aug. 24.—(AP)—The World-Herald today said it had been informed word has come to a member of the Omaha Grain exchange that the federal farm board will sell no more wheat domestically.

The member, who declined to make public his name, predicted a formal announcement of the fact will be made in a few days and that it will cause a material strengthening of the wheat market.

New York, Aug. 24.—Wide advances in a number of railroad issues featured today's operations on the New York Stock exchange. Delaware and Hudson plunged ahead more than 12 points. Delaware and Lackawanna rose 10, Norfolk and Western 3, Central of New Jersey 6¾, Lehigh Valley 5¾, and Louisville and Nashville 5⅞ points.

Gains of 1 to 2 points were scored by Atchison, New Haven, Rock Island, Illinois Central and other issues of the group. Virtually the whole section advanced to a new top for the recovery on brisk buying.

Stir Up Merger Rumors.

Activity in some of the secondary carrier descriptions gave rise to various rumors of merger deals. Word from the headquarters of some of the larger roads indicates that a further slight increase in car loading figures will be recorded in the weekly statement to be issued on Saturday. Both the New York Central and the Pennsylvania have reported tonnage pickups over the corresponding weeks of 1931.

Pool activity provided a number of other bright spots. Montgomery Ward appeared to be one of the beneficiaries. Shares of that mail order house were turned over in bales of a thousand shares each at intervals and the issue boosted to the front rank in sales volume.

The closing price reflected a net advance of a point. Around the first of July this stock was selling as low as 3½ points. At one time today it was quoted at 12¾.

Dragginess in the wheat market weighed against the farm implement shares which usually move with the mail order group. Both Case and International Harvester finished the session behind minus signs.

Kreuger & Toll Active.

Some diversion was created in the late trading by Kreuger & Toll, which had a turnover about equal to 7 per cent of the total. One plunger—or a group of them—took a bundle of 50,000 shares of that stock at one swoop at a quarter of a dollar a share. The impact of that deal sent the price bounding up three-eighths of a point. The sale was the largest since one for 82,000 shares of the same stock one day last March. A while ago the stock was selling at 1-32. Before Kreuger's suicide in Paris it was up to 9¼.

Various food shares enjoyed the market's fickle favor. And the coppers once more asserted their worth. Chile Copper advanced nearly 3 points

REMINGTON-RAND, INC., TO USE $4,500,000 TO STIMULATE WORK

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Aug. 24.—James H. Rand Jr., president and chairman of Remington-Rand, Inc., tonight notified Roy D. Chapin, secretary of commerce, that he had issued instructions to the purchasing department of his company to buy immediately $4,400,000 of raw materials and supplies for use during the remainder of this year as part of the campaign to promote employment.

A consolidated net loss of $681,748 for the quarter ended June 30 was reported. This compares with net loss of $777,649 in the June, 1931, quarter. The company was said to have experienced a 20 per cent improvement in sales volume in the domestic market since early in August, as compared with the first twenty days of July.

THE OPPORTUNITY OF THE CURRENT BOND MARKET

• Just as practically all corporate bonds, irrespective of their individual investment quality, suffered a severe price decline under the pressure of necessitous liquidation, so practically all issues have benefited from the current rise. As business developments become clearer, a greater market selectivity will come into play. Bonds of high intrinsic merit will prove to be satisfactory holdings and will eventually sell higher, while those in an essentially weak position may encounter difficulties. It is apparent, therefore, that wherever the current movement of the market has brought about an approximate price parity between issues of unequal quality, an investment position can often be improved through an exchange.

• We shall be glad to review holdings and make suggestions without subjecting you to any obligation.

GROUP IS NAMED TO ACT ON ADAMS STATE ISSUES

Announcement was made yesterday of the formation of a central committee for $2,000,000 of real estate bonds and mortgages underwritten by the Adams State bank, 3951 West 26th street, which was closed some months ago. The committee was formed at the request of David Dillman, receiver for the bank.

The announcement stated that the committee was formed to protect the substantial investment in real estate securities made by the bank and at the request of a number of bondholders. Members of the committee are: Mr. Dillman, chairman; Callistus S. Ennis, prominent in downtown real estate, and John G. Zelezny, active in real estate in the neighborhood of the bank. Maurice M. Wilcox is secretary of the committee which will have its offices in the bank building. Pam & Hurd are attorneys.

A statement concerning the financial situation of the Lincoln-Giddings block—a store and apartment building at the northeast corner of Lincoln avenue and Giddings street—was made yesterday by Walter C. Palmer, chairman of the protective committee for the holders of bonds sold by or through Lackmer, Butz & Co.

The amount of the original issue was $300,000 at 6½ per cent of which there are now $265,000 now outstanding. Occupancy as of July 31, 1932, was 72.73 per cent for the apartments and 100 per cent for the stores.

Maurice H. Berkson, who was appointed receiver on June 1, states that gross income for the period June 1, 1932, to July 31, 1932, was $1,156.84. Disbursements were $194.78 operating expenses and $814.65 insurance, leaving $147.41 cash on hand. Holman D. Pettibone is chairman of the protective committee which includes Bertram M. Winston, David E. Shanahan, Joseph K. Brittain and Bentley G. McCloud. The Chicago Title and Trust company is depositary.

Seek to Get Interest.

Martin C. Haedtler, secretary of the bondholders' protective committee for bonds issued by the Woodlawn Trust and Savings bank, states that the committee is endeavoring to see if the owner of the Belden apartments at the northwest corner of 67th street and Woodlawn avenue can raise sufficient funds to pay defaulted interest. If this can be done the bonds will be extended. In the meantime the committee is collecting the income from the apartments. Mr. Haedtler requests bondholders to deposit their bonds in the office of the committee, adjoining the safety deposit vault in the Woodlawn Bank building.

George E. Jackson of Tacoma, Wash., has been made a member of a bondholders' protective committee for bonds underwritten and sold by the Provident State Securities company. Defaulted bonds total approximately $7,000,000 on 18 apartment buildings and hotels in Chicago, St. Louis, Louisville and Kansas City. Approximately $1,000,000 in bonds are held in the northwest, which Mr. Jackson represents.

Continental Motors.

Please send me at your convenience information on Continental Motors and oblige.—H. J. L.

Continental Motors corporation is the largest company in the United States engaged primarily in the manufacture of automobile engines. Reduced activity in the automobile industry and the increased tendency of automobile companies to manufacture their own engines have in recent years forced the company to diversify its production.

In an effort to reduce its dependence on the automobile trade, the company has undertaken the manufacture of airplane, marine, and industrial engines and of power units for agricultural implements.

On Feb. 18, 1932, it acquired the Michigan assets of De Vaux-Hall at a receivership sale. On March 30, 1932, President Angell was quoted as saying that the company would start production of De Vaux automobiles "as soon as dies now under construction are ready."

Net loss after all charges for the six months ended April 30, 1932, was $1,027,000, against loss of $551,000 for the corresponding period of the preceding fiscal year.

Net loss for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1931, was $1,899,000, against net loss of $2,038,000 for the preceding fiscal year. Net income for the Oct. 31, 1929, year was $711,000, against net of $1,803,000 for the year ended Oct. 31, 1928.

On April 30, 1932, current assets were $4,749,000, and current liabilities were $344,000. Cash and marketable securities [at market] alone were more than $1,800,000. Working capital was $4,405,000, against $6,005,000 the year before.

Capital stock and surplus were carried at $23,113,000 on the April 30, 1932, balance sheet. Good will was valued at $5,908,000, and developments, patents, etc., at $639,000.

The dividend on the common was omitted in the first quarter of 1930 and nothing has since been paid.

Wisconsin Electric Power.

The properties of Wisconsin Electric Power company are operated under lease to Milwaukee Electric Railway and Light company. Both companies are part of the North American system.

Net income for 1931 was $1,140,000, or $27.61 per share on 51,453 preferred shares, against net of $1,257,000, or $27.97 per preferred share on 44,920 preferred shares, for 1930. Net for 1929 was $1,089,000, and for 1928, $908,000. Funded debt totals $8,389,000.

WHITNEY HITS SENATE QUIZ ON STOCK MARKET

Reports to Governors of N. Y. Exchange.

Upholds Short Selling.

Short selling, he insisted, had made it possible to keep the stock market functioning throughout the depression.

"Had we banned short selling in 1930, or 1931, or 1932, as we were urged to do," he emphasized, "we would not have had the necessary buying power to help us through what seems now to have been the last stages of the great depression."

Whitney again drew a distinction, which he said is now coming to be more generally understood, between a "normal short sale made by a person who believes that securities are overvalued, and a bear raid, which is the sale of securities in a manner calculated to force a decline in prices."

The senate investigation, he said, had apparently been prompted by a report that "foreign influences were conspiring to force the United States off the gold standard by a gigantic raid on the stock market." Presumably this was to be financed with resources aggregating $1,000,000,000, and was to strike at the stock market as of last April 8. Nothing, he said, was brought forward to substantiate the rumor.

Cites Senate's Wide Powers.

"The senate committee with its sweeping power of investigation and with its right, which was freely exercised, to subpoena persons who had short interests and to question them not only as to their motives but also as to what arrangements they had with other short sellers, investigated bear raiding to the very fullest extent. The result furnished conclusive proof that the stock market was not depressed by deliberate bear raids."

On the subject of pools and pool manipulation, he stated that a list of market prices furnished to the committee on one pool stock varied as much as 5 points from the prices which actually prevailed in the market. This stock was Radio corporation, in which the pool was said to have made a profit of nearly $5,000,000.

Talks More of Pools.

The tabulation of figures furnished to the senate committee on this particular stock were from March 4 to and including March 23, 1929.

"It was unfortunate that the tabulation of prices furnished the senate committee stopped on March 23rd," Whitney said, "because the committee was left with the impression that the pool activities had increased the price of Radio from below 80 up to 109 and a fraction and that the price had then dropped back to around 87.

"If counsel for the committee had gone on with the list of prices he would have shown that the high price on March 25th, after the closing of the pool, was 91⅞; on March 26, 95; on March 27th, 100½; and on March 28th, 109; or within three-quarters of a point of the highest price reached at any time during the Radio pool."

"The facts are," Whitney insisted, "that after the pool ceased operation the price of Radio went almost immediately to 109. It thereupon sold at 100 or more on 13 trading days during the month of April, on 10 days during the month of May, on one day during the month of August, and on 16 days during the month of September."

"The senate record does not show the loss suffered by this pool," he continued, referring to the General Asphalt venture, "but our accountants report that down to May, 1931, the pool lost $4,564,606."

RAILWAY STOCKS LEAD ADVANCE IN WALL STREET

Copper Pool Is Rumored.

One of the rumors going the rounds had it that leading copper interests are planning a "pool" to finance the large surplus of the metal which has accumulated above ground since the start of the business slump.

Specialties like Simmons, National Biscuit, International Business Machine, Coca Cola and a few others found the going to their liking and some of them made excellent showings.

Lower priced public utilities and the shares of some of the smaller steel units enjoyed better demand. People's Gas of Chicago took a spurt of 5¼ points, and Consolidated Gas, which has been moving into new high ground almost daily for the last week or ten days, added almost another point to its score.

Overnight news of market value included the announcement of the United States Steel corporation of proposed expenditures of about $5,000,000 for rehabilitation of plants and the declaration of Myron C. Taylor, chairman of that company's board, that buying cannot be long delayed. The turnover of stocks was considerably below that of yesterday.

PAEMELEE TRANSPORTATION.

Company and subsidiaries reported for the first half of this year net loss of $713,947 after charges, compared with net loss of $149,411 in the like period a year ago. June quarter net loss amounted to $370,510 after charges, as against net loss of $343,437 in the preceding three months.

Top yesterday, $6.75; average, $5.25.

Cattle and hog supplies fell short yesterday. Those markets rallied on strong local support. The clearance was the best in two weeks. Hogs came back strongest after touching the lowest levels in almost two months, with the medium and heavy swine selling to the best advantage on the bulge.

Advances of 5@15c were scored in hogs, the general average for the day showing 10c gain at $4.15. The preceding day's average was lowest since June 23. The peak price at $4.80 was equal to Tuesday's top, but was paid freely yesterday.

However, until the middle of this week Chicago receipts have been fairly heavy. The 24 day total this month stands heaviest since last May and 52,000 head or 15 per cent larger than a year ago. The aggregate total at the other 10 leading markets shows a decrease. Chicago is handling 32 per cent of the 11 market total this month against 28 per cent a year ago.

Corn Fed Cattle Better.

Choice corn fed cattle forged ahead to a 10@15c higher position yesterday, while the declines in grassy and medium grades of light weights was halted. The latter continued rather draggy, but it was less difficult to obtain satisfactory bids and a shorter part of the run stayed in first hands until midsession. Few highly finished beef steers exceeding 1,200 lbs in weight were on the market, and these cashed at $9.00 and above, two shipments averaging 1,320@1,333 lbs, going to Armour and to New York Butchers, an eastern house, at $9.85, the extreme top.

Feeding Lambs $5.00.

The stronger position of the lamb market which is holding up against the pressure of the largest receipts of the season has excited some country demand for feeding stock. Thin lambs sorted from range offerings went into country buyers' hands at $4.75@5.00 some of the highest prices of the season for feeder lambs. Slaughter stock held firm again yesterday. Tops from the range lambs sold for slaughter at $5.25@5.85, while most natives to packers brought $5.50@5.75, with hand picked ewe and wether lambs at $6.25@6.65. A few natives to city butchers reached $6.75. During the first 24 days of August the Chicago market handled 270,000 head, this total showing an increase of 100,000 over a month ago.
